3,000 Begin Bethlehem Pilgrimage

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pilgrims in unprecedented numbers passed Saturday from Israel into Jordan 46 u vyyx cv 23

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pilgrims in unprecedented numbers passed Saturday from Israel into Jordan — through the Mandelbaum Gate and over no-man's land — to gather in Old Jerusalem on this Christmas Eve for the trek to Bethlehem.

Most of the record 3,000 or so are Arab Catholics who will observe the holiday in the Judean hill town where Christ was born.

Many traveled overnight to be first in line Friday when Israel and Jordan officials for the 12th consecutive year put aside their enmities long enough to allow the border crossings. The two normally cling to the uneasy armistice of 1948-49.

From Jerusalem the pilgrims walk five miles south to Bethlehem where the Church of the Nativity marks the traditional site of Christ's birth. The Grotto of the Nativity is revered as the actual place.

The pilgrim's trail leads through the hills Joseph and Mary plodded over and along the route the Three Wise Men took in following their star to Bethlehem.

Many of the Christians making the pilgrimage will go on to Nazareth after Christmas for religious celebrations at traditional holy sites such as the workshop of St. Joseph and Mary's well.

Officials at the Jerusalem border confirmed there was a record crossing this year. Another 2,000 will make the pilgrimage next month for the Greek Orthodox and Armenian Christmas observances.

There were no notable border incidents.

Snowstorm Nearly Isolates Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A crippling snowstorm blowing off Lake Erie almost isolated metropolitan Buffalo Friday at the height of the morning rush-hour.

The Buffalo Skyway and nearby sections of the New York Thruway were choked by abandoned cars. Buffalo Airport shut down, its runways under foot-high drifts.

Inbound buses ran late, if they ran at all. Rail traffic moved in and out of the city behind schedule.

The suburbs east of Buffalo and immediately south were hardest hit.

The village of Sloan ordered all traffic halted so police could clear cars from the streets. Motorists stranded on the Thruway and along main thoroughfares herded into restraurants in "standing room only" crowds.

Lines Are Bogged

Telephone lines, jammed already with holiday callers, were bogged with long delays by the stranded calling home.

Cheektowaga, east of Buffalo, was completely tied up. Thousands of cars were reported abandoned on highways there and the big Westinghouse plant and Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory shut for the day.

Other factories on the outskirts operated on reduced shifts. Schools, which would have been closed by the snow, already had closed for the holidays.

By mid-morning, however, skies over the city had cleared.

The Buffalo weather bureau said the 10-hour snowfall was caused by a spinning mass of polar air moving over a warmer Lake Erie. Storms like these spray snow like a garden hose, bombing one area and missing another nearby.

The official fall measured about seven inches but could have varied to more than a foot in some areas, the weather bureau said.

Nearby thruway sections and most of the main roads running north and south through the city were re-opened as skies cleared, but abandoned cars lined the shoulders, police said.

Teachers Ask Santa For Free Lunch Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — If teachers wrote letters to Santa Claus, chances are they'd ask for a duty-free lunch period.

In a day when the coffee break is a national institution, hundreds of thousands of teachers can only dream of getting away from the children for even a few minutes during the school day.

A survey by the National education Association shows that only 12 per cent of the city school districts provide a free lunch period for grade school teachers. About half of this 12 per cent insist the children go home for lunch.

It's not just a question of finding someone else to supervise the children at lunch, although that is an important factor. Many school superintendents believe it's important that the children have the teacher's guidance both in and out of the classroom.

Only five states — California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio and Pennsylvania — have legislation guaranteeing a duty-free minimum lunch period to all full-time teachers. The minimum usually is 30 minutes.

Phone Calls Resume After Brief Halts

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The situation was normal Friday after members of a union at the Pennsylvania Bell Telephone Co. refused to accept or place calls for brief periods Thursday, a company spokesman said.

Some operators in various sections of the state struck for approximately five-minute periods at varying times, the spokesman said.

A contract covering 9,000 to 10,000 operators and clerical workers who handle calls expired on Dec. 14. Negotiations broke off last week. A federal mediator is now attempting to get talks resumed between representatives of the company and Local 1944, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Merry Christmas!

Unpleasant Christmases Recalled By News Photog

By ROD MacLEOD

CHRISTMAS Eve, the new fallen snow crunched underfoot, and Christmas bells rang out carols into the cold December night, warming the hearts of Stroudsburg people as they hurried home to be with their loved ones.

Other people hurried home too, wanting to be with their distant families; using Monroe County roads as the fastest route to happiness.

"Glad Tidings" was the order of the day. Every home was sprinkled with the magic points of light and warmth that make a Christmas tree. Peace and goodwill had settled in the Stroudsburgs.

Final Touch

In one home, a news photographer was putting the final decorations on his tree, reflecting that it was good to be home with the wife and children. That alone was present enough.

The soft tones of the church bell melody was suddenly shattered by the brisk, insistant call of the telephone.

"I hope it is only a social call," he said. "Hello."

His heart sank, he recognized the voice of the city editor.

"On Foxtown Hill, this side of Stroudsburg, a fatal, pretty bad. Get there fast as you can."

Yet it was Christmas, police and wrecker warning lights making a colorful display on Route 611.

Red flashing lights do not make Christmas.

A milk tanker truck had slammed into a passenger car, killing the driver and leaving a little girl strung on the highway guide wire like a sack of potatoes.

Screams and sobs took the place of Christmas carols—Silent Night?

Planned Visit

This family was on the way to visit grandmother in some city far from us. The visit was a prolonged stay in our General Hospital, the other, was not a visit—to the morgue.

The job over, the photographer returned home. It was not the same. A chill had overcome the warmth of the holiday.

The tragic thing is that this story gets repeated and repeated, every Christmas Eve.

Please, please make sure that this does not happen to you or yours. Have a happy holiday and play safe.

Center Of A Typical American Christmas

Christmas Around World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pilgrim and reveler launched on their traditional Christmas holiday festivities Saturday with confidence and exuberance above the turmoil of a restive world.

Europe enjoyed one of its most prosperous holiday times ever. A record spending splurge cleaned out department stores and families faced a weekend of good eating and holiday cheer.

Unprecedented numbers of Christians from Israel were on their pilgrimage to Jordan-held Bethlehem. And U.N. units in the Congo held Old World celebrations in tropical African heat.

In Washington President Eisenhower asked Americans to make the season a time of dedication to equal political and economic justice for all.

In Moscow there was a shopping crush for the Soviet observance of the Russian New Year in January.

The Rev. Louis F. Dion, American Roman Catholic priest who serves the Moscow diplomatic colony, will officiate at midnight mass at the residence of the U.S. ambassador.

With Christmas spending up as never before, stores in Western Europe ran short of merchandise. Italy ran out of sable, mink and chinchilla. Poultry sales for Christmas dinners amounted to a whopping $50 million in Britain alone.

The royal family set the tone for British families with a stay-at-home celebration at Sandringham. Only the piping of carol singers will disturb the tranquility of the English holiday.

Scandinavia observes Christmas with groaning boards and wassailing.

Parisian revelers have booked up all available night club reservations.

European airlines and trains were bound for holiday fun spots.

Allied armed forces in Europe and Britain joined with host country families for the celebrations. Helicopters dropped Santa Clauses on both the British and U.S. armed forces in West Germany and British soldiers were served rum-laced tea in bed by their officers.

No Yule For 3 U.S. Pilots Held By Reds

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Three American pilots in Soviet prisons are likely to have an austere Christmas, but nobody except their Russian keepers knows for sure.

The three are Francis Gary Powers of Pound, Va., whose U2 dropped down last May 1 over Sverdlovsk and precipitated an international crisis, and Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y., and Capt. John R. McCone of Topeka, Kan., whose RB47 reconnaissance bomber was shot down over the Barents Sea July 1.

All are believed to be held in the vicinity of Moscow.

Packages have been sent by their families. For the most part these contained warm clothing, because this was specified by Soviet authorities as advisable as presents.

But a special gift was sent to Olmstead. His wife and children recorded their voices on a record and sent it to him.

That record reached the U.S. Embassy Friday and it was immediately repackaged for forwarding to the police authorities for delivery.

The families of Powers and McCone have sent their packages directly to security police headquarters in Moscow.

Only the Russians know whether the three will have any special observance at all. Soviet authorities have kept strict secrecy about both the reconnaissance pilots, and about Powers since he was sentenced last Aug. 20 to 10 years on spy charges.

Regularly the embassy asks to see the prisoners, but these requests are denied.

For Christmas . . .

28 Thankful Survivors Head Home

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Twenty-eight survivors from the storm-wrecked tanker Pine Ridge reached shore and happily headed for Christmas at home Friday, but with some bitter parting comments about the vessel's seaworthiness.

Robert Gill, of Monterrey, Mexico, said the tanker broke up without warning in weather that normally would be no threat to a ship of her size.

Gill asserted that, on her last previous voyage, the Pine Ridge's hull was split on the port side, beside her No. 7 tank. Gill said the split was patched with concrete for the trip which ended two days ago in a breakup off Cape Hatteras.

However, Gill said the final break was between the No. 5 and 6 tanks.

Two other members of the crew, James C. Lewis of Winston-Salem, N. C., and I. H. Hulsey, of Corpus Christi, Tex., applied such terms as "rust bucket" and "unseaworthy" to the tanker.

Nevertheless, all the surviving crew members voiced their thankfulness at being able to spend Christmas with loved ones—and to be alive.

Brought To Base

They were brought in to the Norfolk Naval Base by the destroyer Conway just slightly more than two days after violent sea broke their ship apart and sank half of it in a few harrowing minutes.

Some were annoyed, however, at being summoned to return Wednesday for an inquiry concerning the tanker's misfortune.

First things were put first on arrival for the men who weathered the disaster that apparently took the lives of their skipper and six other shipmates in the angry Atlantic 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras.

A paymaster for the owners went aboard and paid them up to date before they met with newsmen.

The men showed few signs of their ordeal but all reflected the thanks that they had been snug in the stern section of the Pine Ridge when mountainous seas tore her bow away.

The destroyer took the men off the carrier Valley Forge whose helicopters plucked them one by one from the tossing stern section 170 miles southeast of Norfolk.

The other known survivor among the 36-member ship's company of the Pine Ridge, Chief Engineer John Richart of Wilmington, Del., remained aboard the stern section, which was being readied for tow by tugs for the painstakingly slow trip to Norfolk. Richart was joined by four salvage men from the tug Curb.

The buoyant spirits of the landed survivors was checked when they recalled the gripping moment of the breakaway of their ship's bow Wednesday.

Tells How

Chester Reed, an oiler from Corpus Christi, Tex., said: "I was laying down in my bunk when everything started falling around me. I ran topside and saw it split. I was scared but I figured I was going to be safe. I was praying and hoping."

I. H. Hulsey, also of Corpus Christi, said the bow broke off with a loud "pop" rather than tearing away gradually.

None of them reported seeing what happened to the other crewmen aboard the forward part of the ship, although some of these were spotted in the water by a Coast Guard aircraft.

Holiday Death Toll Set At 510

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The start of the long Christmas weekend found thousands of motorists on the road Friday night.

The home-for-Christmas traffic always is heavy. And this time normal driving hazards were heightened by slick or snow-packed highways in many parts of the country.

The National Safety Council estimated that 510 Americans may be killed in motor vehicle accidents in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and will end at midnight Monday.

The council stressed in a plea to motorists that speeding and drinking have been the foremost factors in Christmas holiday fatalities in the past.

The Christmas period of 1959—also three days — was a time of tragedy for many families. Traffic deaths numbered 493, fires accounted for 43, and 73 persons died in a variety of other accidents for an over-all total of 609.

The record traffic and over-all tolls during a three-day observance of Christmas were set in 1955. There were 606 deaths in traffic, 68 in fires and 105 in the miscellaneous class for a total of 782.

For the purpose of making comparisons when the final 1960 Christmas tallies are recorded, The Associated Press made a survey, of a 78-hour nonholiday weekend. The survey, made during the Dec. 9-Dec. 12 period, showed there were 293 deaths in traffic, 47 in fires and 113 in the miscellaneous bracket for an all-accident toll of 453.

Harsh Cold Continues In Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harsh cold clung to the Northeast Friday, but an arctic weather siege moderated in the Midwest and South.

Subzero temperatures which plunged as low as 25 degrees under the zero mark at Joliet, Ill., earlier in the day, were dissipated by a shift of winds from westerly to southerly over much of the Midwest frigid zone.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Weather Bureau Friday predicted fair weather for most of the nation on Christmas Day.

Except for the northeastern area, where continued quite cold is expected, temperatures are expected to be near normal in all sections.

"Mostly fair skies should predominate," the bureau said, "with precipitation restricted to a few widely separated areas.

New England, however, was in for a repeat of the harshness of Thursday night when the mercury skidded to -18 at Rumford, Maine, and subzero readings were common in New Hampshire.

Buffalo, N.Y., dug itself out of a paralyzing 12-inch snow which whipped inland from Lake Erie, snarling traffic on thruways and at the airport, and choking streets with stalled cars.

There was snow in the Midwest, mingled with freezing rain in southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois. The new fall and glaze spread atop three to five inches of snow remaining from earlier in the week. Highways in the area were extremely slick, and traffic crawled.

Temperatures remained near zero during the day in the Canadian border region from Minnesota to New York, and in the Upper Ohio Valley. The freezing line drew back northward from the Gulf, and milder weather came to the South and Southeast.

The West Coast enjoyed pleasantly mild weather, and Southern California had 70s during the day.

A PRR Limited Ran Out Of Gas

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad's Manhattan Limited, with 14 passenger cars, ran out of diesel fuel and was stranded near Lewistown for 2 hours in sub-zero weather Friday.

The Chicago-to-New York train already running five hours late exhausted its fuel at Mifflin about 2:30 a. m.

A fuel truck was sent from Lewistown to keep the engine's generators going and to provide heat for the train.

A freight diesel engine was sent from Harrisburg to help the train in and to make sure it didn't run out of fuel again.

It arrived here at 10:20 a. m., 7¼ hours late.

One passenger said "it was freezing in there."

The Golden Text

Mother and Child from the "Holy Night" by Correggio.

"Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."
—Luke 2:10-11.

Today's Lesson
God's Gift Of Love

By Newman Campbell

Christmas time again. What memories it must bring to older people who have celebrated many Christmases. It is a time of giving of gifts to family and close friends. But don't forget those who are too poor to buy gifts and some who may have no families or friends with whom to celebrate. Let us, if we know such a person, invite whoever it may be to share our festivities and make him feel that he does have friends and try to convince him he is not alone in a friendless world.

On the night of Christ's birth "there were shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, an angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone around about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord: .. . And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manager."—Luke 2:8-12.

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke 2:3-14.

When the angels went away, the shepherds went to Bethlehem to see this wondrous Child, and when they had seen Him they told everyone about Him, and all wondered. "But Mary, His Mother, kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart."—Luke 2:17-19.

Givers Are Often Bothered In Gift-Giving This Season

Religion Today
By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

IN this gift-giving season, the givers often are bothered, baffled and bewildered about what to give.

Commercial tips abound, but they have a somewhat impersonal tinge.

Guidance, both old and new, is being offered on the problem these days.

Some rather classic suggestions, revived in a recent issue of Christianity Today, come from the famous 19th century American essayist, poet and philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson.

In a treatise on "gifts," he offers some ideas classified in a sort of staircase fashion according to the relationship and need of the recipient.

On the first level, when you just don't know what to give, give flowers or fruit.

"Flowers because they are a proud assertion that a ray of beauty outvalues all the utilities of the world," he says. "Fruits because they are the flower of commodities."

As evidence of the wisdom of such a choice, it is noted that a wife is far more delighted by a cluster of carnations from her husband than by a new broom, even though the broom has greater usefulness.

On the first step above flowers and fruit, Emerson lists the "gifts of necessity," such as shoes for a man who needs shoes. Obviously, you shouldn't give him a paintbox.

On the level above meeting a person's need is the gift personally associated with the recipient; that is, a gift recognizing the receiver's hobby, interest or avocation, such as a composer's biography to a musician, a saddle blanket for a horseman.

On the highest level of giving, Emerson places the gift representing part of the giver's own craftsmanship or creativity—the poet bringing his poem, the shepherd his sheep, the farmer his produce, the painter his painting.

These are worthy gifts, Emerson says, offering a part of the giver himself to the recipient. He disdains the buying of baubles and trinkets from mass producers as meaningless sorts of gifts.

Another set of suggestions for infusing your gift-giving with the special spirit of Christmas generosity comes from the Rev. Graham R. Hodges of Emanuel Congregational church, Watertown, N.Y.

In the Methodist magazine, Together, he gives this advice:

1. Break the habit of gift-swapping. Give gifts to those outside your circle of family, and to friends who cannot repay you in kind.

2. Write a note of appreciation to someone who, during the year, did some outstanding public work in an unselfish manner, or whose words or deeds were an inspiration to you. Such words of commendation are especially appreciated.

3. Telephone or visit some lonely person to wish him a merry Christmas. You may be his only caller during the whole season.

4. Send a cash gift through a church or charitable channel to needy people overseas. You will be helping people who will never know their benefactor. In giving in secret, as Scripture says, "your Father who sees in secret will reward you."

5. Invite someone to Christmas dinner with you, a foreign student, perhaps, who cannot repay you in kind.

6. Provide your minister with a cash gift for someone in need, specifying that he not reveal your name.

As Emerson says, the worth of any gift, or the affection of its giver, can never be judged by a price tag, and it is only as a man gives of himself and his love, that his gift has the highest value.

Moravian Services For Newfoundland

NEWFOUNDLAND—The candlelight service of the Moravian Church, scheduled for 8 p.m. on Christmas Eve, is a family worship service open to everyone.

Even before those attending enter the church, the mood for the service will be set by the lifelike and lighted creche in the churchyard. Two live donkeys will help to recreate the scene so many years ago in Bethlehem.

The program will begin with music by the choir and the reading of Scriptures concerning the first Christmas. There will be a choral reading group giving voice to Old Testament prophecies, and there will be recitations by the small children.

An original, one-act play will be presented entitled, "Christmas, 1960," the play has a cast including James Hinton, Jean Mary Burdick, Terry Staph, Terry Voeste and Elaine Hinton. There will also be a nativity scene in brief pageant form.

The candlelight service will feature the singing of "Morning Star," with Donna Stevens, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glen Stevens, as soloist.

In this service, the whole church is darkened with the exception of the glowing Advent Star in the chancel and the single candle held by the soloist. This bees wax candle symbolizing the purity of Christ, the light of the world, is duplicated by candles held by each member of the congregation. Each candle is then lighted, symbolizing the spreading of the gospel.

Rev. Carr's Special Services

Following this the peoples candles will be lit, symbolic of the fact that we are to be the light of the world.

A great and mighty wonder
Today on earth is done;
Behold a virgin mother
Brings forth God's only Son.

The Word now dwells among us,
Made flesh, yet very God:
And cherubim sing anthems
To Shepherds all abroad.

Since all He comes to succor,
By all be He adored,
The infant born in Bethleham,
The Saviour and the Lord.

The Greatest Gift

It's wonderful to receive "the world" for Christmas—but think how much more wonderful it would be if we could give Christmas to the world! If the true Christian spirit could permeate the globe, all fear of war, destruction, extermination, would be over.

It is only through the Church that Christian teachings can hope to reach to the darkest corners on earth, bringing enlightenment in their wake. By proclaiming God's eternal message, the Church can bring the hope of peace closer to reality.

But if Christmas is to be given to the world, then all of us must first do our part by living our own individual lives in the Christian way. Start now—by attending regularly the church of your faith.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Christmas Story

St. Luke 2:1-14

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.

And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David).

To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that while they were there the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

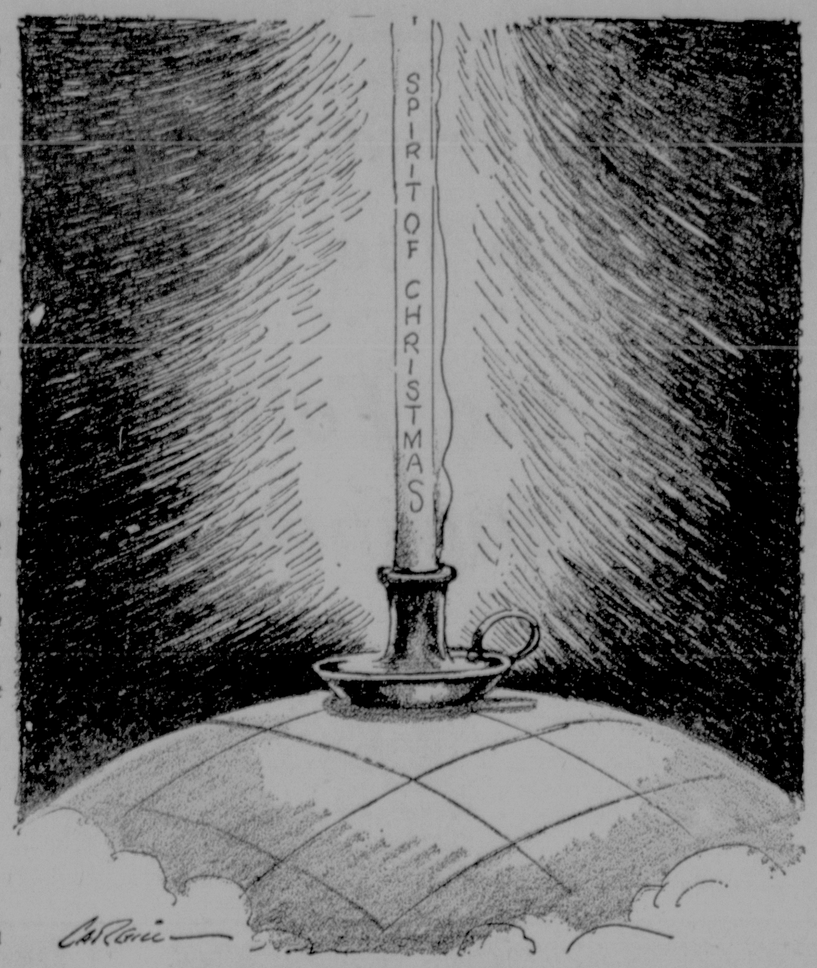
And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.



Deep Are The Roots!

Reports From Congress

School Integration

By Congressional Quarterly

Washington — (CQ) — Public school integration in 17 Southern states and the District of Columbia edged upward in the fall of 1960, but the gains were mostly in border states rather than the "deep South."

Statistics published in December by the non-artisan Southern School News showed that of 3,097,534 Negro school children enrolled in originally all-segregated school districts, 195,625, or 6.3 per cent, were attending classes with white children when the fall term opened in 1960.

The previous school year ended with a total Negro enrollment of 3,020,727, with 181,020 or 6 per cent, in integrated classes.

District of Columbia Leads — According to the survey, 191,349, or nearly all, of the integrated Negro students are concentrated in the District of Columbia and six border states. The District of Columbia has the highest rate of integration, with all schools desegregated and 84.1 per cent of the Negro pupils actually attending classes with white pupils. Others are West Virginia, with 66.6 per cent of the Negro students attending racially mixed classes; Delaware, 44.7 per cent; Missouri, 41.7 per cent; Kentucky, 38.9 per cent; Oklahoma, 24 per cent; and Maryland, 20.9 per cent.

However, these states account for only 14 per cent of the total Southern Negro enrollment. In the remaining Southern states, integration remains non-existent or mainly token. Texas, with 3,500, or 1.2 per cent of its Negro students attending desegregated classes, leads the group. Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, with 36 per cent of the Southern Negro enrollment, as yet have integrated none of their schools. Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia together have 776 Negroes attending integrated classes out of a total Negro enrollment of 2,663,520.

State Actions — Following are some recent developments in states affected by the school desegregation question:

Arkansas — Voters Nov. 8 turned down by a three-to-one vote a state constitutional amendment, supported by Gov. Orval E. Faubus (D), which would have allowed schools to be closed to avoid integration.

Delaware — The Third Circuit Court of Appeals Aug. 29 struck down the state's "grade-a-year" integration plan as not meeting the requirement of "all deliberate speed" laid down by the Supreme Court in its historic 1954 desegregation decision. An appeal of the Aug. 29 action was pending before the Supreme Court.

Florida — The number of Negroes in "desegregated" classes dropped from 512 in the 1959-60 school year to 27 this year when the lone white student dropped out of the Orchard Villa School, Miami. This left the state with only one desegregated school, also in Miami.

Georgia — A U.S. District Court has ordered Atlanta's schools integrated by May 1, 1961, but state authorities were doubtful the necessary administrative actions would be completed before September.

Mississippi — Voters Nov. 8 ratified a constitutional amendment making it discretionary rather than mandatory for the state legislature to provide free public schools.

Louisiana — In the first desegregation of schools in the deep South, four Negro girls are attending two New Orleans elementary schools in the face of mob violence, a white boycott and efforts by the state legislature to block the integration program. The Negro pupils entered the classes Nov. 14 as the first step in a "grade-a-year" program. The Supreme Court Dec. 12 refused to delay a lower court order requiring New Orleans to carry out its desegregation plan on schedule.

Tennessee — The Chattanooga Board of Education was under orders from a U. S. District Court to produce a desegregation plan by Dec. 20, 1960. Tennessee now has 342 of its 19,644 Negro students attending integrated classes.

Social Security Guide

Q. I am 65 and will retire in March and expect to claim social security benefits shortly thereafter. What papers will I need when I file?

A. Before discussing the documents you will need when you file your claim, I would like to point out the appropriate time to file your claim. You should visit the social security office 60 to 90 days before you retire. By learning what will be neded to process your claim and filing your claim before you actually retire, you can speed your first social security check when you retire. The documents you will need are your social security number, some proof of your age, and evidence of your earnings for the previous year. Your proof of age can be any old document which shows your name and date of birth or age. This includes such documents as an old family Bible, old insurance policy, military service records, etc. Evidence of your earnings can be a W-2 form (withholding slip) if you are an employee or your Federal income tax return if you are self-employed. Also, bring your wife and something to prove her age if she is age 62 or over or has minor or disabled children in her care.

Q. Do I have to be 65 before I can check on my social security?

A. No. We suggest that you check with the social security office about 60 to 90 days before you reach retirement age (age 62 for women, age 65 for men) or before you plan to retire.

Q. I am a self-employed farmer, but I have never paid social security taxes because I've had a loss every year. What can I do about my social security now?

A? Special provisions in the social security law make it easier for the low income farmer to derive earnings for OASI purposes. This provision is called the optional method. You may either report your actual net or an amount equal to two-thirds of your gross, even though you have had a loss. However, under this method, you cannot report more than $1,200 and you cannot report if your gross income for the year was less than $600. You may now file amended self-employment returns using this optional method for the years 1956 on, so that you will receive credit for the past three years.

Q. I operate a busy restaurant and the hired help comes and goes. Most new employes give me their names and social security numbers orally without further reference; partly because we are busy. Later on I receive correspondence from the Social Security Administration, the Internal Revenue Service and the State Employment Service because the social security numbers and sometimes the names of my employes are not correct. What is the best and simplest procedure to avoid these mixups with these state and federal agencies?

A. The simple answer is: To record the new employes name and social security exactly as it appears on their social security card. Do not depend on a person's memory regarding his social security number. Also watch for name differences. Some waitresses still carry cards with their maiden names long after they have been married.

Q. During the past few years, I have moved from place to place and worked for many different people. What should I do to make sure I get credit for all of my work?

A. When you report for a new job, you should show your social security card to your new employer so that he can copy the name and number exactly as they appear on your card. You should also keep a record of the name and address of each employer as well as the dates of your employment and the amount of your wages. Then check your social security account at least every three years.

Q. One of my foremen hired two extra men on a construction job but didn't get their social security numbers. Do I just forget about them in making my quarterly tax report to the Internal Revenue Service?

A. No. If you cannot locate these men and obtain their social security account numbers, then report them by name and last known address, together with the amount of wages you paid each of them.

CUTIES —By E. Simms Campbell

"—And I won't pour ink in daddy's coffee or put glue in my sister's oatmeal—if I get those things you forgot about LAST year."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Christmas 1960

And so the rhythm of life moves its constant course and comes around to where it was only a year before — another Christmas.

As in nature, so it is in the affairs of man, no matter how materialistic his life may be, his soul cries out for life and love, for joy and peace.

So each year, the Holy Days of his particular faith remind him of the permanence of life, of the eternity of his ancestry. Those who celebrate Christmas go back 1960 years for their birthday and there are those who go back 4000 and 5000 years in their historic memory.

It is this historic memory which really is what holidays and holy days are for. They remind man that he is not alone, that life did not begin with him nor will it end with him.

Christmas has universal acceptance, even among those who are not Christians, because the form of our lives is essentially based upon the concepts which Jesus spoke with such eloquence. What do we all crave in this day as in His day? We crave peace — peace of mind, peace in our homes, peace in our nation, peace among nations. Jesus, who moved among men in the warring, imperial Roman Empire, sought peace and social justice:

"No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other.

"Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

In an age of materialism, we need to be reminded:

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:

"But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal:

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

So this is the essential lesson of Christmas in the year of danger and courage when we are being pressed in the mould of an evil doctrine. We know that we sit amid plenty and we dine and wine and purchase compulsively but the things are as dross because we fear war and we witness evil and we wonder if man will ever return to the good life.

This is what Christmas means and in 1961, through the initiative of Pope John XXIII, it is possible that a new day may dawn among those who believe in God's mercy but who do not believe each other.

They may sit down, the communicants and the ex-communicated, to break bread and to ask: What have we done to God's house, we mortal men who have been graced with wisdom? We have spent centuries hating each other, whereas we have been counselled to love our neighbors.

We mouth prayers thoughtlessly and by rote but our hearts have become sterile and we forget that throughout his long travail upon this Earth, man has lived by faith and only where faith is strong can life be rich. Jesus said:

"Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

Shall we be cowards before the onslaught of the sons of evil? Shall we say that if we stand firm in our faith, we shall be destroyed by bombs and missiles and rockets? Shall we perish from fear before we die?

Shall we say to our sons, bow before the idols of Marx, Lenin, Stalin, Khrushchev lest you be forced to defend your faith and your civilization and the God of your fathers? Have we the courage of the Maccabees or are we Pharisees who bow to the powers that threaten?

Jesus came among men as a Jew. He did not appear in Rome or in Athens or in Antioch. He appeared in Jerusalem among a people who had a religion of social justice. He carried that Faith before Him until it became the foundation of Western civilization.

Men always betray what is sacred and in the name of the beautiful and good commit evil. But what is beautiful is still beautiful and what is good is good. And may your Christmas Day bring to your heart joy and peace and a love for all men.

Mirror of Time

—by J. D. Shafer

The newspapers of 10 and 20 years ago were filled with letters to Santa from the children of Monroe County and a few lines of the struggle of war, both World War I and Korea. As I read the lines of the events a thought crossed my mind.

This is the time of year when the air is full of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men", a time when we try to push out the troubles of the world and of our own.

With this in mind I thought it would be nice to omit the incidents that would prevent you from clearing your mind and allow you the time it would normally take to read this column to turn your thoughts to "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

May your holiday be the very best you have ever known and may each thought bring happines to you and yours.

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

Today is the day when the boy and girl who delivers the paper to your doorstep makes with her best smile and extends the personal greetings of your daily newspaper.

Over the year, and with some the years, these carriers of local world news traveled through snow, sleet, rain and hot humid weather to get, so to speak, the "mail" through.

There is little compensation for these hardy young folks except the satisfaction that they did a job and did it to the best of their ability.

We always think of the paper boy as a lad who must turn up with his gazette no matter what. Perhaps we do not take in the hardships he endures during the 300-odd days of peddling.

Being Christmas, the time of the year when we take values for what its worth, it would be a good thought to go over the assets that this lad or girl bestowed on us six days a week and 52 weeks a year.

There is no one who does so much for so many than the carrier of our public information. Today let's doff our hats a little higher in recognition of this accomplishment.

Charlie Allen, the smiling Stroudsburg police officer, can do two things at once.

Yesterday Charley was directing traffic in front of Stroud Union High when a vender came along and offered the policeman a cup of coffee.

With the temperature at the zero mark, Charley accepted the drink and continued to send cars and trucks thisaway and thataway while sipping the warm beverage.

It might have been the coldest morning in years yesterday but Rev. Drury of the Pilgrim Holiness Church of Stroudsburg saw a robin while taking his children to school.

Rev. Drury has several other birdwatchers to verify the oddity of the century.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Residents of a certain community in the midwest awoke one morning some years ago to find posters plastered on every billboard, fence, and barn door in sight. All of them contained a single sentence: HE IS COMING!

Nobody could figure out who "HE" might be or who had posted the signs, but by noon the town was talking of nothing else. A week later to the day, a second poster replaced the first one. This one read, "He will be here Friday night in Town Hall at 8 p.m. sharp. Admission One Dollar."

By 7 p.m., Friday night, the hall was packed to the rafters. The townfolk had each forked over a buck for a ticket to a strange man in the box office who made change with great facility but could not be induced to speak a single word.

At 7:59 p.m., the house lights dimmed, the audience grew silent, and the curtain rose. On the stage was a third sign. This one read, HE HAS GONE!

Bob Hope nominates as one of his most sure-fire stories — especially when he's entertaining the armed forces — the story of the man who had been cleaning up the elephant enclosure in a circus for 25 years. "This year is just too much," he complained to his wife. "They've just bought 20 more elephants. This makes over 50 for me to clean up after."

"Why don't you quit?" suggested the wife. "What?" roared he, "and give up Show Business?"

A fellow officer, notes Paul Healy, once told Major General Joe Maas that he was the only Marine general to have served a full year while blind.

"Not really," chuckled General Mass. "I'm just the first to admit it."

The Allen-Scott Report

Suggestions Welcomed

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The top Republican chiefs of the Senate and House are laying down three basic guidelines for their relations with other GOP leaders in the coming session of Congress.

At an unannounced strategy conference, these powerful legislative leaders reached the following significant decisions:

To oppose the setting up of "outside" advisory committees — as former Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler did in 1959, over the strong disapproval of his party's congressional chiefs. The GOP leaders are as strenuously opposed to such a move as their Democratic counterparts, and already have served notice of that on "outside" leaders.

Reserved for themselves the full determination of their party's stand on legislation, particularly measures proposed by the Kennedy Administration. "Suggestions will be welcomed" from Vice President Nixon and Governor Nelson Rockefeller. But that's all. Neither they nor other "outside" leaders will be allowed to participate in the deliberations of the congressional policy makers, nor have any voice in what they say and do.

Closely scrutinize all the Kennedy cabinet selections, particularly those for the Treasury and Justice Departments —Republicans Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon and youthful Robert Kennedy. Republican members of the Senate committee that will consider the cabinet appointments will be briefed on what to ask them. The questioning will be especially directed at their business and other holdings.

Taking part in this momentous backstage meeting were Senators Everett Dirksen, Ill., the Floor Leader; Styles Bridges, N. H., head of the Policy Committee; Barry Goldwater, Ariz., chairman of the Campaign Committee; and Representative Charles Halleck, Ind., the party's Floor Leader in the House.

No outside help — The blunt rejection of "outside" advisory committees arose from a proposal by New York's Republican Senators Jacob Javits and Kenneth Keating — the former a Rockefeller supporter, and the latter for Nixon.

Keating has made no secret he favors advisory committees to give Nixon a say in GOP legislative policy.

In the congressional chief's private discussion they were emphatically unanimous in that they have no intention of letting Nixon, Rockefeller or any other "outside" leader tell them what should or shouldn't do on legislation.

"We are the elected representatives of the party," said Halleck, "and its our responsibility to determine what stand the party takes on legislation, especially from the Democratic Administration. I say it's up to us to run our show in Congress, and the others to take care of their own."

Dirksen heartily agreed with that.

"We already have advisory committees," declared the Illinoisan, "That's the function of our House and Senate policy committees. That's what they were set up for, to advise us. I see absolutely no reason for outside advisers. They would only muddy the waters."

Goldwater was equally emphatic.

"Formulating legislative policy is our responsibility," he said, "and we should accept it. Furthermore, I am against either defeated or aspiring candidates having a say on that."

Bridges expressed willingness to "receive suggestions." But that's as far as the veteran GOP chief would go.

"If anyone in the party has sound ideas and recommendations, I'm sure we'll welcome them," he said. "But beyond that, it's up to the Republican members of Congress to make their own decisions. We don't need 'outside' advisers to do that for us."

In a post-mortem analysis of the election, the legislative leaders were sharply critical of Attorney General William Rogers and Labor Secretary James Mitchell, both close to Nixon.

Rogers and Mitchell were blamed for ill-advising him on campaign strategy.

GOP politicals — Mrs. Nixon has said nothing publicly since the election, but she is telling friends the last hasn't been heard of Republican charges of voting frauds. To one neighbor Mrs. Nixon said, "We don't blame Senator Kennedy for that. We're sure he didn't have a thing to do with it. But there was a lot of dishonesty and corruption, and it's going to come out." . . . California's next gubernatorial race is still two years off, but the GOP pot is already bubbling. Latest candidate to be boomed is Los Angeles County's colorful Sheriff Pete Pitchess, former FBI agent and friend of Vice President Nixon. Also eagerly eyeing this prize is San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher, who visited Russia early this year as the guest of Premier Khrushchev — before the U-2 reconnaissance plane episode and his violent diatribes against President Eisenhower.

Inside You And Yours

Food Poisoning

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Doubting Thomas: You want me to catch pneumonia? all this about pneumonia? You've got a cold, and penicillin won't help. It might even hurt.

D. T.: How?

M. D.: Your intestine is a battlegrond where millions of germs fight to survive. A chronic food shortage limits any population explosion.

D. T.: What's all this got to do with a shot of penicillin?

M. D.: No germ killer kills all germs. After most germs have been done in by antibiotics, those that remain live off the fat of the land. Result: A germ population explosion.

Staph Germs

D. T.: Are you talking about those staph germs?

M. D.: Yes. Staph germs laid your friend, Artie, low last year. You remember — when he had pneumonia.

D. T.: Gee, staph germs caused his pneumonia?

Bullet-Proof Vest

M. D.: No, by the time penicillin and its cousins had cured his pneumonia, they had killed almost every intestinal germ except staph, which has grown a bullet-proof vest that antibiotic drugs can't penetrate. So when staph bacteria took over, they gave him bad food poisoning.

D. T.: Food poisoning?

M. D.: He had the same symptoms—dry heaves, painful cramps, intestinal rivers and fever. We cured him with newer antibiotics that pierce bacterial bullet-proof vests.

But staph is only one of many trouble-makers. Even harmless germs can grow into raging mobs that overwhelm your intestinal defenses. All they need is plenty of food — and no competition!

D. T.: Bacteria certainly age complicated.

Fungus Trouble

M. D.: Antibiotics are, too! They can also start fungus trouble.

D. T.: Fungus?

M. D.: Little molds that light up fiery patches of red, itchy skin at both ends of the digestive tract. They may even invade your bloodstream and threaten life if you're not strong.

D. T.: Can drugs cure fungus?

Combination Medicines

M. D.: Yes, some medicines combine both fungus-killer and antibiotics in the same capsule —just in case. Vitamin B also helps.

D. T.: That's enough. No unnecessary penicillin for me. And the next guy who tells me to get a shot for my cold—

Their Best Christmas

HENRY McCOOL, Monroe County probation officer: The Christmas I recall the most was the Christmas of 1945 when I was discharged from the Army. It was the first I had spent the holidays at home in four years. Being home with the family on this day of days is one of the nicest presents anyone can be thankful for.

MARYANNE HEETER, Bell Telephone Co. employe: The Christmas I hold as my best Christmas was last year. My daughter, Debbie, was 18 months old and it was the first year she was old enough to appreciate the holiday. It seemed her eyes were looking all around and her hands tearing into the presents Santa Claus brought for her.

JAMES R. MARSH, Monroe County District Attorney: It would be very hard for me to try to pick the best Christmas I have ever had. They all have been wonderful and as they go by I find some little thing to remember about each one. I could go on at great length pointing out the things of each Christmas I recall but that would be too long.

MARILYN REESE, secretary for Monroe County district attorney: Trying to pick out the best Christmas I have ever had is to me an almost impossible task. I am of the same feeling as Attorney Marsh, each one has given me some little something to leave me with a remembrance of each Christmas past.

JEANNETTE F. BATORY, Monroe County register and recorder: The Christmas I remember best was when I was about six years old and there had been a very heavy snowfall. We didn't have a tree and my father went out on Christmas morning to cut one. The only one he could find was a pine and he thought we wouldn't like it. But we decorated it and I've never forgotten it.

FLORENCE M. RIDGEWAY, Monroe County deputy prothonotary: My best Christmas was about three years ago when I was in the hospital and found out there was nothing wrong with my heart. I had planned to go to Scranton to visit relatives, but the doctors told me I couldn't. At the last minute they changed their minds and I went. I also visited a specialist who told me my heart was OK.

Sleigh Riding On Fulmer Ave.

STROUDSBURG Chief of Police John Tretheway requested last night that motorists try to avoid using Wallace St. between Scott and Brown St.

Barricades have been erected by the police department so the children can sleigh ride on Fulmer Ave., he announced.

Several reports have been received at the control center that the barricades have been removed to allow vehicles to pass. This has been done by motorists, the chief said, and action will be taken against this violation.

"Sleigh riding for children is part of a child s Christmas.

Lets all help them enjoy the holiday," Chief Tretheway exclaimed.

The bus was traveling north at the time of the accident and at the time of impact was almost completely off the highway on the shoulder of the road.

Rarick Loses Bid To Run For Head Of Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Millworker Donald C. Rarick lost out Friday in his bid to run for president of the 1,200,000-member United Steelworkers, assuring the re-election of David J. McDonald.

Rarick, 42, a once-defeated candidate, failed even to win nomination this time for a place on the ballot in the union's quadrennial election Feb. 14.

This left the 58-year-old McDonald with no official opposition for the $50,000-a-year job which he has held since 1952.

In the 1957 election, McDonald defeated Rarick by slightly less than a 2-to-1 majority after the strapping furnace tender easily gained nomination. The tally was 404,172 to 223,516.

That was the first election contest for president in the history of the union, founded in 1942.

Headquarters of the USW reported Friday morning McDonald received nominations of 2,136 locals compared with the 40 needed by a candidate for international office.

The union did not disclose how many nominations Rarick gained, but The Associated Press learned the figure was about 20.

Unopposed

USW vice president Howard Hague and secretary-treasurer I. W. Abel also will be unopposed for re-election. They got 2,132 and 2,155 nominations, respectively. No others were in the races.

Rarick, an employe of U.S. Steel Corp. in McKeesport, Pa., is president of USW Local 2227. He heads an insurgent faction of union members opposed to the McDonald administration.

Reached at work, Rarick commented:

"If the union wants to block me from being put on the ballot, we have plans. But I can't tell you now what these plans are until I get a complete report from the union. We'll let them play their hand first. I'm not beat yet."

Rarick secured 60 nominations in his first campaign, centered on opposition to an increase in union dues from $3 to $5 a month in 1956.

McDonald succeeded the late Philip Murray as president in 1952, and was elected to his first four-year term in 1953. He previously served as secretary-treasurer.

New Born Baby Dies

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — A baby delivered by his mother after an automobile stuck in the snow died Friday.

Joseph Ros, weighing less than three pounds, had been in an incubator since a few hours after his birth 10 days ago on a country road. His mother, Mrs. Harry Ros, 27, survived the experience remarkably well, doctors said.

The baby, several weeks premature, arrived while neighbors and Ros battled giant drifts to free the automobile. Four hours and five and a half miles later they reached a main road and took the mother and child to Community Hospital in nearby Ephrata.

Teachers To Get Salaries

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—It will be a merry Christmas for teachers at the city's two integrated schools, but most of the other 5,500 school employes faced a bleak holiday.

Four New Orleans banks bowed to a federal court order Friday and released some $728,000 of school money. A segregationist-bent legislature had frozen the funds.

The school board quickly paid about 100 employes at integrated William Frantz and McDonogh No. 19 schools and administrative school board workers.

But the $728,000 was far short of the $1.9 million needed to cover the December payroll for the rest of the city's school employes. They went payless.

Some 4,000 teachers, principals and secretaries were due their December paychecks Friday—for four weeks of work already put in. Another 1,500 maintenance workers and others were due weekly and semimonthly paychecks.

The action puts teachers at the two integrated schools in a better financial position now than those at segregated schools.

An anonymous donor gave $16,000 to pay the November salaries of teachers at Frantz and McDonogh. The legislature, which felt the teachers should boycott the schools, had withheld the money.

Checks paid Friday mean Frantz and McDonogh teachers are up to date on their salaries. Teachers at the rest of the city's schools—all segregated—are now behind one four-week period.

School Supt. James Redmond said the board would also use the newly released funds to pay audited bills from city merchants. They total $536,000.

A three-judge federal court Wednesday ordered the banks and the city of New Orleans to turn over school funds to the board. The city still holds school tax money amounting to $200,000.

For a time this week, it appeared New Orleans teachers — with the exception of those at integrated schools—would be paid by the legislature.

However, lawmakers held back paychecks after the federal court handed down contempt citations against three top state officials for interfering in integration.

Man Killed In Accident

BUTLER, Pa. (AP)—A tractor-trailer crash on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near this Butler County community Friday took the life of Edwin E. Ergenbright, 40, of Newton, Iowa.

State police said Ergenbright may have suffered a heart attack before the crash. The rig crashed through a guard rail and plunged down an embankment.

Cost Of Living Hits New High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another rise in food prices nudged living costs to a record level last month, the government reported Friday.

The consumer price index rose by less than one-tenth of 1 per cent to 127.4. The increase from October marked the eighth new high in nine months. In the index, 100 represents the average price level for 1947-48.

Since November a year ago, living costs have increased 1.4 per cent, with food accounting for more than half the rise.

This November, food prices were up two-tenths of 1 per cent whereas they almost always decline in that month. Prices of lettuce, snap beans and tomatoes advanced sharply and those of eggs and meats failed to drop nearly as much as usual for the month.

Also contributing to the November cost of living increase were higher movie prices and hikes in medical insurance premiums.

Take Home

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also reported that the average take-home pay of an average factory worker with three dependents dropped 23 cents a week in November to $80.95. This was blamed on shorter hours stemming from the business slowdown.

Coupled with the advance in living costs, the smaller paychecks meant a drop of ½ to 1 per cent in the buying power of factory workers. During the past year, earnings have risen but buying power has dropped slightly.

The November rise in the price index will mean cost-of-living wage boosts for 225,000 workers. Most are employed in the meat-packing and aircraft-missile industries, and will get increases of 2 cents an hour.

Robert J. Myers, deputy commissioner of labor statistics, told newsmen the December price outlook is for little or no change.

Myer also reported that prices of compact cars were partially incorporated in the November index for the first time.

By January, he said, compacts will account for 28 per cent of the index for new autos.

New car prices rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in November, which was much less than usual for the month. Prices of used cars continued to decline.

Kennedy Appoints New Aide

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy chose as his chief economic adviser Friday a University of Minnesota expert who wants a built-in system of adjusting taxes to business slumps and booms.

Dr. Walter W. Heller 45, who said the nation is in a recession and faced with "a basic slack in the economy," will be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. This is an agency, in the office of the president himself, which Kennedy said now will be revitalized and given larger responsibilities.

Kennedy, who has voiced concern with unemployment and a lack of economic vigor, said that shortly after he takes office on Jan. 20 "we will be discussing the condition of the economy and what steps could be profitably taken to improve that position." By the end of January, he said, it should be able to make a much better judgment on the future of the national economy.

Kennedy announced the Heller appointment with Heller at his side. The setting was the customary one for such business: a news conference in the patio of the Kennedy home.

Heller at present is chairman of the economic department at the University of Minnesota. He has been a tax and economic adviser to many agencies, national and international, for many years. Kennedy called him one of the country's most distinguished economists.

As Heller sees the economic picture now, the nation has been in a recession for six months and still is in one. He said there have been "three and a half years of lagging employment and growth" and two or three years of excessive gold outflow from the country.

He hopes, he said, to serve Kennedy in developing policies that will bring the economy back to its full potential — "back on the track of full employment and satisfactory growth."

Gromyko Expresses Hope For Friendship With U.S.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—Asserting a desire for friendly relations with the United States, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko expressed hope Friday for a turn for the better with the presidential inauguration of John F. Kennedy.

"Despite the Soviet government's sincere desire to reach mutual understanding and agreement with the American government on a number of international problems ripe for solution, nothing has yet come of it," Gromyko told the closing session of the Supreme Soviet—parliament.

"The responsibility for the failure rests wholly and entirely with the Eisenhower-Nixon administration."

"K" Applauds

Premier Khrushchev sat on the rostrum and joined in the applause, but made no speech as expected. Recently recovered from a bout with the flu, he sat for the most part with his hands folded and his eyes shut.

(In Washington, Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, scoffed at Gromyko's speech saying: "History shows that there is only one way to get along with the Kremlin and that is to succumb and surrender. I am confident that the Kennedy administration will not do that.")

"It is an open secret," Gromyko said, "that in many countries, including the United States, certain hopes are pinned on Mr. Kennedy's taking office, especially for an improvement in the relations between the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"The Soviet government, too, would like to see Soviet-American relations revert to the state they were in Franklin D. Roosevelt's time, as Nikita Khrushchev put it in his message of congratulations to the president-elect."

Gromyko said the Soviet Union wants "not just normal, but good, friendly relations with the United States." He again blamed the freezeup of Soviet-U.S. relations on the U2 spy incident and President Eisenhower's refusal to apologize.

Gromyko lashed out at "imperialism," the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the U.S. offer to furnish Polaris missiles to NATO. He again called for complete disarmament, a Khrushchev plan rejected by the West as unrealistic.

The foreign minister again referred directly to the United States in declaring a German peace treaty is the main problem in Europe. He said the Soviet Union hopes that "the United States and other Western powers will take a more sober position, taking into consideration the real state of affairs obtaining in Germany and in Europe."

Accountant Pleads Guilty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Edmund DeLuca, accountant for Dr. and Mrs. James A. Lehman, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of aiding and assisting in the preparation of false income tax returns.

DeLuca, who was arraigned in U.S. District Court before Judge John W. Lord Jr., tried to plead no defense through his attorney. But Lord would not accept the plea.

DeLuca then told the court he pleaded guilty and Lord deferred sentencing pending a pre-sentence investigation.

The accountant testified at two trials for the Lehmans that he was responsible for their filing false returns from 1953 to 1957. These returns resulted in charges of income tax evasion amounting to $283,803.

Lehman, a prominent surgeon, and his wife, Adelaide, were found innocent of these charges at their second trial, which ended Dec. 10. The first ended in a hung jury.

Lawrence Seen Mum On Ike

HARRISBURG (AP) — Rep. Willard F. Agnew Jr., new House Republican floor leader, said Friday Gov. David L. Lawrence has not told Pennsylvanians how much financial aid the stat has received from the Eisenhower Administration.

The Allegheny County attorney said in a statement that the governor's budget office issued a report of federal subsidies to the state in the last 10 years Nov. 18, but did not make it public.

Agnew said a copy was sent to his office, adding:

"I can well understand why Gov. Lawrence kept this report under wraps until after Election Day, since it was part of his campaign strategy to belittle the contributions of the Eisenhower Administration to Pennsylvania.

"Since no apparent effort has been made by Lawrence's budget bureau to make their report public, I will comment on it myself."

The Pittsburgh attorney said federal contributions to Pennsylvania in fiscal 1959 totaled $250,639,390 for 67 different state programs.

"I call attention to these facts and figures because I believe the public should know about the scope and extent of federal aid toward the operation of our state government, which during seven years of the Eisenhower Administration amounted to $1,072,589,945," Agnew added.

Agnew recently was chosen by House Republicans to be the minority floor leader in the 1961 session of the legislature.

Union Aide Is Facing Embezzling

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A warrant was issued Friday charging Theodore P. O'Keefe with embezzling $18,392 from the treasury of the State Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners over the past three years.

O'Keefe, 54, was secretary-treasurer of the council since 1943, until he was discharged about a month ago.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Jack Myers said union officials started checking into the council funds when a check for $10,000 to the union's national headquarters bounced Oct. 24. The check was for reimbursement of half of O'Keefe's salary and expenses.

About the same time, O'Keefe allegedly failed to bring his books to the council's state meeting in Scranton.

Myers said O'Keefe is slated to surrender for a Dec. 30 hearing before Magistrate Harry J. Ellick. Ellick issued a warrant Friday.

The assistant disfrict attorney said the hearing has been delayed to permit some council officials to be on hand.

Two Women Fool French Aides

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — Two women who fooled both civil and religious authorities and married each other were sentenced Friday to a year in prison.

Ginette Ferroni, 42, a former theater director, and Bernadette Unvois, 24, her secretary, were "married" last September. They had appropriated identification papers belonging to Philippe Mackaert.

France has no law forbidding marriage between persons of the same sex, so the women were accused of making false statements and using a false birth certificate. They were ordered to pay 500 francs—$100—each to Mackaert in damages.

Bumper Crop

TOKYO (AP)—Japan is again headed for a bumper rice crop.

The Agriculture-Forestry Ministry said Friday this year's expected harvest is an all-time high of 12,838,000 tons. The estimate is over 350,000 tons more than the previous high of 12,501,000 harvested last year.

Market Carves Out Gain

NEW YORK (AP)—In turbulent pre-Christmas weekend trading the stock market managed to carve out a slight statistical gain Friday.

A number of specially situated stocks were strong but most key issues showed small changes, chiefly within a 1-point range.

United Fruit, up 3⅞ to 19⅝, and Studebaker-Packard, up 1¾ to 8⅜, were big percentage gainers and stood out as surprise performers on a day when the market was treading cautiously.

Rails were responsible for the slight over-all gain in the Associated Press average.

Steels were mostly lower and autos were mixed. Aircrafts, airlines, tobaccos and most chemicals were on the downside.

United Fruit was the day's most active issue on turnover of 147,300 shares.

Eleven of the 15 most active stocks rose, three declined and was unchanged, General Motors.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped .08 to 613.23.

The AP 60-stock average was up .20 to 219.10 with the industrials down .20, rails up .80 and utilities unchanged.

Just Between Us——

—By Bobby Westbrook

Am I ready for Christmas? You know me better than that. We couldn't be more un-ready. The water pipes froze up in the cellar so the breakfast dishes aren't done. When they finally were thawed out, I blew a fuse trying to plug in an old electric heater to keep them from freezing again.

I hid some of the presents so effectively that I can't find them at all, but succeeded in mussing up every drawer in the house looking for them.

The furnace is fighting a valiant but losing battle against the cold with a draft through the house that makes the silver rain on the Christmas tree stream out sideways and has all the kids fighting for a place on the register.

Somebody's always taking out the ice cube trays, removing one hunk of ice, and then let the rest melt so, despite the cold, all we have to offer guests is warm coke.

Oh — you didn't mean was the house ready for Christmas—you wondered whether I was ready? That's different. I'll be ready at 1 o'clock this afternoon when the last member of the family is due to arrive.

Nothing really matters but that: not the house, nor the food, nor the gifts, nor the decorations. When every bed in the house has an occupant; when every chair is taken and they start sitting on the floor;

When the house is filled with the smell of spruce and popcorn and wet boots scorching somewhere; when it is echoing with laughter and arguments and secrets.

When those I love are safe and home and near enough to see and touch — then I AM ready for Christmas and filled with a peace that passeth understanding.

Alone On Christmas? Don't Brood, Do Act

By Anne Heywood

When faced with a problem, I have come to the conclusion that it is better to do something than to do nothing.

One of my favorite examples of this involves a lonely career girl whom I have just heard about from the superintendent of the apartment house in which I live.

Far From Home

We were talking about Christmas and how difficult it is for people who are far away from home and alone in the big city at that home. He told me about a young woman who solved that problem in a very interesting way.

"It was my first job as a superintendent in an apartment," he said.

"I had a three-room apartment on the ground floor which went with the job, and I was miles away from home—I had been brought up on a farm."

Knew Tenants

"I knew most of the tenants by sight, if not by name, and a few I really knew from having made repairs in their apartments and so forth.

"It was an old - fashioned building with three apartments on each floor, ten floors, and a kind of rickety self-service elevator.

"None of the tenants knew each other except to nod in the elevator. It was downtown in a big city and most of them were working people — some married and some unmarried. A good many had families nearby and went away for the holidays.

Envied Them

"I remember there was quite a bustle of suitcases and cabs then, and I would look at the departing ones with a not-very-well-hidden envy.

"About three days before Christmas, I saw a sign that had been put up with tape in the elevator. It was against the house rules to post such signs and I was taking it down when I gave it a really good look.

"It was made of green blotting paper, with holly sprigs in each corner. It said:

"'I am lonely at Christmas time, and will be having a small turkey in my apartment, 2-A. If anyone else feels the same way, they are welcome to join me, bringing cranberry sauce, mashed turnips or whatever. If interested, please call.'

"There was a phone number.

"Much to my surprise, I found myself thinking 'Why not?'. Otherwise I would either be going out to dinner alone on

She Helped Wrap Christmas Packages For Needy People

Christmas or ending up eating alone in my apartment.

Eleven Came

"The long and the short of it is that eleven of us got together in apartment 2-A, each bringing something, and we had the time of our lives."

I think that this is a particularly good example of coping with a problem the direct and practical way.

Volunteered To Help

Another person I know got in touch with a neighborhood church, which she had never attended, and volunteered to help wrap the presents for the baskets for the poor which the church gave away.

She ended up having a wonderful Christmas, participating in many activities with the people of the church.

If you find yourself alone at Christmas time, do remember that it is better to do something about it than to sit in your room weeping over the situation.

One Troop Makes Favors; Other Fills Them

Happy snowmen favors will carry the greetings from the Brownies of Troop 25 who made them to be placed on the Christmas trays for the patients in the Monroe County General Hospital.

Mrs. Guy P. Dean III and Mrs. John Stokes are leaders of the busy troop which includes Linda Berman, Renee Dean, Robin Edinger, Sarah Ann Frantz, Marsha Johnson, Karen Jones, Kathleen Palmer, Carol Stokes, Jane Torzillo, Marilyn Young and Christine Winters.

The Brownies of Troop 1 are leanding a helping hand by supplying the candy mints for the tray favors. Mrs. Boyd Chapman, Mrs. Charles Strunk and Mrs. William Wells are leaders of Troop 1.

Mexican Appetizer For New 'Dip'

Around this time of year with open houses and friends dropping in informally, hostesses are running out of ideas for new "dips" to serve with crackers, potato chips.

Just in time comes a Mexican recipe, guacamole, which teams up well with corn chips.

Guacamole

2 medium-sized avocados
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 small onion (or more)
Pimiento strips
Corn chips

Peel and mash ripe avocados and mix with lemon juice and salt. Add finely grated onion, including both pulp and juice. Turn into serving dish; garnish with pimiento. Serve with corn chips to dunk into mixture.

Chris Back In Christmas For The Michaels Children

Bushkill — The "Chris" is back in Christmas for the three Michaels children: Tommy, Kathy and Cyndy. Their collie, named Chris for Christmas which is when they got him last year, was shot by a careless hunter within sight of their home.

Their heart-broken report, in rhyme, in the Daily Record brought not only sympathy but a new Sheltie Collie, given to them by a reader who felt their loss as personal. The children have responded:

"We are three small children,
Happy as can be
For someone, oh, so very kind
has put Chris back in Christmas.
In time to trim our tree.
He's just a tiny puppy, a ball
of soft brown fur,
But full of vim and vigor.
But he'll make us dance a jig
as he grows strong and bigger.
Right now though, he's big enough to fill the gap
That filled our hearts two weeks ago
When Our other Chris could not come back.
So with our love and a great big kiss
We are sending to the donor
Our heart-felt thanks and a
New Year filled with joy."

(Signed) Tommy, Kathy
and Cyndy Michaels

"P.S. And our many thanks to another fine couple who also wished to replace our loss with another puppy. The kind people in this world outweigh the heartless by a large majority, not only at Christmas but at all times, and they, too, shall reap their reward in time."

Novelties Mark Sophomore Bake Sale

Newfoundland — More than 10,000 cookies and 50 coffee cakes were baked by the mothers of sophomore class students and class members at Southern Wayne Joint School under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Rochfort, Sterling.

The products of the school kitchen, turned out during the nights - and - Saturdays baking marathons, were sold by the senior class.

The coffee cakes were unique in that they bore whatever legend the purchaser requested. Many read, "Merry Christmas," and some were frosted with the names of the recipients.

The prize, however, went to Mrs. Rochfort for her solution to the problem posed by Willis "Bill" Gilpin, Newfoundland pharmacist, who is a Civil War "buff." Bill requested that his coffeecake bear the Gettysburg Address.

It took Mrs. Rochfort only a minute to comply with his order. She inscribed the cake, "D. D. Eisenhower, Gettysburg, Pa.," and attached a note: "This is the only address in Gettysburg that I know!"

"the friendly store"
A.R. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Big cities are wonderful . . . exciting and thrilling, with their buildings that tower overhead in a lofty attempt to reach the Stars. But each December, as Christmas nears, I find myself enraptured anew by little towns—villages such as we have here in our own county . . . Shawnee, for instance, where the pretty Community Hall is covered with snow, and the towering community tree peers with red and green eyes into the gathering twilight.

Little towns are sometimes considered slightly comic and ridiculous by the sophisticated. Some amuse themselves—often forgetting their own Little Town origins—by mocking the peaceful, picture-post-card prettiness of quiet streets and lanes where snow can spread like a thick, white velvet carpet for long hours without being foot-marked. Such things as carollers in the night . . . parties in the Grange Hall, where nothing more risque than a quick kiss beneath the mistletoe occurs, are quaint and laughable to those who consider Christmas a time for clinking highball glasses at flirtatiously gay office parties.

But I never under-rate the little town. I hum a carol about the little town of Bethlehem, and remember that God selected a little town as the birthplace of His Son. I admit that Bethlehem, with its Inn, was probably quite a city by the standards of two thousand years ago . . . but somehow I feel in my heart that if the Christ Child were to have been born today, His birth would not take place in the shadows of the Empire State Building, but in some quiet, remote little place where awe would still surround the coming of the Wise Men with their gifts of gold . . . incense . . . and myrrh. What Wise Men would have gifts sufficiently impressive to cause even a stir in a great city, where the poor are accustomed to seeing the rich ride by in chauffeured cars, and store windows bulging with jewels a Maharajah might covet?

Christmas, I feel, is particularly wonderful in a little town . . . just as it is particularly wonderful to the pure of heart with the unquestioning mind of a child. It is a time when all of us should feel treasured and loved . . . as protected and warmed by the affection of family and friends as the Christ Child was, shielded and comforted by the cloak and embrace of Mary. It is easy, in a little town, to feel the nearness of one's friends . . . it is possible to be cheered by their smiles, warmed by their glance, made secure by their words. These gifts are more to be treasured than packages beneath the tree.

So, at Christmas I am especially glad to be here . . . in a little town, knowing that my roots are here, and that far-flung places have lost much of the appeal they once held. One's troubles are never quite so heavy when friends are near: one's joys are never so great as when friends can share them. It is from my heart then that I express gratitude to all of you for kindnesses and understanding, and that I wish you the deepest joys of the season and, in the year to come, the fulfillment of your dearest desires.

It is my pleasure also to extend these greetings in behalf of the entire Wyckoff store family. Ours may be small towns in this area of Pennsylvania . . . but they are filled with wonderful people, and, as "the silent stars go by" tonight above your "deep and dreamless sleep," may the Christ Child be born anew into your lives, bringing blessings innumerable.

Almost Blow Big Leads

Stroud Union Holds On To Beat Cavaliers, 57-52

STROUD UNION High School had to fight off a stubborn last period rally by East Stroudsburg, to claim a 57-52 win at East Stroudsburg Friday night, in the first of two inter-borough games.

In the end, it was the Mountaineers' ability to hit clutch foul shots and the Cavaliers lack of it that made the difference.

Neither team was able to hit 50 percent of its fouls but in the final three minutes the Mountaineers connected on five of seven free throw chances and East Stroudsburg made good on only two of 10.

Poor Third

It was a close game except for the third quarter, when Stroud Union colected 16 points and the Cavaliers managed only six.

Mike McMahon, who ended with 22 points, the high of the game, kept the Mountaineers in front most of the night.

McMahon, the only holdover starter at Stroud Union from last year, hit almost 75 percent of his shots and connected on five straight in one stretch.

The big senior had the most success with a fall away jump shot after spinning out of the pivot.

Fellman Gets 16

Jack Fellman posted 16 for the Cavaliers and Glenn Kane added 16. The pair teamed for 16 of East Stroudsburg's 26 points in the final frame.

A fourth period full court press that almost backfired, finally began to pay off for the Caviaiers midway through the last period. The press cut the Mounties' lead from 12 to two points with three minutes remaining in the game. They never came closer, as they were hit by foul shooting blues.

Neither team could gain much of an advantage in the first period. Kitson's jumper from the key opened the scoring.

Both teams added 10-point second periods.

The Cavaliers never got started in the third quarter. It took them four minutes to get their first point and another four to add four more.

Pull Away

Stroud Union, with McMahon and John Baylor colected six points each, pulled to a 12-point lead at the end of the period.

The Cavaligrs did little to chop the margin down and had no success with their press defense. But the Eastburgers kept the pressure on and it finally began to pay off.

In a two-minute span, the Cavaliers dumped in 13 points, while Stroud Union hit only three. With 2:50 second left the Cavaliers' Brian Farris hit a foul shot to make it 46-44, Stroud Union.

But then Kitson went to work. He canned both ends of a one-and-one situation and seconds later added another foul shot after Farris was slammed into him going for a loose ball.

Rebuild Lead

With 1:50 left Stroud Union had built its lead back up to nine, 55-46, mainly on foul shots and easy lay-ups on the end of fast breaks.

For American Football Coaches

Baldwin Heads National Football Clinic Set-Up

MARTY Baldwin of Stroudsburg, has been named general manager of the eight "coach-of-the-year" football clinics to be sponsored by the American Football Coaches Assn. early next year.

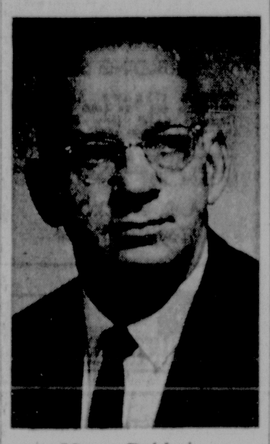
Baldwin, who has handled the Eastern Pennsylvania Scholastic Coaches Assn. Clinic at East Stroudsburg State College for 18 years, was a unanimous choice by the coaches group to set up the cross-country clinics.

Clinics will be held in Santa Monica, Cal., Grand Rapids, Mich., Dallas, Texas, Kansas City, Mo., Birmingham, Ala., Springfield, Mass., Harrisburg and Raleigh, N. C. The Harrisburg clinic may be shifted to Hershey.

First In California

The clinics for both high school and college coaches will be held on Friday and Saturday. The first is scheduled Feb. 12-13 at Santa Monica and the last March 31-April 1 in Raleigh.

Clinic directors in each of the eight cities will assist Baldwin.



Marty Baldwin

Clinic participants will include Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma; Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State; Murray Duke; Frank Broyles, University of Arkansas, Dan Devine, University of Missouri, Paul "Bear" Bryant, University of Alabama and Chalmers "Bump" Elliott, University of Michigan. All but Wilkinson and Daugherty were picked as "Coach of the Year" from their own area by the Association.

Wilkinson and Daugherty, along with the Association's "Coach of the Year," will instruct at each clinic. Warmth whose Minensota Gophers were voted the number one team in the country, is the leading candidate for the "Coach of the Year," honor. The award will be announced Jan. 11.

The other coaches will appear at the clinic in their territory. For instance, Hess, who was picked as the "Coach of the Year" for District 2 of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and New Jersey), will be assigned to the Harrisburg clinic.

Game films and demonstrations at each clinic will cover the latest developments in offensive and defensive football and drill techniques. One of the features of the clinic will be conference rooms set up for cinicians to discuss individual problems after they have finished their instruction.

Dallas Is Largest

According to Baldwin the Dallas clinic will probably be the largest with about 1,500 coaches attending.

"We expect 1,200 at Santa Monica and more than 1,000 at Grand Rapids," said Baldwin.

Baldwin added: "Since the headquarters for this nation-wide set-up is in the Poconos, it will mean a great deal to our area. All the printing, mailing and banking for each clinic will be done here, not to mention the publicity the Stroudsburgs will receive."

Baldwin, one of the pioneers of large scale football clinics, is the general manager of Olympic Reconditioning Co. in East Stroudsburg. He is also the president of the Pocono Touchdown Club and a graduate of East Stroudsburg State College.

The Coach of the Year clinics are the first nation-wide clinics to be held.

Pressure Could Be Important Monday

NORM VAN BROCKLIN and Chuck Bednarik have both been in the National Football League for 12 years and if it is possible to be immune to pressure, these two should qualify.

Game after game this year Van Brocklin provided the "bomb" the Philadelphia Eagles needed to win and Bednarik, the only Ivy League graduate in the NFL, played on both offense and defense when linebacker Bob Pellegrini was injured.

Pellegrini is injured again and Bednarik will have to play both offensive center and defensive linebacker when the Eagles face the Green Bay Packers Monday for the league championship at Franklin Feld. Not only will it put pressure on Bednarik mentally but what may be more important, the physical pressure will be just as great.

Bednarik will be the oldest player on the field Monday. At 35, Bednarik, who played his high school football at Bethlehem High, needs his rest.

Every Little Bit Helps

In the Eagles second game against the Giants this year, the Eagles got possession of the ball with 24 seconds left in the third quarter. And since a team is allowed 25 seconds to put the ball in play, Bednarik suggested to Van Brocklin that the club use up all its time in the huddle and start the final period with almost an extra half minute rest.

But surprisingly enough, the Eagles are a fourth period club, even though three of their best offensive performers, Bednarik, Van Brocklin and Bob Walston are more than 30 years old and Pete Retzlaff is 29.

The Eagles have almost tripled the number of points scored by opponents in the fourth quarter. The second period is the only other quarter in which the Eagles hold a scoring edge and its is only a 78-62 point margin.

Dutchman In Unique Position

Van Brocklin is in the unique position of not getting the credit if the Eagles win Monday's game and being the goat if they don't.

As the Jim Thorpe Trophy Winner this year (given to the League's Most Valuable Player,) Van Brocklin is expected to connect for two touchdown passes a game, his season average and three TD passes would not startle too many observers.

But if Van Brocklin has a bad day and in fairness it must be said that he is due for one, the Dutchmen would get the blame for the loss.

Wire reports have blown up the Eagles' rushing defense weakness but the Birds weak rushing offense has gone unnoticed, which means its Van Brocklin or else.

The Eagles have scored only nine touchdowns on the ground while getting 29 through the air. Only one Eagle TD run was more than 50 yards.

Peaks Leads Meager Ground Game

Clarence Peaks, the Eagles leading ground gainer before he was injured, may be back Monday although he is not expected to start. If Peaks returns, the running game gets a slight boost. The former Michigan Stater averages 5.4 yards on 86 carries. None of the other Eagle regulars has better than a 2.7 yards per carry mark.

The Packers supposedly have a weak pass defense but they are only eight interceptions behind the Eagles, who led the league in that department.

So as the saying goes, "Norm, Norm, he's our man, if he can't do it, no one can.". It's not an original cheer but it could be worth $8,000 to the Eagles Monday.

THE Monday Night bowling league of the American Legion has cancelled Monday's matches.

Sick Kids Melt Down Grid Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dave is a 2-year-old butterball of a boy. First sight of the blond cutie makes you instructively want to grab him up and squeeze him.

Caron is a pensive girl of 4, a bit too thin, and with the biggest, prettiest brown eyes you ever saw.

Friday Dave and Caron met two hulking terrors of the college gridiron. Quicker than you can kick a football, these children melted them down into utter tenderness.

The heart-clutching scene was the wards for crippled children in Shriner's Hospital. There, 48 college football stars who will play for the East and West Dec. 31 saw first-hand the meaning of the game's motto: "Strong legs run that weak legs may walk."

Hammer Hoists

All-America end Mike Ditka, nicknamed "the Hammer," hoisted chubby Dave more than 6 feet aloft with big hands that made brilliant catches of passes for the University of Pittsburgh.

Dave's malformed hand—which has to be replaced soon by an artificial one — clutched Pitt's blue and gold colors between the only two fingers he had.

Ditka started to pass Dave over to Earl Faison, another end from the University of Indiana.

Dave broke into sobs.

"He wants you, boy; you keep him," Faison said.

Ditka chucked Dave on the chin, gave him a careful hug and said, "I've still got you, Dave."

Instantly a smile curbed the flow of the tears.

Butts Quits Coaching Job At Georgia U.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Wallace Butts has resigned as head football coach at the University of Georgia but will continue in the post of athletic director.

Butts, 55, dean of Southeastern Conference coaches, considered retirement last year after his Bulldogs won the SEC championship and an Orange Bowl victory over Missouri.

The little round man, who led Georgia to 140 victores against 86 defeats and 9 ties, was in Montgomery, Ala., Friday for coaching duties in the Blue-Gray All-Star game Dec. 31.

"I've thought about it for a long time," Butts said in Montgomery, "and I figure I've been under that pressure long enough. I think it would affect my health if I continue."

He said: "After 22 years as Georgia's coach it's time to start thinking about my health. And I think I can be helpful to the University of Georgia devoting full-time to being athletic director."

Butts said he did not know who will succeed him and that he will remain as football coach until his successor is named.

Champion Eagles Started To Revamp Back In 1957

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—How do you take a team from last place in 1958 to first in 1960—with mirrors?

"No, with a quarterback and a coach," says Vince McNally, whose Philadelphia Eagles meet the Green Bay Packers here Monday for the National Football League title.

McNally, Eagles' general manager, said he decided after the 1957 season the Eagles had to clean house, coaches and players alike.

"I made three trips to California to try to sign Buck Shaw as head coach," he said. "Finally, Shaw signed.

"I wasn't home from the coast 4 hours when my telephone rang. It was Buck. 'Oh God, here I signed up and I don't even have a quarterback,' he said. 'How do you expect me to win in this league without a quarterback?' "

McNally said he told Shaw not to worry, he'd have a quarterback.

"Frankly, I didn't know where I was going to get one. Bobby Thomason had retired, which left us high and dry. Then I heard scuttlebutt through the grapevine that the (Los Angeles) Rams were thinking of trading (Norm) Van Brocklin.

"I made six or seven telephone calls and finally went to see (Pete) Rozelle (then general manager of the Rams). I beat Pittsburgh to the deal only because I had a first draft choice to trade and the Steelers didn't."

McNally also gave the Rams two players for Van Brocklin. He called Shaw in California and told him, "You have a quarterback. 'Who?' he asked me. Van Brocklin. 'Wonderful, now we're in business,' he said."

Shaw came east, took a look at the Eagles roster and made up three lists, one a nucleus he wanted to keep, the second a group he wanted improved and the third a number of players to get rid of.

The Eagles finished last in 1958 with a 2-9-1 record, but the rebuilding job was begun. In the next two seasons, McNally bought from or traded with every club in the league but Cleveland and Pittsburgh and made several key draft choices.

Pete Retzlaff was a $100 steal from Detroit, Jim McCusker and Chuck Weber came from the Cardinals, Gerry Huth was obtained from New York, former Bear Joe Robb, and ex-Redskin Ed Khayat signed as free agents. Marion Campbell arrived from the 49ers, Bobby Freeman from Green Bay, Don Burroughs from the Rams, Jim Carr via Baltimore and Tim Brown from Green Bay.

Williams Hikes Scoring Mark

TED WILLIAMS, Michigan State University center, and former Stroud Union High basketballer, has boosted his Spartan scoring average to 10.5 points a game.

The 6-7 Williams, is the fourth leading scorer on the club, which has a 3-2 record. He also has a 10.5 rebound average.

Remove Our Faults Now, Ike Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower asked Americans Friday to make the Christmas season a time of dedication to remove imperfections from the nation. He deplored denial of equal political and economic opportunity because of prejudice or race.

In a speech prepared for the lighting of the national Christmas tree, the President said that despite the material comforts which bless this country, "we see blots and blemishes that mar the picture of a nation of people who devoutly believe that they were created in the image of their maker."

"Too often," he continued, "we discern an apathy toward violations of law and standards of public and private integrity.

"When, through bitter prejudice and because of differences in skin pigmentation, individuals cannot enjoy equality of political and economic opportunity, we see another of these imperfections, one that is equally plain to those living beyond our borders.

"Whenever there is denied the right of anyone, because he dares to live by the moral code, to earn for himself and his family a living, this failing too, is a blot on the brightness of America's image."

The President said America will never cease to remove the blemishes on her own reflection, but that this is not to be achieved by laws alone.

"Laws, to be truly effective, must command the respect and earnest support of public opinion, both generally and locally," he said. "And each of us helps form public opinion.

"Before us, then, is a task that each must himself define and himself perform. Good it is that Christmas helps make us aware of our imperfections. Better it is that we rededicate ourselves to the work of their eradication."

Christmas Fills White House Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — Christmas filled the air Friday at the White House, abustle with some 200 tourists in the morning and then 400 children at an afternoon party.

The big mansion itself was a Christmas card picture with a snow-covered lawn and big green holiday wreaths at the front windows.

Mamie Eisenhower invited the children to her annual Christmas party for the sons and daughters of White House and executive office workers.

Dressed in their Sunday best, the boys and girls, along with many parents, had their party in the ballroom. There was a big toy Santa Claus beside a tree that stretched from the floor to the high ceiling and twinkled with white lights.

A smaller group of children whose parents are personal friends of the Eisenhowers went to the White House at noon for an hour-long party.

Tourists Come

The tourists came from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, shuffling their snow boots and galoshes as quietly as they could through the marble corridors of the first floor.

The children gazed wide-eyed at he big columns entwined with artificial holly, the poinsettias banked in the rooms, the shining chandeliers, the tiny lights flickering among the greenery.

The Eisenhowers have their family Christmas tree on the second floor and it sends a friendly glow of colored lights through the upstairs window.

The family will be at the White House for Christmas with the four young grandchildren.

Mrs. Eisenhower directed the Christmas decorating.

Scientists Call For Air Research

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Scientists at the University of Michigan called Friday for a massive program of long-range research on the nation's air traffic control systems.

They warned that airplane disasters can be expected to continue—and even increase—unless such a program is started immediately.

The warning came simultaneously with the announcement that the university's Institute of Science and Technology has begun its own independent study of the subject.

Dr. Gustave Rabson expressed a fear that without a long-range study the nation may be "stampeded into hunting for another rough-and-ready solution to its air traffic control problems."

Sympathy Extended To Family

CHICAGO (AP)—Two young California boys turned from their pre-Christmas excitement to send a letter of sympathy and two weeks allowance to the family of Stephen Baltz.

Stephen was the 11-year-old lad who won the hearts of the nation during his 26-hour battle for life after being mortally injured in the collision of two planes over New York City Dec. 16, which resulted in 136 deaths.

"We want to tell you how sorry we are about your little boy Stephen," wrote Stephen Brady, 10, and his brother, Jim, 7, sons of a Gridley, Calif., policeman. "But we no (sic) he will have a nice Christmas in heaven with Jesus."

In their letter, received yesterday, the boys explained to Mr. and Mrs. Baltz, and the Baltz's son, William Jr., 4, and daughter, Randee, 8, that the enclosed two dollars were for flowers for Stephen.

They wished the Baltzes a "nice Christmas," and added they hoped they themselves would get a "fishen pole or B-B gun."

John was arrested Dec. 4 for breaking a window in a Columbus jewelry store and making off with jewelry valued at $256.

While awaiting grand jury action, he asked Prosecutor Earl Allison to see that he was indicted quickly and sentenced to the penitentiary so he could have his Christmas dinner with friends. He had served time previously in the penitentiary and at Mansfield Reformatory.

He was indicted Wednesday and arraigned Thursday. When he pleaded guilty, his sentencing followed. Authorities said he would be take to the penitentiary immediately.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM THE CLASSIFIED ADV. GANG

Ban On JFK's Golf Continues

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A ban on photographs of President-elect John F. Kennedy playing golf — and he's been playing frequently—will be continued until he is inaugurated Jan. 20, a spokesman said yesterday.

Kennedy's press secretary Piere Salinger replied "no, no" when asked whether the ban is an effort to avoid what a reporter called the kind of criticism which Democrats have fired at President Eisenhower for golfing so much.

Salinger indicated the ban will be lifted from time to time after Kennedy takes office.

Asked the reason for the prohibition against golf photographs until after inauguration, Salinger spoke of it as a policy of avoiding intrusion in the president-elect's leisure activities.

Neither reporters nor photographers ever have had a free hand in coverage of Eisenhower's golf. Many times they were not permitted on the course when the President played but on a good many other occasions picture and news coverage was permitted.

ON THE MORNING OF CHRIST'S NATIVITY

By

John Milton

On December of 1629, John Milton, now renowned English poet composed this poem as a "birthday gift to Christ." Although Milton was then only a senior student at Cambridge, this poem already showed the seriousness and loftiness which he was later to polish to mastery.

This is the month, and this the happy morn,
Wherein the Son of Heaven's eternal King,
Of wedded Maid and Virgin Mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring;
For so the holy sages once did sing,
That he our deadly forfeit should release,
And with his Father work us a perpetual peace.

That glorious form, that light unsufferable,
And that far-beaming blaze of majesty,
Wherewith he wont at Heaven's high council-table
To sit the midst of Trinal Unity,
He laid aside, and, here with us to be,
Forsook the courts of everlasting day,
And chose with us a darksome house of mortal clay.

Say, Heavenly Muse, shall not thy sacred vein
Afford a present to the Infant God?
Hast thou no verse, no hymn, or solemn strain,
To welcome him to this his new abode,
Now while the heaven, by the sun's team untrod,
Hath took no print of the approaching light,
And all the spangled host keep watch in squadrons bright?

See how from far upon the eastern road
The star-led wizards haste with odours sweet!
Oh! run; prevent them with thy humble ode.
And lay it lowly at his blessed feet;
Have thou the honour first thy Lord to greet,
And join thy voice unto the angel quire,
From out his secret altar touched with hallowed fire.

THE HYMN

It was the winter wild,
While the Heaven-born Child
All meanly wrapt in the rude manger lies;
Nature in awe to him
Had doffed her gaudy trim,
With her great Master so to sympathize;
It was no season for her
To wanton with the sun her lusty paramour.

Only with speeches fair
She woos the gentle air
To hide her guilty front with innocent snow,
And on her naked shame,
Pollute with sinful blame,
The saintly veil of maiden white to throw,
Confounded, that her Maker's eyes
Should look so near upon her foul deformities.

But he, her fears to cease,
Sent down the meek-eyed Peace;
She crowned with olive green came softly sliding
Down through the turning sphere,
His ready harbinger,
With turtle wing the amorous clouds dividing,
And waving wide her myrtle wand,
She strikes a universal peace through sea and land.

No war, or battle's sound,
Was heard the world around;
The idle spear and shield were high uphung;
The hooked chariot stood,
Unstained with hostile blood;
The trumpet spake not to the armed throng;
And kings sat still with awful eye,
As if they surely knew their sovran Lord was by.

But peaceful was the night
Wherein the Prince of Light,
His reign of peace upon the earth began.
The winds, with wonder whist,
Smoothly the waters kissed,
Whispering new joys to the mild ocean,
Who now hath quite forgot to rave,
While birds of calm sit brooding on the charmed wave.

The stars, with deep amaze,
Stand fixed in steadfast gaze,
Bending one way their precious influence,
And will not take their flight,
For all the morning light,
Or Lucifer that often warned them thence;
But in their glimmering orbs did glow,
Until their Lord himself bespake, and bid them go.

And, though the shady gloom
Had given day her room,
The sun himself withheld his wanted speed,
And hid his head for shame,
As his inferior flame
The new-enlightened world no more should need;
He saw a greater Sun appear
Than his bright throne or burning axletree could bear.

The shepherds on the lawn,
Or ere the point of dawn,
Sat simply chatting in a rustic row;
Full little thought they than
That the mighty Pan
Was kindly come to live with them below;
Perhaps their loves or else their sheep,
Was all that did their silly thoughts so busy keep.

When such music sweet
Their hearts and ears did greet,
As never was by mortal finger strook,
Divinely warbled voice
Answering the stringed noise,
As all their souls in blissful rapture took;
The air such pleasure loth to lose,
With thousand echoes still prolongs each heavenly close.

Nature that heard such sound
Beneath the hollow round
Of cynthia's seat, the airy region thrilling,
Now was almost won
To think her part was done,
And that her reign had here its last fulfilling;
She knew such harmony alone
Could hold all Heaven and Earth in happier union.

At last surrounds their sight
A globe of circular light,
That with long beams the shame-faced night arrayed;
The helmed cherubim
And sworded seraphim
Are seen in glittering ranks with wings displayed,
Harping in loud and solemn quire,
With unexpressive notes to Heaven's new-born Heir.

Such music (as 'tis said)
Before was never made,
But when of old the Sons of Morning sung,
While the Creator great
His constellations set,
And the well-balanced world on hinges hung,
And cast the dark foundations deep,
And bid the weltering waves their oozy channel keep.

Ring out, ye crystal spheres;
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to touch our senses so;
And let your silver chime
Move in melodious time;
And let the bass of heaven's deep organ blow;
And with your ninefold harmony
Make up full consort to the angelic symphony.

For, if such holy song
Enwrap our fancy long,
Time will run back and fetch the Age of Gold;
And speckled Vanity
Will sicken soon and die;
And leprous Sin will melt from earthly mould;
And Hell itself will pass away,
And leave her dolorous mansions to the peering day.

Yea, Truth and Justice then
Will down return to men,
Orbed in a rainbow; and, like glories wearing,
Mercy will sit between,
Throned in celestial sheen,
With radiant feet the tissued clouds down steering;
And Heaven, as at some festival,
Will open wide the gates of her high palace-hall.

But wisest Fate says No,
This must not yet be so,
The Babe lies yet in smiling infancy,
That on the bitter cross
Must redeem our loss,
So both himself and us to glorify;
Yet first to those ychained in sleep,
The wakeful trump of doom must thunder through the deep,

With such a horrid clang
As on Mount Sinai rang,
While the red fire and smould'ring clouds outbrake:
The aged Earth aghast
With terror of that blast
Shall from the surface to the centre shake;
When at the world's last session,
The dreadful Judge in middle air shall spread his throne.

And then at last our bliss
Full and perfect is,
But now begins; for from this happy day
The old Dragon under ground
In straiter limits bound,
Not half so far casts his usurped sway,
And, wroth to see his kingdom fail,
Swings the scaly horror of his folded tail.

The oracles are dumb,
No voice or hideous hum
Runs through the arched roof in words deceiving.
Apollo from his shrine
Can no more divine,
With hollow shriek the steep of Delphos leaving.
No nightly trance or breathed spell
Inspires the pale-eyed priest from the prophetic cell.

The lonely mountains o'er,
And the resounding shore,
A voice of weeping heard, and loud lament;
From haunted spring and dale,
Edged with poplar pale,
The parting Genius is with sighing sent,
With flower-inwoven tresses torn
The nymphs in twilight shade of tangled thickets mourn.

In consecrated earth,
And on the holy hearth,
The Lars and Lemures moan with midnight plaint;
In urns and altars round,
A drear and dying sound
Affrights the Flamens at their service quaint;
And the chill marble seems to sweat,
While each peculiar power forgoes his wonted seat.

Peor and Baalim
Forsake their temples dim,
With that twice-battered god of Palestine;
And mooned Ashtaroth,
Heaven's queen and mother both,
Now sits not girth with tapers' holy shine;
The Libyc Hammon shrinks his horn,
In vain the Tyrian maids their wounded Thammuz mourn.

And sullen Moloch fled,
Hath left in shadows dread
His burning idol all of blackest hue:
In vain with cymbals' ring
They call the grisly king,
In dismal dance about the furnace blue;
The brutish gods of Nile as fast,
Isis and Orus, and the dog Anubis, haste.

Nor is Osiris seen
In Memphian grove or green,
Trampling the unshowered grass with lowings loud;
Nor can he be at rest
Within his sacred chest;
Nought but profoundest Hell can be his shroud,
In vain, with timbrelled anthems dark,
The sable-stoled sorcerers bear his worshipped ark.

He feels from Juda's land
The dreaded Infant's hand:
The rays of Bethlehem blind his dusky eyn;
Nor all the gods beside
Longer dare abide,
Not Typhon huge ending in snaky twine:
Our Babe, to show his Godhead true,
Can in his swaddling bands control the damned crew.

So, when the sun in bed,
Curtained with cloudy red,
Pillows his chin upon an orient wave,
The flocking shadows pale
Troop to the infernal jail,
Each fettered ghost slips to his several grave,
And the yellow-skirted fays
Fly after the night-steeds, leaving their moon-loved maze.

But see! the Virgin blest
Hath laid her Babe to rest.
Time is our tedious song should here have ending:
Heaven's youngest-teemed star
Hath fixed her polished car,
Her sleeping Lord with handmaid lamp attending:
And all about the courtly stable
Bright-harnessed angels sit in order serviceable.

Dear Abby

I Can't Buy This

Dear Abby: Please don't think I am stupid, but is there really any such thing as sleepwalking or is that something people joke about? My husband was put on a 1000-calorie diet. Last night, about midnight, I heard the refrigerator door slam, so I got up and found Orville gone from our bed. I went to the kitchen (all the lights were on) and he was standing there, barefoot and in his pajamas, eating a piece of salami. I yelled, "Orville!"

He dropped the salami and acted like he just came out of a trance. He claims he doesn't know how he got there and must have been walking in his sleep. Do you think he's telling me the truth?

DOUBTING MRS.

Dear Doubting: His salami story sounds like a lot of baloney to me.

Dear Abby: Can you tell me what to do about a man who will not keep himself clean? We have been married 45 years and it is a fight to get him to take a bath on the week-end. When he goes fishing he comes home covered with dirt and fly dope and he won't take a bath because he did it before he left.

He is retired and has plenty of time. I am so ashamed of him I could cry. When he gets up in the morning he never washes his face because he says he will do it when he shaves. Please help.

BETTER HALF

Dear Better: Start early in the morning to nag this man, and nag him every hour of the day until he breaks down and takes a bath. If he has always been this way, then you ought to have a doctor examine your nose. If this is something new, he ought to have a doctor examine his head.

Dear Abby: Correct me if I am wrong, but isn't the purpose of a funeral service to (1) pay your final respects to the departed one, (2) ask the Lord to be merciful when the deceased enters the Great Unknown, (3) hear a few comforting words directed to the friends and family of the one who is laid to rest?

I just returned from a funeral, and the clergyman took advantage of the large attendance to announce (1) the mortgage had to be paid off for the recreation center, (2) people must stop parking their cars on the neighbors' lawns on Sunday, (3) the Ladies Auxiliary rummage sale needs support.

Am I overly sensitive, or was this out of order?

INDIGNANT

Dear Indignant: You are not "overly sensitive." The clergyman was out of order for advertising when he should have been eulogizing.

Bangor Alumni Attend Annual Homecoming Holiday

BANGOR — Thirty-five alumni of Bangor Area Joint High School who are currently freshmen and spohomores at colleges and universities attended the local school's fifth annual Holiday Homecoming, Wednesday afternoon. The affair is jointly sponsored by the Senior National Honor Society and the guidance department.

Kenneth Smith, president of the Senior Honor Society, extended greetings to the visiting alumni. Six of the group who told the BAJHS seniors of their college experiences were Mary Louise Hamm, Ursinus College; Louis Joella, Bucknell University; Peter Cistone, Muhlenberg College; Anthony Sabatino, Marietta College; Warren Brodt, East Stroudsburg State College; Steven Sandler, Penn State University.

Letters of regret at being unable to take part in the program were read from Mary Ann Dutt, Jefferson Hospital School of Nursing, Philadelphia, and Lillian Heinsohn, St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing. In his talk, Anthony Sabatino revealed that the Dean of Men at Marietta is John Sandt, a former Bangor High teacher.

The visitors were introduced by Arnold Wynne, guidance director. After an informal question and answer period on college requirements, refreshments were served to the seniors and alumni by the honor society members, under the supervision of their advisor, Miss Helen Roche.

Young Twins Eat Decorations

BRISTOL, England (AP)—Anne and Julia Meaden, 2-year-old twins, decided Friday the lights on their Christmas tree looked good enough to eat.

So they unscrewed half a dozen bulbs and ate them.

At a hospital, a doctor said the bulbs apparently went down hole and that it would only be necessary to let nature take its course.

Sends Infantry Reinforcements

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Malaya announced Friday it will send 120 infantrymen to reinforce its 615-man detachment in the United Nations Congo command. While half a dozen nations are pulling out, the government said it is convinced peace can come to the Congo only if Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold is given whole-hearted support.

Stolen Kisses Cause Strike

ILKESTON, England (AP) — Sixty nightshift workers at a Derbyshire garments factory are on strike because of two stolen kisses.

They downed tools after two men were suspended for trying to embrace a girl benchhand working under a sprig of mistletoe. The girl screamed and slipped away—just as the boss was passing.

"It was just a bit of fun and it seemed rather high-handed by the management," said one striker. "We will stay out until the two men are reinstated."

A spokesman for the firm said: "We are not against the Christmas spirit, but horseplay can be dangerous in a factory."

Dr. Moore Injured

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Barbara Moore, the long-distance walker, was injured in a car crash Friday. She was taken to a hospital for treatment of facial injuries and then released. Her car was slightly damaged.

Dr. Moore, 56, walked across the United States from coast to coast earlier this year.

Baby Born In Car Dies

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—A baby delivered by his mother after an automobile stuck in the snow died Thursday.

Joseph Ros, weighing less than three pounds, had been in an incubator since a few hours after his birth 10 days ago on a country road. His mother, Mrs. Harry Ros, 27, survived the experience remarkably well, doctors said.

The baby, several weeks premature, arrived while neighbors and Ros battled giant drifts to free the automobile. Four hours, and five and a half miles, later they reached a main road and took the mother and child to community hospital in nearby Ephrata.

Youngsters Find Out There Is A Santa Claus

By FRANCIS STILLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Yes, Dorothy.. yes, Coleta.. yes, Lana and Johanna..yes, Johnny..and yes, you 160 children at a Navy air station in Maine.

Like little Virginia of more than half a century ago, you are finding out or proving there is a Santa Claus.

Listen to this: "He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy."

An editorial writer of the New York Sun penned those words in 1897 to 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon. She had written the paper to say some of her little friends claimed there was no Santa and she wanted to know the truth.

She is still alive, with children and grandchildren of her own now, and she can tell you that the answer she got was indeed ture—and will be, forever.

Wrote Police

Coleta Burns...you're 11 years old, you live in the Arkansas Ozarks. You wrote to the New York City Police Department, asking if Santa were dead because he hasn't been to your house in a long time.

By now you probably have received a reply from one of the city's highest-ranking officers, reassuring you that Santa is very much alive. Before long you will know this is so, but you must be patient for a bit. Tell your brothers and sisters to be patient, too.

Santa has a pretty big job at times, you know, and sometimes is a little slow making his rounds.

Dorothy Ridgeway..you're 9, you live in a remote mountain area at Hardy, Va., you've been ill a long time.

Probably you may have thought at times that neither Santa Claus nor people living a long way off would pay too much attention to a little girl like you.

You know better now, don't you.

Sacks and sacks of Christmas cards have been arriving from all over the world, haven't they? And Friday a helicopter from the Army's Ft. Eustis landed with gifts for you and your sisters.

You see, Dorothy, Santa has lots of helpers and they all love little girls and little boys. One sent a note about you on a Weather Bureau telegraph circuit. Others relayed it on other circuits.

This may be hard for you to understand, but people in faraway places like London and Tokyo and Rome know about you and want you to be happy.

Some of the cards you'll be getting will say "buon Natale e felice Anno Nuovo." In Italian, that means "good Christmas and a happy New Year," Dorothy.

Lana and Johanna Nightingale ..you're proving it. Your home is at Steinbach, Man., Canada, but you're at a Boston hospital so that Johanna can get well. Lana, giving Johanna one of your kidneys in an operation so that your twin can regain health, is just about the biggest Christmas gift ever for a 12-year-old girl.

You 160 youngsters at Brunswick, Maine .. You are going to get a Christmas celebration although your parents and the others at a nearby Navy air station certainly are blue. An officer at your base says "you small children don't understand" that a Neptune bomber crashed off Newfoundland Wednesday and nine crewmen were believed lost. But he says you "would be disappointed if Santa didn't come as planned."

Santa will be there, although as the officer says: "Believe me, it will be one of the toughest missions that Santa has ever had."

Johnny Long of Washington, D.C. .. you are spending Christmas with friends near Philadelphia. That's not like being home, but it will be better for a 4-year-old than being in Children's Hospital, where you had that brain operation Oct. 8.

Great Progress

And Johnny, the doctors say you have made great progress. You play now, Johnny, and you are learning more rapidly. They expect you to go to school eventually.

When you youngsters grow up you must read that editorial written 63 years ago to little Virginia O'Hanlon. Let us repeat part of it now:

"Alas: How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus: It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence ... The eternal light with which childhood answer she got was indeed true—tinguished.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

Cold Weather Takes Over All Parts Of Pennsylvania

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was only a little new snow in Pennsylvania Friday. But was it cold! Some relief is in prospect, however, by the weekend, but then it's supposed to get real cold again.

Places all over the state recorded lows for a Dec. 23. Chambersburg, for example, had its lowest temperature in 24 years and the coldest ever on a Dec. 23–13 below zero.

But 13 below was "warm" compared to other areas. It was 26 below at Lehigh Tannery, in Carbon County and 24 below in a few Schuylkill County areas. Salisburg in Somerset County reported the same figure, while Rockwood had 23 below. In Sunbury it was 21 below. White Haven reported 20 below; Long Run, Schuylkill County, 16 below; Lewistown, 14 below; Williamsport, 8 below; Harrisburg, 7 below; Allentown and Bradford, 1 below.

The U. S. Weather Bureau's extended forecasts for the next five days said temperatures are exbelow normal in eastern Pennsylvania and 10 to 12 degrees below normal in the west. A slow warming trend was seen for Saturday and Sunday, but then it will start turning colder again.

The weatherman also saw light snowfall as likely for the east and light snow or flurries for the western areas. There was a pre-dawn snow in Western Pennsylvania Friday, creating hazardous driving conditions. Much of the heavy snows of last week and this were also still on the ground.

Lows for Friday were expected to range from 10 below or more in northern areas to 10 above in southern sections.

Philadelphia had record-breaking cold weather for the fifth time this month, with a reading of eight above Friday morning.

The real meaning of Christmas
Christmas means many things to many people, but to most it means a time when thoughts are turned to the birth of Christ . . . to family . . . and to friends.
To youngsters . . . it may mean more joy than any other time of the year . . . a time filled with trees and lights, ribbon and wrapping paper, Santa Claus and surprises.
To Mother and Dad . . . Christmas may mean shopping and greeting cards, neighbors and family gatherings. And most of all, the wonderful experience of seeing happy, excited children.
To grandparents . . . it may mean warm memories of old friends, helping out at church, preparing the traditional Christmas dinner. But more importantly, it may mean having the children and grandchildren home again.
But to Christmas the world over . . . no matter how young or old . . . Christmas is really a day kept in memory of the birth of Jesus Christ nearly 2,000 years ago. It is a day when millions turn their thoughts to the Source of all that is good . . . and are reminded of the truly important things of life.
May the real meaning of Christmas . . . and the blessings of Christ . . . be with you and your families and bring you happiness the year 'round.
For unto you is born this day in the city of David, A Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

First Christmas Story Enlightened Everyone

Adoration Welled In Heart Of Girl's Aging Mother

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

THOU art all fair, my daughter, all grace and comeliness. Thy skin is silken to the touch, thy form like the work of a skilled craftsman. How gentle thou art, my child, how sweet the perfume of thy hair.

Adoration welled in the heart of the girl's aging mother, Anna, as she combed and smoothed her daughter's long, dark tresses. It was a deep-felt morning. For on this day, Mary would be espoused.

How beautiful she is, and pure of soul. Ah, beloved daughter, thou are the treasure of this house. There is no spot on thee. Thy innocence is a garden enclosed, and thou seem over-young for wifehood.

Yet Mary was 15, the proper age for taking a husband. She sat now on a stool, in dewey-eyed reverie, as Anna arrayed her for the ceremony. Her braids had been loosened and flowed over the nape of her neck to her waist.

Lithe, lovely child, thy parents exult in thee, and shall miss the song of thy rising and lying down.

Anna laid the comb aside and began to weave a fillet of yellow marguerites for Mary's hair. The guests would soon be arriving, and all must be made ready.

It was a joyous, yet also heavy time. Mary was not just another daughter of Israel. She had been the sunrise of life to her elderly parents, Anna and Joachim. For 20 years of marriage they had been childless until her coming. Anna remembered how unceasingly she had prayed in those years.

She Implores

"O God of my fathers," she had implored again and again, "bless me, as thou didst bless the womb of Sarah in her old age, and gavest her a son, Isaac."

Once, kneeling under a laurel tree, she noticed the young sparrows nesting above, and the grief burst from her in a wail.

"Woe unto me. I am not comparable to the very fowls of the heavens; to the very beasts of the earth, for even the beasts are fruitful before thee, O Lord."

Their lack of issue had sorely afflicted Joachim, an otherwise large-spirited and prosperous man. He owned vast numbers of sheep, the greatest herd in the Jezreel valley, and a splendid house in Nazareth.

Yet his affluence could not ease the gall of childlessness.

It was a scandal for a Jew to fail to beget children, a sign of sin and God's disfavor and, in time, the priests had come to scorn his generous festival offerings.

"It is not lawful for thee to offer thy gifts," they said, "seeing thou hast not begat any seed in Israel."

Joachim had betaken himself to the desert for long periods of fasting and prayer. And then, at last, it had come to pass. Anna sensed it, like a whisper in her soul, a stirring warmth in her flesh.

Saw Joachim

She rushed from the house in the twilight and saw Joachim coming from the fields with his shepherds and flocks. Sing, O barren, thou that didst not bear, break forth into singing. At the gate of the fold, she met him, and threw her arms about his neck.

"Now I know that the Lord God hath greatly blessed us," she exclaimed. "Behold, she that was barren hath conceived!"

The tears of the aging couple, their faces pressed close, flowed together.

"As the Lord my God liveth," Anna had vowed, "whatever I bring forth, whether it be male or female, I will devote it to the Lord my God."

Jubilant and singing praises, Joachim had made a special pilgrimage to Jerusalem to offer 100 goats, 10 lambs without spot or blemish and 12 tender calves to the Lord in thanksgiving.

Anna still remembered the first words she utteded after her nine months were fulfilled and she delivered on the 15th day of the month Hathor.

"What have I brought forth?"

"A female," the midwife answered.

How swiftly the years had flown since then, and now the girl-child was to be married. Anna's fingers trembled as she placed the ringlet of flowers on the crown of Mary's dark, shining head, and then straightened the folds of her woven white gown.

It was a difficult time, for a mother. She stepped back to survey the girl's appearance, striving to keep the unreasoned sense of loss from her eyes.

Throat Filled

Looking at her with an ever-sheltering love, Anna's throat filled, and she felt worn and old and no more of use. The hours that bound them had passed. Come now, my daughter, and take thy bridal seat.

Anna reached out and caught her hand, pressing it, and led her slowly into the forechamber where the maid-servant, Judith, was busily decking the walls with leafy boughs and blossoms.

It was the custom to receive guests throughout the day before the signing of the bethrothal agreement, and Mary would be there for all to see, her hair flowing to its full length as a sign of her maidenhood.

How strangely life unfolded. Just as the end of Mary's childhood was being marked with festivities, so was its beginning. That other, earlier celebration had scarcely faded in Anna's memory.

Mar yhad been a healthy, happy youngster, taking her first toddling steps at the age of nine months. When she was a year old, Joachim had made a great feast, inviting the whole village of Nazareth and even priests from Jerusalem.

In the midst of the jollity and lifting of wine cups, he had stood up, signalled for silence, and then prayed:

"O God of our fathers, bless this child, and give her a name renowned for ever among all generations."

"Amen and amen," the assemblage had cried, "So be it."

In keeping with their vow, when Mary was three years old, they had taken her to the Temple to dedicate her to the Lord's service.

They had arranged for her to study there, with other young virgins of well-to-do families, in the care of Anna's kinsman, the aged priest, Zechariah, of the division of Abijah, and his wife, Elizabeth. It was they, after the death of Joachim, who had helped Anna guide the child's upbringing.

Radiant In Spirit

Mary had grown radiant in spirit, rejoicing in worship, hymns and the sacred statutes, an exquisitely bright-cheeked and devout girl, with glad heart and a voice sweeter than the harps and flutes of the Levites on the Temple stairs.

Surely, Israel had never brought forth so goodly and elegant a bride. Anna moved distractedly about the room, her head swimming with recollections, hopes and fleeting anxieties, as she directed the final preparations.

Two other servants had joined Judith in decorating the house, bringing out extra ottomans and setting out trays of pickled olives, cheeses, fig cakes and other pastries for the throng of neighbors and relatives who would come in a day-long succession.

Anna's lips moved silently, as she bent to adjust a rug.

O Lord, grant that this man that thou hast chosen for her shall deal gently with her. Let him never raise his hand against her, nor speak to her harshly. She is born and nourished in thy loving kindness, O Lord. Give to this woodcutter, Joseph, a worthy heart and good intent.

Anna draped a fresh, sky-blue cover over the couch where Mary would sit with her groom, and brought the girl to the place of honor. There were three knocks at the dor, signifying a visitor. Anna walked across the carpeted flor, dabbing at her eyes.

He had borne enough. The rabbi had examined him. The elders had taken counsel. He had been interrogated by the whole congregation of Nazareth. Even priests of the Holy City had come to inquire into his reputation.

Joseph's patience waned. Verily, they had tested him without quarter. He took a last driving swing with his mallet, the chisel biting deep into the seasoned carob timber. The questioning near made him doubt himself.

Yet, manifestly, all of it had been necessary if he was to receive the most excellent and genteel maiden. Mary bath Joachim.

With his foot, he shoved the chips and splinters into a heap in the corner, leaving the unfinished wagon axle on his workbench. Sweat drenched his beard. The biceps of his arms stood out in great knots as he hung his implements.

Late Afternoon

It was late afternoon, about the tenth hour, and he knew full well he should be preparing for the betrothal rites at the rich house of Anna and Joachim, but he needed this final exertion to quiet his agitation.

He shook his head in chagrin. Yaal, foolishness! At his mature age, he should not have been so unsettled by the matter. Yet each time his thoughts turned to the maid, his strength fled from him.

Likewise, the inquiries had tried him sorely. He had submitted humbly to them. He was not a vain man. But their precautions left him worn and ill at ease. It was if he were a stranger in their midst.

Had he not dwelt and toiled among them these many years? Had he not walked in integrity? He had brought forth young sons and, since he was widowed two years past, he had lived circumspectly and in accord with the law.

Yet it was meet that the girl's mother, Anna, and her kinsmen, having the high rank in the priesthood, should take great care in choosing a fit mate for an only daughter, a cherished ytichid.

Joseph brushed the sawdust and parings from his tunic, and strode into the house. The little ones were at the synagogue, being instructed by the chazzan, and thereafter would repair to the reception of espousal.

He poured water into a basin on the clay floor, stripped off his loin cloth and bathed. Then, freshening the water, he dipped his head, scrubbing and spluttering. He toweled himself briskly and rubbed fragrant oil into his hair and beard.

Digging into his garment box, he shook out his white linen mantle and wrapped it on, buckling a leather girdle at his waist. He put on his Sabbath sandals, then fetched the gifts for Mary and her family from the shelf.

He tucked them into a pouch at his waist and set out.

It would have been easier if this had been a simple match-making, negotiated by the shadchanin, who served regularly as go-between in arranging the terms between parents of young couples.

Great Concern

In Mary's case, however, great concern and attention had been lavished on finding her a rightful husband. Anna had called to her aid a learned and distinguished kinsman, the chief priest Zechariah, who also had been tutor to Mary.

A multitude of eager suitors had been considered, both widowers and young swains, wealthy and poor. Zechariah, after much prayer and consultation, had named Joseph, the plain, hard-working joiner of Nazareth.

"I am an older man and have children," he had accused himself, "but she is young."

Zechariah had shrugged off the outburst, saying the determination was under divine guidance.

"Unto thee, Joseph, hath it fallen," he remonstrated.

Joseph's qualms arose not from any want of affection for Mary, but only from his own lowliness. He had scant possessions and only a meager abode compared to the stately house of Joachim. And the maid herself was the glory of the village.

JOSEPH approached the house. A new moon shone over the roof. The light of the moon, at mid-month, was the favored time for betrothals. From inside came merry sounds of voices.

His blood pounded as he touched the mezuzah at the doorpost, kissing his fingers, and knocked. A maid - servant

Long Ago Message Revealed

Walked Barefoot

Leaving his sandals at the door, he walked barefoot across the room. It swarmed with neighbors and children, eating and conversing animatedly.

His eyes downcast and fumbling with his purse-strings, he drew out his small gifts and presented them unceremoniously, a silken sash with the colors of her tribe to Anna, a fringed prayer shawl to the old priest, Zechariah, a cruet of spices to his wife, Elizabeth, a bronze pendant to Mary.

Amid their utterances of gratitude and the murmuring of the throng, he took his seat beside the bride, with her family on either side. The servants passed more sweetmeats to the young, and the guests moved by to make flowery speeches of commendation.

Joseph and the parents took the quill and put their names to the legal instrument of betrothal, the kethubah. Two witnesses stamped and sealed it. This was the binding covenant of marriage, with the ensuing wedding its public celebration.

Foreasmuch as she was virgin, and not a widow, it would be a full year before the marriage should be fulfilled, even though thence forth it would not be unlawful for him to know her. She now was under his atuhority.

"Be thou the mother of thousands of millions," the old priest told Mary. "Let thy seed possess the gate."

The company prostrated themselves, facing toward the Temple, and the old priest blessed the Lord God of Abraham, and this union of his children, Mary bath Joachim and Joseph bar Jacob.

Back from his building, expedition, Joseph bar Jacob entered the house and found Mary standing alone before the hearth. Her back was toward him. She did not move. Quickly he hooked the door curtain aside to admit more light.

He started toward her, swept with eager devotion. He had not seen her for six months.

She turned about, facing him. An armload of firewood she held crashed to the floor at her feet.

Pale, Drawn

Beneath the gray cowl, her face was pale and drawn, and her eyes burned with anguish. Her palms spread imploringly, defenselessly, at her sides. Her body bulged. She was full, me-leah, with child!

Breath failed him, and his countenance sagged in disbelief and dismay. He took a step or two, and halted again, staring at her in shattered incredulity.

She seemed to shrink from him, her fingers twisting at the folds of her cloak. She lowered her head, and then, clenching her lips, bent and began rapidly picking up the kindling and stacking it in a heap.

He opened his mouth to speak, but no words came. A wave of helpless compassion came over him, an urge to take her in his arms and console her. Yet he remained rooted, sick at heart, shocked and confounded.

Abruptly he turned and plunged out of the house into his carpentry shed. He flung himself down on a pile of sackcloth.

"Oh Lord, my God," he moaned, "What shall I say concerning her?"

He wept bitterly.

"For I received her a virgin out of the Temple of the Lord, and have not preserved her such."

Rage boiled in him.

"Who has thus deceived me? Who has committed this evil in my house? Who hath defiled her?"

In the very dawn of matrimony had come betrayal. At the beginning of paradise, it was lost.

"Is not the history of Adam repeated in me? For at the very hour of his giving thanks, the serpent came and found Eve alone, and deceived her."

His fingers dug in his face.

"So hath it befallen me also."

Angrily he lurched to his feet. With a stroke of his arm, he sent a rack of boards smashing against the wall. He strode outside and into the grove. He walked until his bones ached along with his heart, and then returned to confront her.

Lamp Flamed

Now it was night, and a lamp flamed on the sideboard. He called to her, and she emerged from an inner chamber, looking on him with swollen, defiant eyes. He drew himself up determinedly, and said:

"Why hast thou done this?"

Her lips parted and her throat muscles moved in little spasms, but speech eluded her. He could see the veins purpling beneath her translucent skin, and sorrow shook him.

All his senses insisted that she could not have done this thing, she who was so prudent and full of grace, she who was schooled in the very Temple itself, yet here she stood, her unfaithfulness a taunt to his face.

"Why . . .? He shook his head. "Why hast thou, who has been so much favored of God, thus debased thy soul?"

Suddenly, tears burst from her in a flood, and she clasped her hands to her face, crying out shrilly:

"I am innocent, and have known no man!"

He stood there, dumbstruck, pitying her, loving her, detesting her, believing her, doubting her.

"Then," he said unsteadily, "how comes it to pass you are with child?"

A new burst of tears convulsed her.

"As the Lord my God liveth, I know not by what means."

She bent almost double, covering her face in her arms, and whirling, rushed from the room.

"I am innocent! . . . innocent!"

If only, within reason, he could believe her, or pardon—for a good man is long-suffering, and unafraid of scorn—but he could not.

Somewhere in the night, somewhere in the gulf past purpose or return, he dropped to his knees, bitter tears mingling with his supplications. He could not say how long he prayed there, and finally he fell to the ground and slept a tumid and teeming sleep.

Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son . . . He shall save His people from their sins.

He jerked erect, his heart beating wildly, his eyes feverish and exultant. It was true! A mystery unveiled! It was their Maker's doing, and the Lord of Hosts is his name. For this cause had the Lord wrought and kept her. He got up, his body stiff, his mind aflame.

He ran, dodging and leaping, as the sun shot silver through the trees. He came to the house and found her waiting. His arms went around her, and with these two, all was well.

Love sought them, reached for them, bent low for them, so very low.

A lowly she-donkey plodded up the red and rocky road toward Bethlehem, carrying the young Jewess, led by her rough-clad mate. They were tired, dusty. But they bore the lost lustre of life.

Other Travelers

Other travelers paid them little heed. The traffic was thick, and strident with yells of camoleers and bluster of litter trains. No one seemed much concerned with anyone. But love was infinitely concerned with everyone.

It is hard to say why. Men had strayed and stumbled. In their willful arrogance, they had fouled their freedoms. They hated, warred, plundered, falsified. They were a hard, harried lot, tortured by dead dreams. The great vision had left them.

But it would not let them go.

On the road, the peasant couple paused beside a yew tree, and Joseph looked worriedly up at his wife, fearing she was in pain. Yet, only moments ago, he had seen her smiling with deep satisfaction.

"Mary," he said, "what aileth thee? How happens it that I sometimes see sorrow and sometimes laughter and joy in thy countenance?"

She leaned on her arms, gripping the donkey's mane.

"It is because I behold two people with mine eyes, the one weeping and lamenting, and the other laughing and rejoicing."

For there is joy in love rejoined and mutually given, but tragedy in its trampling down. Men would ever misuse, mock and crucify it. But love would not surrender.

There was no room in the inn. The place surged with voices, smoke and smells of roasting meat. Distressed, Joseph grabbed the halter rope and started off again. Dogs barked; peddlers babbled and drays trundled in the deepening dusk.

He led the donkey down a slope at the rear of the hostelry. In the distant valley he could see the campfires of shepherds. Early stars blinked over the mountains of Moab.

He heard Mary moan, and quickly stepped back beside her.

"Take me down," she urged, "for that which is within me presses to come forth."

"Wither shall I take thee?"

His voice was desperate, and his hands closed over hers commiseratingly. They must go on. They could not stop her in the open on this gravel-strewn hill.

Compressed Lips

She compressed her lips, nodding. He tugged the donkey on down the hill, along a cliff, his eyes straining to find the livestock cave of which the innkeeper had spoken. Night's sharp chill settled over them. He dragged at the rope, and the donkey held back stiff-leggedly, braying.

"Take me down," she gasped again, "for that which is within me mightily presses me."

At that moment, he spied the dark opening in the wall of rock. He rushed back to her, lifting her in his arms and carrying her into the warmer interior, moving slowly in the blackness, hearing the grunts and breathing of animals about him.

He probed with his feet, found an open space and laid her down. Groping, he collected some straw for a mattress and lifted her on it, rolling his cloak for her head.

He rushed back outside, gathered dry grass and wood and struck fire with his flint, blowing until it strengthened into flame. He jerked the waterskin from the stubborn beast's pack, filled a basin and put in on the fire. Then he fashioned an oil torch and jamed it in a crevice on the cavern wall. He knelt beside her stroking her hot brow.

DECORATED FOR CHRISTMAS—Lights on outdoor trees and a wreath above the door give a Christmas decor to the North Portico entrance to the White House. (AP Wirephoto)

White House Shines For Ike's Last

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is glittering with decorations for the last Christmas season the Eisenhowers will spend in the presidential mansion.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower received about 1,000 members of the White House staff and employes in the Christmas setting Thursday, serving sweet buns, doughnuts and coffee in the East room.

The Blue Room, where they shook hands with the White House personnel, is decorated with white poinsettias and a tree decked in tinsel and blue lights.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore a red dress and red shoes for the occasion.

Mistletoe

But inside, mistletoe hangs as usual from the great lantern in the entrance hall, holly and poinsettias abound, Santas sit on the formal fireplace mantles and there are more than a dozen large and small Christmas trees, with tinsel, baubles and lights, in the formal first floor rooms.

The huge East Ballroom has its traditional Nativity scenes in three sections, each with a lettered legend—"Glory to God in the highest; and on earth peace; good will toward men."

Nearby, between the portraits of George and Martha Washington, towers a shimmering 22-foot pine, touching the ceiling.

Its branches are decked with tinsel and white lights and a white star nestles at the peak.

There's an addition to the decor this year. A 3½-foot-tall Santa Claus, in traditional costume, stands beneath the ballroom tree.

Gifts You Probably Can't Afford But It Ups Standard Of Giving

HERE is a handy holiday shopping list for the poor rich man who has upped his standard of giving.

Priced for people for whom price is no object, this year's luxury items are at least interesting dreaming.

Toys for overprivileged children.

A Thunderbird. Red convertible, battery operated, top speed, five miles an hour. Costs $540 but saves on gas.

Zoo. Realistic, life - sized menagerie of stuff animals, domestic and wild. Zebra, tiger, okaya, giraffe, kangaroo, shetland pony, nodding cow and pig, llama, walrus, donye add up to approximately $2200.

Log Cabin. Walk-in sized with lookout, front porch, junior ranch furniture. Sold furnished, approximately $600.

Doll House. Two-story luxury colonial, fine neighborhood, tastefully decorated with custom-made period furniture. Complete $230.

Hurdy-Gurdy. Makes wonderful music even without an elephant. Junior-sized, and free wheeling. Mere $200.

Gorcery Store. Fine stock of real minatures, workable scales, cash register, phone disconnected. Thriving business for $143.

Castle. This one has moats, watch towers, knights in armor and norses charging lordly occupants. Costs $100.

Wild West Scene. Hills, boulders, horses, covered wagon, Indians, good men and bad men in pursuit, attack, etc. Requires $200 worth of gold dust.

LIFE-LIKE LLAMA
Cheap to Feed

Construction Set. Kit called "The Automat" contains 1,300 precision-made machine parts: spur gears, maltese crosses, drums, cams, levers, couplings, clutchings, et al, enough to put together a variety of actual machines and mechanisms. Costs $225.

Gifts For Grown-Up Kids

Bed of Luxury. A New York furrier has made a double bedspread of, not mere mink, but chinchilla, with a couple of furry throw pillows for dash. Price hovers hazardously close to $8,000.

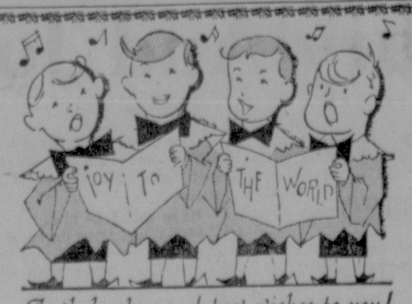
His-and-Her Planes. The Texas couple that already has well-to-well carpeting will get a lift out of matching airplanes. Hers . . . a four-seater costs $27,000. His . . . with room for seven . . . is priced a little higher . . . $149,000.

A Soft-Head. A male artist can fashionably take brush in hand with a soft vicuna beret on his pate when Santa Claus has $45 to shell out for it.

His-and-Her Robes. With a little rationalizing that they can cut down on the heat bills, man and wife with the wherewithal can exchange gifts of vicuna robes. Set immodestly priced at $870.

Money Scents. Just to be sure a woman doesn't run out of perfume, there is a giant sized bottle of a famous brand which costs $5,000.

Total shopping bill . . . $214,353!



A whole chorus of best wishes to you!

The milky way blazed like a highway of silver. A warm tide banished the chill of earth, and loosed the scent of grass and spring and Eden flowers. Veils of light, draped the sky. A million birds singing? No. An angel army.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace among men with whom He is pleased.

A thousand miles away, distinguished wise men studied the stars, and in the valley, wide-eyed shepherds huddled in awe, Joseph whirled and saw the white brilliance filling the cave. It blurred his eyes, and he stumbled toward it.

And the word became flesh and dwelt among us.

He was here. Now! Theophany on earth! He had come. He cared. Was man worth it? That God should take upon himself the form of a helpless babe in a draughty, dung-strewn cave? Yes, man was worth it. He was loved, dearly loved. He was important, in God's sight.

That was the motive, the meaning, the reason for it all, the making, and health of man—the Divine embrace.

Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee.

Men were precious, each bungling, benighted one of them.

And this world was dignified, too, its grime and its flesh and its musty stables. For this is where God came. This is where grace was given. Right in the midst of the shabbiest, dreariest gash in the earth. Not in some rarefied sanctum. But in the seamy world itself, where man lives and works.

Awake, awake, put on thy strength, shake thyself from the dust.

Joseph, shielding his face, plunged into the argent radiance. It pulsed and simmered, and then receded, scattering like a jeweled mist. He could see faintly, and then quite well. All was just as before, the dull stone, the littered floor, the torch on the wall.

Except that now she was up and moving about, dark hollows beneath her eyes, but smiling. In her arms, she held her first-born son. Immanuel, "God with us."

So this was He. The unsearchable, the Unknown. So now men knew. This is what He was like. And He had come to show them, to make them see, and know forever, that He was with them, intimately near, intimately concerned.

Despite men's grievous ways, He still was here. Despite their blunted responses. He came. Humbling himself, offering himself, tenting in the slums and tribulations of man. This was God. The absolute, the invincible, the power that is constant, enduring, the ultimate. This was the Almighty. This was love.

She wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger.

Christmas Tree With Tin Cans

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The depressed town of nearby Emeich hopes its off-beat Christmas tree will draw enough notice to attract a new industry.

The scrawny tree is decorated with tin cans, foil pie plates and empty surplus food containers. Beside the tree there is a sign saying:

"A depressed town. Please, Santa, bring us some jobs. Merry Xmas all."

Emeich has been without a big industry since its huge coal mine closed in 1954.

"Now we hope someone will see the tree and realize what bad shape our community is in," George Janosko, owner and operator of a tavern, said yesterday. Janosko was one of 500 left unemployed when the mine shut.

Then, Emeich was a community of 2,000. The population has since dwindled to 775.

The championship football game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers, divisional leaders in the National Professional League, will be blacked out in Philadelphia, but will be telecast on Channel 4, New York and other NBC stations.

The telecast will be in color starting at 11:45 a.m. Monday and will be preceded by a pre-game show at 11:30.

Because of a league ruling against telecasting games in the cities where they are played, Channel 3, Philadelphia, will make a video-tape of the title contest and telecast it Tuesday at 10 p.m.

Kissing Girls Are Reinstated

ACCRINGTON, England (AP)—Five girls who sold kisses to cotton factory fellows were reinstated in their jobs last night.

The five were suspended this week for embracing the entire shop. They charged one shilling—14 cents—a kiss and said the proceeds would go to an orphanage to buy Christmas gifts.

The management contended kissing and full production were incompatible, and laid them off. The 150 male operatives instantly went on strike.

After management relented the men said they would go back to work too.

"We're delighted to have won our point," said a striker.

"True the girls were chasing us all over the factory floor, but Christmas comes but once a year."

Calls For Bids

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Highways Department yesterday called for bids Jan. 27 on highway construction projects. The counties involved included:

Lackawanna—Southwest of Maple Lake, widening and resurfacing, 1.60 mile, reconstruction.

Airline Flights Are Suspended

MANILA (AP)—President Carlos P. Garica has ordered Philippine Airlines to suspend all night flights as a result of two fatal crashes of its planes during darkness within a month.

A Philippine Airlines plane sliced into a hillside before dawn yesterday and 28 died. A night crash in late November killed 33.

The plane had just taken off from Cebu City, in the central Philippines, when it lost altitude. Narrowly missing three homes, it tore into a clump of banana trees. The wings ripped off tund the plane exploded in flames.

Villagers pulled nine survivors from the burning wreckage, which hung upside down in the trees. Most of the passengers were college students heading home from Manila. Christmas presents were scattered among the debris.

NEW YORK (AP) — USDA — Butter offerings light to adequate. Demand continued good. Wholesale prices on bulk cartons fresh, Creamery, 93 score AA 62¼-62½ cents; 92 score A 62-62¼; 90 score B 61¾-62.

Dutch Ruler Will Submit Resignation

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands (AP) — Dutch Premier Jan Eduard de Quay plans to submit his resignation to Queen Juliana at noon today after a breakup of his coalition government on a public housing issue.

His 19-month-old Liberal Cabinet — the first of its kind in the postwar era — fell unexpectedly late Thursday night when the 150-member lower house of Parliament passed by 70-59 a motion the government vetoed earlier.

The lower house called on the government — over its veto — to add 5,000 subsidized dwellings to its program for building 80,000 homes within a year.

Public Works Minister Johannes Van Aartsen, a right-wing Protestant, tried a compromise of 2,500 additional dwellings but refused to go along with the additional 5,000 under the threat of resigning.

Political observers generally dismissed any possibility of a reconstruction of the present Cabinet, and they predict a long crisis.

Housing has been Holland's most serious postwar problem. According to official estimates the housing shortage has decreased from 300,000 homes in 1949 to some 90,000 at present.

It is estimated there are still about 100,000 cases of families' home-sharing in the Netherlands.

Santa Claus Set To Keep Appointment With Children

BRUNSWICK, Maine (AP) — Santa Claus will keep an appointment here today with some 160 children of a grief-stricken naval air squadron.

"Believe me," said a squadron officer, "it will be one of the toughest missions that Santa has ever had."

One of the squadron's P2S Neptune patrol bombers went down off Newfoundland Wednesday, and hope was abandoned Thursday for all nine men aboard.

Two bodies were recovered near wreckage of the aircraft 17 miles off the southeast tip of Newfoundland. The plane crashed in clear weather while participating in a fleet exercise off Cape Race. The bodies were sent to the U. S. Navy base at Argentia for identification.

An empty life raft and a life preserver were found near the wreckage. The Navy said its air-sea search will continue, but there was no hope of survivors on the frigid seas.

Called Off

All adult holiday activities for the Maine squadron have been called off because of the crash. But, said an officer, "The small children don't understand and would be disappointed if Santa did not come as planned."

Three of the squadron children won't be at the Christmas party.

They are the youngsters of Aviation Machinist Mate 2.c. George P. Smith. They opened their Christmas presents last Sunday when Dad learned he was going to Argentia. "I may not be home for Christmas," Smith told them.

He was one of the men lost aboard the ill-fated plane.

Ike Names Two Pennsylvanians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Pennsylvanians were named by President Eisenhower yesterday to a 15-member commission to investigate the dispute between railroads and the operating unions over work rules and practices.

Guy W. Knight, Philadelphia, director of labor relations for the Pennsylvania Railroad, was one of five members nominated by the carriers. H. F. Sites, Harrisburg, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was one of five nominated by the operating brotherhoods.

Your Horoscope

For Saturday, December 24, 1960

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Your Mars well aspected. Hope you have remembered loved ones in the Armed Services wherever they are, also those who have lonely lives. Vigorous activities are favored but think! Christmas!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — No unfriendly aspects now or tomorrow. Get your last-minute tasks finished so you can give time, thought to the true meaning, message of Christmas. Also enjoy your family happily.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Recklessness in any form not sanctioned today. You can have a happy, useful time getting ready for the big tomorrow. Christmas services, true charity, thinking of the ill and lonely encouraged.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—The Day and the season hold cheer and blessings for all who forget self in their desire to give unto others. It can be a generous period for generosity shown to others.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Today stresses need for thinking and doing for others rather than for self alone. Don't seek untoward favors or promotion but do your duty willingly and uncomplainingly; you will be happy.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Day urges some system to get things in order and give you a freer hand for Christmas festivities. Don't forget the little things that help to make all happier. Christmas services honored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Reflect, check over duties: have you forgotten anything? Essential duties, domestic interests in first order now. Don't overtire but enjoy your activities as blessings. Be thankful.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Benefic day for necessary activities, government and our Armed Forces' interests. You should be alert, keen, on the job. Show your natural skill at gathering people together for festivities.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Interesting, favorable influences remain since yesterday's Jupiter aspect. Share some of your blessings with those less fortunate and know the happiness that comes from giving.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Important indications but you must pick them up and utilize them to best advantage. Often you industrious, brainy folks can accomplish a great deal with little material. Heed your intuition.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — The unusual, the unexpected but pleasant likely now. Without neglecting any duty, join family, perhaps worthy friends in Christmas festivities and preparations for a restful holiday.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) Many interests, homey and some of business nature and favored now. Friendships, for which we should be grateful, music, and other blessings highly honored. Enjoy them.

YOU BORN TODAY: Have many qualifications that spell happiness and success. You enjoy gathering knowledge and will educate yourself in several fields if you have the opportunity. But here you must be sensibly careful for you tend to overwork and wear down health. You can, and usually do, reach a high point in your occupation and never seem to tire of acquiring more and more knowledge. Enter the profession, career or trade that suits your talents best and work with faith, hope and confidence. Birthdate: St. Ignatius of Loyola founder of the Jesuits; Matthew Arnold, 19th century English poet, critic; many inventors.

3,000 Begin Bethlehem Pilgrimage

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pilgrims in unprecedented numbers passed Saturday from Israel into Jordan 46 u vyyx cv 23

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pilgrims in unprecedented numbers passed Saturday from Israel into Jordan — through the Mandelbaum Gate and over no-man's land — to gather in Old Jerusalem on this Christmas Eve for the trek to Bethlehem.

Most of the record 3,000 or so are Arab Catholics who will observe the holiday in the Judean hill town where Christ was born.

Many traveled overnight to be first in line Friday when Israel and Jordan officials for the 12th consecutive year put aside their enmities long enough to allow the border crossings. The two normally cling to the uneasy armistice of 1948-49.

From Jerusalem the pilgrims walk five miles south to Bethlehem where the Church of the Nativity marks the traditional site of Christ's birth. The Grotto of the Nativity is revered as the actual place.

The pilgrim's trail leads through the hills Joseph and Mary plodded over and along the route the Three Wise Men took in following their star to Bethlehem.

Many of the Christians making the pilgrimage will go on to Nazareth after Christmas for religious celebrations at traditional holy sites such as the workshop of St. Joseph and Mary's well.

Officials at the Jerusalem border confirmed there was a record crossing this year. Another 2,000 will make the pilgrimage next month for the Greek Orthodox and Armenian Christmas observances.

There were no notable border incidents.

Snowstorm Nearly Isolates Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A crippling snowstorm blowing off Lake Erie almost isolated metropolitan Buffalo Friday at the height of the morning rush-hour.

The Buffalo Skyway and nearby sections of the New York Thruway were choked by abandoned cars. Buffalo Airport shut down, its runways under foot-high drifts.

Inbound buses ran late, if they ran at all. Rail traffic moved in and out of the city behind schedule.

The suburbs east of Buffalo and immediately south were hardest hit.

The village of Sloan ordered all traffic halted so police could clear cars from the streets. Motorists stranded on the Thruway and along main thoroughfares herded into restraurants in "standing room only" crowds.

Lines Are Bogged

Telephone lines, jammed already with holiday callers, were bogged with long delays by the stranded calling home.

Cheektowaga, east of Buffalo, was completely tied up. Thousands of cars were reported abandoned on highways there and the big Westinghouse plant and Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory shut for the day.

Other factories on the outskirts operated on reduced shifts. Schools, which would have been closed by the snow, already had closed for the holidays.

By mid-morning, however, skies over the city had cleared.

The Buffalo weather bureau said the 10-hour snowfall was caused by a spinning mass of polar air moving over a warmer Lake Erie. Storms like these spray snow like a garden hose, bombing one area and missing another nearby.

The official fall measured about seven inches but could have varied to more than a foot in some areas, the weather bureau said.

Nearby thruway sections and most of the main roads running north and south through the city were re-opened as skies cleared, but abandoned cars lined the shoulders, police said.

Teachers Ask Santa For Free Lunch Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — If teachers wrote letters to Santa Claus, chances are they'd ask for a duty-free lunch period.

In a day when the coffee break is a national institution, hundreds of thousands of teachers can only dream of getting away from the children for even a few minutes during the school day.

A survey by the National education Association shows that only 12 per cent of the city school districts provide a free lunch period for grade school teachers. About half of this 12 per cent insist the children go home for lunch.

It's not just a question of finding someone else to supervise the children at lunch, although that is an important factor. Many school superintendents believe it's important that the children have the teacher's guidance both in and out of the classroom.

Only five states — California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio and Pennsylvania — have legislation guaranteeing a duty-free minimum lunch period to all full-time teachers. The minimum usually is 30 minutes.

Phone Calls Resume After Brief Halts

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The situation was normal Friday after members of a union at the Pennsylvania Bell Telephone Co. refused to accept or place calls for brief periods Thursday, a company spokesman said.

Some operators in various sections of the state struck for approximately five-minute periods at varying times, the spokesman said.

A contract covering 9,000 to 10,000 operators and clerical workers who handle calls expired on Dec. 14. Negotiations broke off last week. A federal mediator is now attempting to get talks resumed between representatives of the company and Local 1944, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Center Of A Typical American Christmas

Unpleasant Christmases Recalled By News Photog

By ROD MacLEOD

CHRISTMAS Eve, the new fallen snow crunched underfoot, and Christmas bells rang out carols into the cold December night, warming the hearts of Stroudsburg people as they hurried home to be with their loved ones.

Other people hurried home too, wanting to be with their distant families; using Monroe County roads as the fastest route to happiness.

"Glad Tidings" was the order of the day. Every home was sprinkled with the magic points of light and warmth that make a Christmas tree. Peace and goodwill had settled in the Stroudsburgs.

Final Touch

In one home, a news photographer was putting the final decorations on his tree, reflecting that it was good to be home with the wife and children. That alone was present enough.

The soft tones of the church bell melody was suddenly shattered by the brisk, insistant call of the telephone.

"I hope it is only a social call," he said. "Hello."

His heart sank, he recognized the voice of the city editor.

"On Foxtown Hill, this side of Stroudsburg, a fatal, pretty bad. Get there fast as you can."

Yet it was Christmas, police and wrecker warning lights making a colorful display on Route 611.

Red flashing lights do not make Christmas.

A milk tanker truck had slammed into a passenger car, killing the driver and leaving a little girl strung on the highway guide wire like a sack of potatoes.

Screams and sobs took the place of Christmas carols—Silent Night?

Planned Visit

This family was on the way to visit grandmother in some city far from us. The visit was a prolonged stay in our General Hospital, the other, was not a visit—to the morgue.

The job over, the photographer returned home. It was not the same. A chill had overcome the warmth of the holiday.

The tragic thing is that this story gets repeated and repeated, every Christmas Eve.

Please, please make sure that this does not happen to you or yours. Have a happy holiday and play safe.

Christmas Around World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pilgrim and reveler launched on their traditional Christmas holiday festivities Saturday with confidence and exuberance above the turmoil of a restive world.

Europe enjoyed one of its most prosperous holiday times ever. A record spending splurge cleaned out department stores and families faced a weekend of good eating and holiday cheer.

Unprecedented numbers of Christians from Israel were on their pilgrimage to Jordan-held Bethlehem. And U.N. units in the Congo held Old World celebrations in tropical African heat.

In Washington President Eisenhower asked Americans to make the season a time of dedication to equal political and economic justice for all.

In Moscow there was a shopping crush for the Soviet observance of the Russian New Year in January.

The Rev. Louis F. Dion, American Roman Catholic priest who serves the Moscow diplomatic colony, will officiate at midnight mass at the residence of the U.S. ambassador.

With Christmas spending up as never before, stores in Western Europe ran short of merchandise. Italy ran out of sable, mink and chinchilla. Poultry sales for Christmas dinners amounted to a whopping $50 million in Britain alone.

The royal family set the tone for British families with a stay-at-home celebration at Sandringham. Only the piping of carol singers will disturb the tranquility of the English holiday.

Scandinavia observes Christmas with groaning boards and wassailing.

Parisian revelers have booked up all available night club reservations.

European airlines and trains were bound for holiday fun spots.

Allied armed forces in Europe and Britain joined with host country families for the celebrations. Helicopters dropped Santa Clauses on both the British and U.S. armed forces in West Germany and British soldiers were served rum-laced tea in bed by their officers.

No Yule For 3 U.S. Pilots Held By Reds

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Three American pilots in Soviet prisons are likely to have an austere Christmas, but nobody except their Russian keepers knows for sure.

The three are Francis Gary Powers of Pound, Va., whose U2 dropped down last May 1 over Sverdlovsk and precipitated an international crisis, and Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y., and Capt. John R. McCone of Topeka, Kan., whose RB47 reconnaissance bomber was shot down over the Barents Sea July 1.

All are believed to be held in the vicinity of Moscow.

Packages have been sent by their families. For the most part these contained warm clothing, because this was specified by Soviet authorities as advisable as presents.

But a special gift was sent to Olmstead. His wife and children recorded their voices on a record and sent it to him.

That record reached the U.S. Embassy Friday and it was immediately repackaged for forwarding to the police authorities for delivery.

The families of Powers and McCone have sent their packages directly to security police headquarters in Moscow.

Only the Russians know whether the three will have any special observance at all. Soviet authorities have kept strict secrecy about both the reconnaissance pilots, and about Powers since he was sentenced last Aug. 20 to 10 years on spy charges.

Regularly the embassy asks to see the prisoners, but these requests are denied.

For Christmas . . .

28 Thankful Survivors Head Home

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Twenty-eight survivors from the storm-wrecked tanker Pine Ridge reached shore and happily headed for Christmas at home Friday, but with some bitter parting comments about the vessel's seaworthiness.

Robert Gill, of Monterrey, Mexico, said the tanker broke up without warning in weather that normally would be no threat to a ship of her size.

Gill asserted that, on her last previous voyage, the Pine Ridge's hull was split on the port side, beside her No. 7 tank. Gill said the split was patched with concrete for the trip which ended two days ago in a breakup off Cape Hatteras.

However, Gill said the final break was between the No. 5 and 6 tanks.

Two other members of the crew, James C. Lewis of Winston-Salem, N. C., and I. H. Hulsey, of Corpus Christi, Tex., applied such terms as "rust bucket" and "unseaworthy" to the tanker.

Nevertheless, all the surviving crew members voiced their thankfulness at being able to spend Christmas with loved ones—and to be alive.

Brought To Base

They were brought in to the Norfolk Naval Base by the destroyer Conway just slightly more than two days after violent sea broke their ship apart and sank half of it in a few harrowing minutes.

Some were annoyed, however, at being summoned to return Wednesday for an inquiry concerning the tanker's misfortune.

First things were put first on arrival for the men who weathered the disaster that apparently took the lives of their skipper and six other shipmates in the angry Atlantic 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras.

A paymaster for the owners went aboard and paid them up to date before they met with newsmen.

The men showed few signs of their ordeal but all reflected the thanks that they had been snug in the stern section of the Pine Ridge when mountainous seas tore her bow away.

The destroyer took the men off the carrier Valley Forge whose helicopters plucked them one by one from the tossing stern section 170 miles southeast of Norfolk.

The other known survivor among the 36-member ship's company of the Pine Ridge, Chief Engineer John Richart of Wilmington, Del., remained aboard the stern section, which was being readied for tow by tugs for the painstakingly slow trip to Norfolk. Richart was joined by four salvage men from the tug Curb.

The buoyant spirits of the landed survivors was checked when they recalled the gripping moment of the breakaway of their ship's bow Wednesday.

Tells How

Chester Reed, an oiler from Corpus Christi, Tex., said: "I was laying down in my bunk when everything started falling around me. I ran topside and saw it split. I was scared but I figured I was going to be safe. I was praying and hoping."

I. H. Hulsey, also of Corpus Christi, said the bow broke off with a loud "pop" rather than tearing away gradually.

None of them reported seeing what happened to the other crewmen aboard the forward part of the ship, although some of these were spotted in the water by a Coast Guard aircraft.

Holiday Death Toll Set At 510

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The start of the long Christmas weekend found thousands of motorists on the road Friday night.

The home-for-Christmas traffic always is heavy. And this time normal driving hazards were heightened by slick or snow-packed highways in many parts of the country.

The National Safety Council estimated that 510 Americans may be killed in motor vehicle accidents in the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and will end at midnight Monday.

The council stressed in a plea to motorists that speeding and drinking have been the foremost factors in Christmas holiday fatalities in the past.

The Christmas period of 1959—also three days — was a time of tragedy for many families. Traffic deaths numbered 493, fires accounted for 43, and 73 persons died in a variety of other accidents for an over-all total of 609.

The record traffic and over-all tolls during a three-day observance of Christmas were set in 1955. There were 609 deaths in traffic, 68 in fires and 105 in the miscellaneous class for a total of 782.

For the purpose of making comparisons when the final 1960 Christmas tallies are recorded, The Associated Press made a survey, of a 78-hour nonholiday weekend. The survey, made during the Dec. 9-Dec. 12 period, showed there were 293 deaths in traffic, 47 in fires and 113 in the miscellaneous bracket for an all-accident toll of 453.

Harsh Cold Continues In Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harsh cold clung to the Northeast Friday, but an arctic weather siege moderated in the Midwest and South.

Subzero temperatures which plunged as low as 25 degrees under the zero mark at Joliet, Ill., earlier in the day, were dissipated by a shift of winds from westerly to southerly over much of the Midwest frigid zone.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Weather Bureau Friday predicted fair weather for most of the nation on Christmas Day.

Except for the northeastern area, where continued quite cold is expected, temperatures are expected to be near normal in all sections.

"Mostly fair skies should predominate," the bureau said, "with precipitation restricted to a few widely separated areas.

New England, however, was in for a repeat of the harshness of Thursday night when the mercury skidded to -18 at Rumford, Maine, and subzero readings were common in New Hampshire.

Buffalo, N.Y., dug itself out of a paralyzing 12-inch snow which whipped inland from Lake Erie, snarling traffic on thruways and at the airport, and choking streets with stalled cars.

There was snow in the Midwest, mingled with freezing rain in southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois. The new fall and glaze spread atop three to five inches of snow remaining from earlier in the week. Highways in the area were extremely slick, and traffic crawled.

Temperatures remained near zero during the day in the Canadian border region from Minnesota to New York, and in the Upper Ohio Valley. The freezing line drew back northward from the Gulf, and milder weather came to the South and Southeast.

The West Coast enjoyed pleasantly mild weather, and Southern California had 70s during the day.

Good Morning!

The Daily Record wants to take this opportunity to wish you and yours the very best during the Christmas holidays.

A PRR Limited Ran Out Of Gas

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad's Manhattan Limited, with 14 passenger cars, ran out of diesel fuel and was stranded near Lewistown for 2 hours in sub-zero weather Friday.

The Chicago-to-New York train already running five hours late exhausted its fuel at Mifflin about 2:30 a. m.

A fuel truck was sent from Lewistown to keep the engine's generators going and to provide heat for the train.

A freight diesel engine was sent from Harrisburg to help the train in and to make sure it didn't run out of fuel again.

It arrived here at 10:20 a. m., 7¼ hours late.

One passenger said "it was freezing in there."

The Golden Text

Mother and Child from the "Holy Night" by Correggio.

"Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." —Luke 2:10-11.

Today's Lesson

By Newman Campbell

Christmas time again. What memories it must bring to older people who have celebrated many Christmases. It is a time of giving of gifts to family and close friends. But don't forget those who are too poor to buy gifts and some who may have no families or friends with whom to celebrate. Let us, if we know such a person, invite whoever it may be to share our festivities and make him feel that he does have friends and try to convince him he is not alone in a friendless world.

On the night of Christ's birth "there were shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, an angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone around about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord: .. . And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manager."—Luke 2:8-12.

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke 2:3-14.

When the angels went away, the shepherds went to Bethlehem to see this wondrous Child, and when they had seen Him they told everyone about Him, and all wondered. "But Mary, His Mother, kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart."—Luke 2:17-19.

Givers Are Often Bothered In Gift-Giving This Season

Religion Today
By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

IN this gift-giving season, the givers often are bothered, baffled and bewildered about what to give.

Commercial tips abound, but they have a somewhat impersonal tinge.

Guidance, both old and new, is being offered on the problem these days.

Some rather classic suggestions, revived in a recent issue of Christianity Today, come from the famous 19th century American essayist, poet and philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson.

In a treatise on "gifts," he offers some ideas classified in a sort of staircase fashion according to the relationship and need of the recipient.

On the first level, when you just don't know what to give, give flowers or fruit.

"Flowers because they are a proud assertion that a ray of beauty outvalues all the utilities of the world," he says. "Fruits because they are the flower of commodities."

As evidence of the wisdom of such a choice, it is noted that a wife is far more delighted by a cluster of carnations from her husband than by a new broom, even though the broom has greater usefulness.

On the first step above flowers and fruit, Emerson lists the "gifts of necessity," such as shoes for a man who needs shoes. Obviously, you shouldn't give him a paintbox.

On the level above meeting a person's need is the gift personally associated with the recipient; that is, a gift recognizing the receiver's hobby, interest or avocation, such as a composer's biography to a musician, a saddle blanket for a horseman.

On the highest level of giving, Emerson places the gift representing part of the giver's own craftsmanship or creativity—the poet bringing his poem, the shepherd his sheep, the farmer his produce, the painter his painting.

These are worthy gifts, Emerson says, offering a part of the giver himself to the recipient. He disdains the buying of baubles and trinkets from mass producers as meaningless sorts of gifts.

Another set of suggestions for infusing your gift-giving with the special spirit of Christmas generosity comes from the Rev. Graham R. Hodges of Emanuel Congregational church, Watertown, N.Y.

In the Methodist magazine, Together, he gives this advice:

1. Break the habit of gift-swapping. Give gifts to those outside your circle of family, and to friends who cannot repay you in kind.

2. Write a note of appreciation to someone who, during the year, did some outstanding public work in an unselfish manner, or whose words or deeds were an inspiration to you. Such words of commendation are especially appreciated.

3. Telephone or visit some lonely person to wish him a merry Christmas. You may be his only caller during the whole season.

4. Send a cash gift through a church or charitable channel to needy people overseas. You will be helping people who will never know their benefactor. In giving in secret, as Scripture says, "your Father who sees in secret will reward you."

5. Invite someone to Christmas dinner with you, a foreign student, perhaps, who cannot repay you in kind.

6. Provide your minister with a cash gift for someone in need, specifying that he not reveal your name.

As Emerson says, the worth of any gift, or the affection of its giver, can never be judged by a price tag, and it is only as a man gives of himself and his love, that his gift has the highest value.

Moravian Services For Newfoundland

NEWFOUNDLAND—The candlelight service of the Moravian Church, scheduled for 8 p.m. on Christmas Eve, is a family worship service open to everyone.

Even before those attending enter the church, the mood for the service will be set by the lifelike and lighted creche in the churchyard. Two live donkeys will help to recreate the scene so many years ago in Bethlehem.

The program will begin with music by the choir and the reading of Scriptures concerning the first Christmas. There will be a choral reading group giving voice to Old Testament prophecies, and there will be recitations by the small children.

An original, one-act play will be presented entitled, "Christmas, 1960," the play has a cast including James Hinton, Jean Mary Burdick, Terry Staph, Terry Voeste and Elaine Hinton. There will also be a nativity scene in brief pageant form.

The candlelight service will feature the singing of "Morning Star," with Donna Stevens, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glen Stevens, as soloist.

In this service, the whole church is darkened with the exception of the glowing Advent Star in the chancel and the single candle held by the soloist. This bees wax candle symbolizing the purity of Christ, the light of the world, is duplicated by candles held by each member of the congregation. Each candle is then lighted, symbolizing the spreading of the gospel.

A great and mighty wonder
Today on earth is done;
Behold a virgin mother
Brings forth God's only Son.

The Word now dwells among us,
Made flesh, yet very God:
And cherubim sing anthems
To Shepherds all abroad.

Since all He comes to succor,
By all be He adored,
The infant born in Bethlehem,
The Saviour and the Lord.

St. Germanus (Hymnal Version, 1940)

The Greatest Gift

It's wonderful to receive "the world" for Christmas—but think how much more wonderful it would be if we could give Christmas to the world! If the true Christian spirit could permeate the globe, all fear of war, destruction, extermination, would be over.

It is only through the Church that Christian teachings can hope to reach to the darkest corners on earth, bringing enlightenment in their wake. By proclaiming God's eternal message, the Church can bring the hope of peace closer to reality.

But if Christmas is to be given to the world, then all of us must first do our part by living our own individual lives in the Christian way. Start now—by attending regularly the church of your faith.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Christmas Story

St. Luke 2:1-14

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.

And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David).

To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that while they were there the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

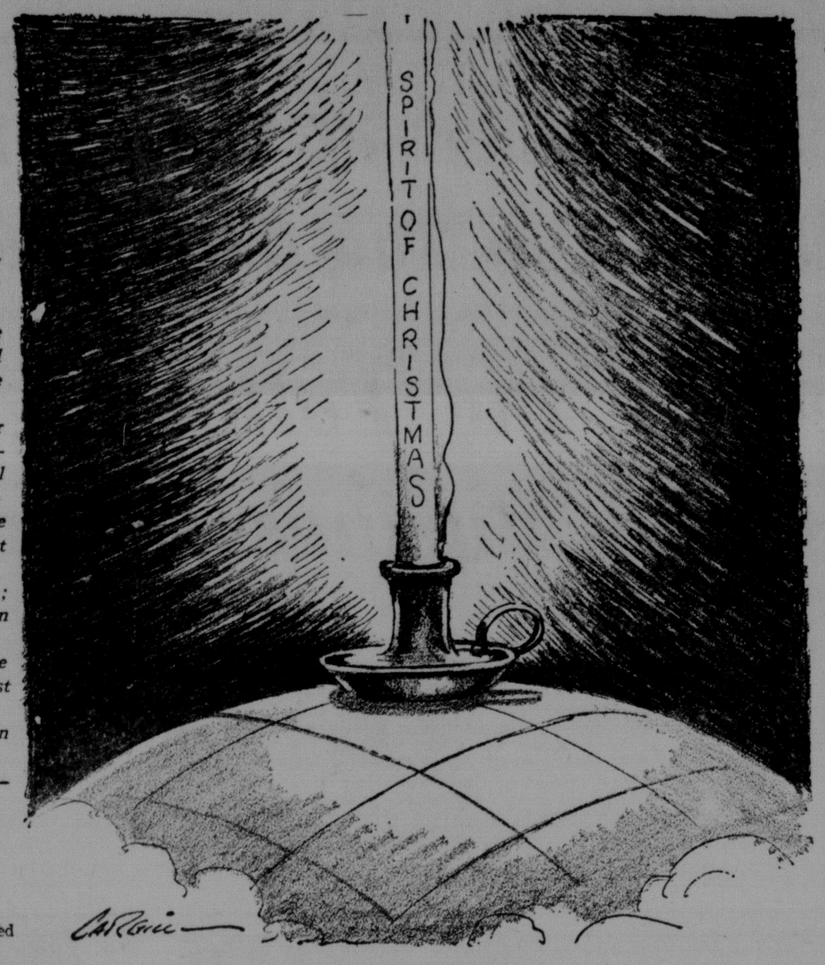
And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.



Deep Are The Roots!

Reports From Congress

School Integration

By Congressional Quarterly

Washington — (CQ) — Public school integration in 17 Southern states and the District of Columbia edged upward in the fall of 1960, but the gains were mostly in border states rather than the "deep South."

Statistics published in December by the non-artisan Southern School News showed that of 3,097,534 Negro school children enrolled in originally all-segregated school districts, 195,625, or 6.3 per cent, were attending classes with white children when the fall term opened in 1960.

The previous school year ended with a total Negro enrollment of 3,020,727, with 181,020 or 6 per cent, in integrated classes.

District of Columbia Leads — According to the survey, 191,349, or nearly all, of the integrated Negro students are concentrated in the District of Columbia and six border states. The District of Columbia has the highest rate of integration, with all schools desegregated and 84.1 per cent of the Negro pupils actually attending classes with white pupils. Others are West Virginia, with 66.6 per cent of the Negro students attending racially mixed classes; Delaware, 44.7 per cent; Missouri, 41.7 per cent; Kentucky, 38.9 per cent; Oklahoma, 24 per cent; and Maryland, 20.9 per cent.

However, these states account for only 14 per cent of the total Southern Negro enrollment. In the remaining Southern states, integration remains non-existent or mainly token. Texas, with 3,500, or 1.2 per cent of its Negro students attending desegregated classes, leads the group. Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, with 36 per cent of the Southern Negro enrollment, as yet have integrated none of their schools. Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia together have 776 Negroes attending integrated classes out of a total Negro enrollment of 2,663,520.

State Actions — Following are some recent developments in states affected by the school desegregation question:

Arkansas — Voters Nov. 8 turned down by a three-to-one vote a state constitutional amendment, supported by Gov. Orval E. Faubus (D), which would have allowed schools to be closed to avoid integration.

Delaware — The Third Circuit Court of Appeals Aug. 29 struck down the state's "grade-a-year" integration plan as not meeting the requirement of "all deliberate speed" laid down by the Supreme Court in its historic 1954 desegregation decision. An appeal of the Aug. 29 action was pending before the Supreme Court.

Florida — The number of Negroes in "desegregated" classes dropped from 512 in the 1959-60 school year to 27 this year when the lone white student dropped out of the Orchard Villa School, Miami. This left the state with only one desegregated school, also in Miami.

Georgia — A U.S. District Court has ordered Atlanta's schools integrated by May 1, 1961, but state authorities were doubtful the necessary administrative actions would be completed before September.

Mississippi — Voters Nov. 8 ratified a constitutional amendment making it discretionary rather than mandatory for the state legislature to provide free public schools.

Louisiana — In the first desegregation of schools in the deep South, four Negro girls are attending two New Orleans elementary schools in the face of mob violence, a white boycott and efforts by the state legislature to block the integration program. The Negro pupils entered the classes Nov. 14 as the first step in a "grade-a-year" program. The Supreme Court Dec. 12 refused to delay a lower court order requiring New Orleans to carry out its desegregation plan on schedule.

Tennessee — The Chattanooga Board of Education was under orders from a U. S. District Court to produce a desegregation plan by Dec. 20, 1960. Tennessee now has 342 of its 19,644 Negro students attending integrated classes.

Social Security Guide

Q. I am 65 and will retire in March and expect to claim social security benefits shortly thereafter. What papers will I need when I file?

A. Before discussing the documents you will need when you file your claim, I would like to point out the appropriate time to file your claim. You should visit the social security office 60 to 90 days before you retire. By learning what will be neded to process your claim and filing your claim before you actually retire, you can speed your first social security check when you retire. The documents you will need are your social security number, some proof of your age, and evidence of your earnings for the previous year. Your proof of age can be any old document which shows your name and date of birth or age. This includes such documents as an old family Bible, old insurance policy, military service records, etc. Evidence of your earnings can be a W-2 form (withholding slip) if you are an employee or your Federal income tax return if you are self-employed. Also, bring your wife and something to prove her age if she is age 62 or over or has minor or disabled children in her care.

Q. Do I have to be 65 before I can check on my social security?

A. No. We suggest that you check with the social security office about 60 to 90 days before you reach retirement age (age 62 for women, age 65 for men) or before you plan to retire.

Q. I am a self-employed farmer, but I have never paid social security taxes because I've had a loss every year. What can I do about my social security now?

A? Special provisions in the social security law make it easier for the low income farmer to derive earnings for OASI purposes. This provision is called the optional method. You may either report your actual net or an amount equal to two-thirds of your gross, even though you have had a loss. However, under this method, you cannot report more than $1,200 and you cannot report if your gross income for the year was less than $600. You may now file amended self-employment returns using this optional method for the years 1956 on, so that you will receive credit for the past three years.

Q. I operate a busy restaurant and the hired help comes and goes. Most new employes give me their names and social security numbers orally without further reference; partly because we are busy. Later on I receive correspondence from the Social Security Administration, the Internal Revenue Service and the State Employment Service because the social security numbers and sometimes the names of my employes are not correct. What is the best and simplest procedure to avoid these mixups with these state and federal agencies?

A. The simple answer is: To record the new employes name and social security exactly as it appears on their social security card. Do not depend on a person's memory regarding his social security number. Also watch for name differences. Some waitresses still carry cards with their maiden names long after they have been married.

Q. During the past few years, I have moved from place to place and worked for many different people. What should I do to make sure I get credit for all of my work?

A. When you report for a new job, you should show your social security card to your new employer so that he can copy the name and number exactly as they appear on your card. You should also keep a record of the name and address of each employer as well as the dates of your employment and the amount of your wages. Then check your social security account at least every three years.

Q. One of my foremen hired two extra men on a construction job but didn't get their social security numbers. Do I just forget about them in making my quarterly tax report to the Internal Revenue Service?

A. No. If you cannot locate these men and obtain their social security account numbers, then report them by name and last known address, together with the amount of wages you paid each of them.

CUTIES —By E. Simms Campbell

"—And I won't pour ink in daddy's coffee or put glue in my sister's oatmeal—if I get those things you forgot about LAST year."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Christmas 1960

And so the rhythm of life moves its constant course and comes around to where it was only a year before — another Christmas.

As in nature, so it is in the affairs of man, no matter how materialistic his life may be, his soul cries out for life and love, for joy and peace.

So each year, the Holy Days of his particular faith remind him of the permanence of life, of the eternity of his ancestry. Those who celebrate Christmas go back 1960 years for their birthday and there are those who go back 4000 and 5000 years in their historic memory.

It is this historic memory which really is what holidays and holy days are for. They remind man that he is not alone, that life did not begin with him nor will it end with him.

Christmas has universal acceptance, even among those who are not Christians, because the form of our lives is essentially based upon the concepts which Jesus spoke with such eloquence. What do we all crave in this day as in His day? We crave peace — peace of mind, peace in our homes, peace in our nation, peace among nations. Jesus, who moved among men in the warring, imperial Roman Empire, sought peace and social justice:

"No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other.

"Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

In an age of materialism, we need to be reminded:

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:

"But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal:

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

So this is the essential lesson of Christmas in the year of danger and courage when we are being pressed in the mould of an evil doctrine. We know that we sit amid plenty and we dine and wine and purchase compulsively but the things are as dross because we fear war and we witness evil and we wonder if man will ever return to the good life.

This is what Christmas means and in 1961, through the initiative of Pope John XXIII, it is possible that a new day may dawn among those who believe in God's mercy but who do not believe each other.

They may sit down, the communicants and the ex-communicated, to break bread and to ask: What have we done to God's house, we mortal men who have been graced with wisdom? We have spent centuries hating each other, whereas we have been counselled to love our neighbors.

We mouth prayers thoughtlessly and by rote but our hearts have become sterile and we forget that throughout his long travail upon this Earth, man has lived by faith and only where faith is strong can life be rich. Jesus said:

"Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

Shall we be cowards before the onslaught of the sons of evil? Shall we say that if we stand firm in our faith, we shall be destroyed by bombs and missiles and rockets? Shall we perish from fear before we die?

Shall we say to our sons, bow before the idols of Marx, Lenin, Stalin, Khrushchev lest you be forced to defend your faith and your civilization and the God of your fathers? Have we the courage of the Maccabees or are we Pharisees who bow to the powers that threaten?

Jesus came among men as a Jew. He did not appear in Rome or in Athens or in Antioch. He appeared in Jerusalem among a people who had a religion of social justice. He carried that Faith before Him until it became the foundation of Western civiliazation.

Men always betray what is sacred and in the name of the beautiful and good commit evil. But what is beautiful is still beautiful and what is good is good. And may your Christmas Day bring to your heart joy and peace and a love for all men.

Mirror of Time

—by J. D. Shafer

The newspapers of 10 and 20 years ago were filled with letters to Santa from the children of Monroe County and a few lines of the struggle of war, both World War I and Korea. As I read the lines of the events a thought crossed my mind.

This is the time of year when the air is full of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men", a time when we try to push out the troubles of the world and of our own.

With this in mind I thought it would be nice to omit the incidents that would prevent you from clearing your mind and allow you the time it would normally take to read this column to turn your thoughts to "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

May your holiday be the very best you have ever known and may each thought bring happines to you and yours.

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

Today is the day when the boy and girl who delivers the paper to your doorstep makes with her best smile and extends the personal greetings of your daily newspaper.

Over the year, and with some the years, these carriers of local world news traveled through snow, sleet, rain and hot humid weather to get, so to speak, the "mail" through.

There is little compensation for these hardy young folks except the satisfaction that they did a job and did it to the best of their ability.

We always think of the paper boy as a lad who must turn up with his gazette no matter what. Perhaps we do not take in the hardships he endures during the 300-odd days of peddling.

Being Christmas, the time of the year when we take values for what its worth, it would be a good thought to go over the assets that this lad or girl bestowed on us six days a week and 52 weeks a year.

There is no one who does so much for so many than the carrier of our public information. Today let's doff our hats a little higher in recognition of this accomplishment.

Charlie Allen, the smiling Stroudsburg police officer, can do two things at once.

Yesterday Charley was directing traffic in front of Stroud Union High when a vender came along and offered the policeman a cup of coffee.

With the temperature at the zero mark, Charley accepted the drink and continued to send cars and trucks thisaway and thataway while sipping the warm beverage.

It might have been the coldest morning in years yesterday but Rev. Drury of the Pilgrim Holiness Church of Stroudsburg saw a robin while taking his children to school.

Rev. Drury has several other birdwatchers to verify the oddity of the century.

The Allen-Scott Report

Suggestions Welcomed

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The top Republican chiefs of the Senate and House are laying down three basic guidelines for their relations with other GOP leaders in the coming session of Congress.

At an unannounced strategy conference, these powerful legislative leaders reached the following significant decisions:

To oppose the setting up of "outside" advisory committees — as former Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler did in 1959, over the strong disapproval of his party's congressional chiefs. The GOP leaders are as strenuously opposed to such a move as their Democratic counterparts, and already have served notice of that on "outside" leaders.

Reserved for themselves the full determination of their party's stand on legislation, particularly measures proposed by the Kennedy Administration. "Suggestions will be welcomed" from Vice President Nixon and Governor Nelson Rockefeller. But that's all. Neither they nor other "outside" leaders will be allowed to participate in the deliberations of the congressional policy makers, nor have any voice in what they say and do.

Closely scrutinize all the Kennedy cabinet selections, particularly those for the Treasury and Justice Departments —Republican Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon and youthful Robert Kennedy. Republican members of the Senate committee that will consider the cabinet appointments will be briefed on what to ask them. The questioning will be especially directed at their business and other holdings.

Taking part in this momentous backstage meeting were Senators Everett Dirksen, Ill., the Floor Leader; Styles Bridges, N. H., head of the Policy Committee; Barry Goldwater, Ariz., chairman of the Campaign Committee; and Representative Charles Halleck, Ind., the party's Floor Leader in the House.

No outside help — The blunt rejection of "outside" advisory committees arose from a proposal by New York's Republican Senators Jacob Javits and Kenneth Keating — the former a Rockefeller supporter, and the latter for Nixon.

Keating has made no secret he favors advisory committees to give Nixon a say in GOP legislative policy.

In the congressional chief's private discussion they were emphatically unanimous in that they have no intention of letting Nixon, Rockefeller or any other "outside" leader tell them what should or shouldn't do on legislation.

"We are the elected representatives of the party," said Halleck, "and its our responsibility to determine what stand the party takes on legislation, especially from the Democratic Administration. I say it's up to us to run our show in Congress, and the others to take care of their own."

Dirksen heartily agreed with that.

"We already have advisory committees," declared the Illinoisan. "That's the function of our House and Senate policy committees. That's what they were set up for, to advise us. I see absolutely no reason for outside advisers. They would only muddy the waters."

Goldwater was equally emphatic.

"Formulating legislative policy is our responsibility," he said, "and we should accept it. Furthermore, I am against either defeated or aspiring candidates having a say on that."

Bridges expressed willingness to "receive suggestions." But that's as far as the veteran GOP chief would go.

"If anyone in the party has sound ideas and recommendations, I'm sure we'll welcome them," he said. "But beyond that, it's up to the Republican members of Congress to make their own decisions. We don't need 'outside' advisers to do that for us."

In a post-mortem analysis of the election, the legislative leaders were sharply critical of Attorney General William Rogers and Labor Secretary James Mitchell, both close to Nixon.

Rogers and Mitchell were blamed for ill-advising him on campaign strategy.

GOP politicals — Mrs. Nixon has said nothing publicly since the election, but she is telling friends the last hasn't been heard of Republican charges of voting frauds. To one neighbor Mrs. Nixon said, "We don't blame Senator Kennedy for that. We're sure he didn't have a thing to do with it. But there was a lot of dishonesty and corruption, and it's going to come out." . . . California's next gubernatorial race is still two years off, but the GOP pot is already bubbling. Latest candidate to be boomed is Los Angeles County's colorful Sheriff Pete Pitchess, former FBI agent and friend of Vice President Nixon. Also eagerly eyeing this prize is San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher, who visited Russia early this year as the guest of Premier Khrushchev — before the U-2 reconnaissance plane episode and his violent diatribes against President Eisenhower.

Inside You And Yours

Food Poisoning

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Doubting Thomas: You want me to catch pneumonia? all this about pneumonia? You've got a cold, and penicillin won't help. It might even hurt.

D. T.: How?

M. D.: Your intestine is a battlegrond where millions of germs fight to survive. A chronic food shortage limits any population explosion.

D. T.: What's all this got to do with a shot of penicillin?

M. D.: No germ killer kills all germs. After most germs have been done in by antibiotics, those that remain live off the fat of the land. Result: A germ population explosion.

Staph Germs

D. T.: Are you talking about those staph germs?

M. D.: Yes. Staph germs laid your friend, Artie, low last year. You remember — when he had pneumonia.

D. T.: Gee, staph germs caused his pneumonia?

Bullet-Proof Vest

M. D.: No, by the time penicillin and its cousins had cured his pneumonia, they had killed almost every intestinal germ except staph, which has grown a bullet-proof vest that antibiotic drugs can't penetrate. So when staph bacteria took over, they gave him bad food poisoning.

D. T.: Food poisoning?

M. D.: He had the same symptoms—dry heaves, painful cramps, intestinal rivers and fever. We cured him with newer antibiotics that pierce bacterial bullet-proof vests.

But staph is only one of many trouble-makers. Even harmless germs can grow into raging mobs that overwhelm your intestinal defenses. All they need is plenty of food — and no competition!

D. T.: Bacteria certainly are complicated.

Fungus Trouble

M. D.: Antibiotics are, too! They can also start fungus trouble.

D. T.: Fungus?

M. D.: Little molds that light up fiery patches of red, itchy skin at both ends of the digestive tract. They may even invade your bloodstream and threaten life if you're not strong.

D. T.: Can drugs cure fungus?

Combination Medicines

M. D.: Yes, some medicines combine both fungus-killer and antibiotics in the same capsule —just in case. Vitamin B also helps.

D. T.: That's enough. No unnecessary penicillin for me. And the next guy who tells me to get a shot for my cold—

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Residents of a certain community in the midwest awoke one morning some years ago to find posters plastered on every billboard, fence, and barn door in sight. All of them contained a single sentence: HE IS COMING!

Nobody could figure out who "HE" might be or who had posted the signs, but by noon the town was talking of nothing else. A week later to the day, a second poster replaced the first one. This one read, "He will be here Friday night in Town Hall at 8 p.m. sharp. Admission One Dollar."

By 7 p.m., Friday night, the hall was packed to the rafters. The townfolk had each forked over a buck for a ticket to a strange man in the box office who made change with great facility but could not be induced to speak a single word.

At 7:59 p.m., the house lights dimmed, the audience grew silent, and the curtain rose. On the stage was a third sign. This one read, HE HAS GONE!

Bob Hope nominates as one of his most sure-fire stories — especially when he's entertaining the armed forces — the story of the man who had been cleaning up the elephant enclosure in a circus for 25 years. "This year is just too much," he complained to his wife. "They've just bought 20 more elephants. This makes over 50 for me to clean up after."

"Why don't you quit?" suggested the wife. "What?" roared he, "and give up Show Business?"

A fellow officer, notes Paul Healy, once told Major General Joe Maas that he was the only Marine general to have served a full year while blind.

"Not really," chuckled General Maas. "I'm just the first to admit it."

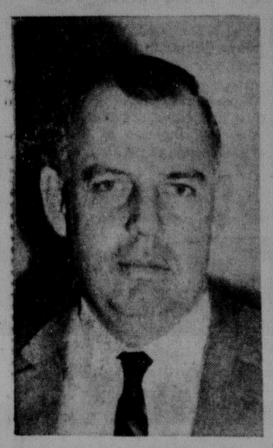
Their Best Christmas



HENRY McCOOL, Monroe County probation officer: The Christmas I recall the most was the Christmas of 1945 when I was discharged from the Army. It was the first I had spent the holidays at home in four years. Being home with the family on this day of days is one of the nicest presents anyone can be thankful for.

MARYANNE HEETER, Bell Telephone Co. employe: The Christmas I hold as my best Christmas was last year. My daughter, Debbie, was 18 months old and it was the first year she was old enough to appreciate the holiday. It seemed her eyes were looking all around and her hands tearing into the presents Santa Claus brought for her.

JAMES R. MARSH, Monroe County District Attorney: It would be very hard for me to try to pick the best Christmas I have ever had. They all have been wonderful and as they go by I find some little thing to remember about each one. I could go on at great length pointing out the things of each Christmas I recall but that would be too long.

MARILYN REESE, secretary for Monroe County district attorney: Trying to pick out the best Christmas I have ever had is to me an almost impossible task. I am of the same feeling as Attorney Marsh, each one has given me some little something to leave me with a remembrance of each Christmas past.

JEANNETTE F. BATORY, Monroe County register and recorder: The Christmas I remember best was when I was about six years old and there had been a very heavy snowfall. We didn't have a tree and my father went out on Christmas morning to cut one. The only one he could find was a pine and he thought we wouldn't like it. But we decorated it and I've never forgotten it.

FLORENCE M. RIDGEWAY, Monroe County deputy prothonotary: My best Christmas was about three years ago when I was in the hospital and found out there was nothing wrong with my heart. I had planned to go to Scranton to visit relatives, but the doctors told me I couldn't. At the last minute they changed their minds and I went. I also visited a specialist who told me my heart was OK.

Sleigh Riding On Fulmer Ave.

STROUDSBURG Chief of Police John Tretheway requested last night that motorists try to avoid using Wallace St. between Scott and Brown St.

Barricades have been erected by the police department so the children can sleigh ride on Fulmer Ave., he announced.

Several reports have been received at the control center that the barricades have been removed to allow vehicles to pass. This has been done by motorists, the chief said, and action will be taken against this violation.

"Sleigh riding for children is part of a child's Christmas.

Lets all help them enjoy the holiday," Chief Tretheway exclaimed.

Rarick Loses Bid To Run For Head Of Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Millworker Donald C. Rarick lost out Friday in his bid to run for president of the 1,200,000-member United Steelworkers, assuring the re-election of David J. McDonald.

Rarick, 42, a once-defeated candidate, failed even to win nomination this time for a place on the ballot in the union's quadrennial election Feb. 14.

This left the 58-year-old McDonald with no official opposition for the $50,000-a-year job which he has held since 1952.

In the 1957 election, McDonald defeated Rarick by slightly less than a 2-to-1 majority after the strapping furnace tender easily gained nomination. The tally was 404,172 to 223,516.

That was the first election contest for president in the history of the union, founded in 1942.

Headquarters of the USW reported Friday morning McDonald received nominations of 2,136 locals compared with the 40 needed by a candidate for international office.

The union did not disclose how many nominations Rarick gained, but The Associated Press learned the figure was about 20.

Unopposed

USW vice president Howard Hague and secretary-treasurer I. W. Abel also will be unopposed for re-election. They got 2,132 and 2,155 nominations, respectively. No others were in the races.

Rarick, an employe of U.S. Steel Corp. in McKeesport, Pa., is president of USW Local 2227. He heads an insurgent faction of union members opposed to the McDonald administration.

Reached at work, Rarick commented:

"If the union wants to block me from being put on the ballot, we have plans. But I can't tell you now what these plans are until I get a complete report from the union. We'll let them play their hand first. I'm not beat yet."

Rarick secured 60 nominations in his first campaign, centered on opposition to an increase in union dues from $3 to $5 a month in 1956.

McDonald succeeded the late Philip Murray as president in 1952, and was elected to his first four-year term in 1953. He previously served as secretary-treasurer.

New Born Baby Dies

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — A baby delivered by his mother after an automobile stuck in the snow died Friday.

Joseph Ros, weighing less than three pounds, had been in an incubator since a few hours after his birth 10 days ago on a country road. His mother, Mrs. Harry Ros, 27, survived the experience remarkably well, doctors said.

The baby, several weeks premature, arrived while neighbors and Ros battled giant drifts to free the automobile. Four hours and five and a half miles later they reached a main road and took the mother and child to Community Hospital in nearby Ephrata.

Teachers To Get Salaries

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—It will be a merry Christmas for teachers at the city's two integrated schools, but most of the other 5,500 school employes faced a bleak holiday.

Four New Orleans banks bowed to a federal court order Friday and released some $728,000 of school money. A segregationist-bent legislature had frozen the funds.

The school board quickly paid about 100 employes at integrated William Frantz and McDonogh No. 19 schools and administrative school board workers.

But the $728,000 was far short of the $1.9 million needed to cover the December payroll for the rest of the city's school employes. They went payless.

Some 4,000 teachers, principals and secretaries were due their December paychecks Friday—for four weeks of work already put in. Another 1,500 maintenance workers and others were due weekly and semimonthly paychecks.

The action puts teachers at the two integrated schools in a better financial position now than those at segregated schools.

An anonymous donor gave $16,000 to pay the November salaries of teachers at Frantz and McDonogh. The legislature, which felt the teachers should boycott the schools, had withheld the money.

Checks paid Friday mean Frantz and McDonogh teachers are up to date on their salaries. Teachers at the rest of the city's schools—all segregated—are now behind one four-week period.

School Supt. James Redmond said the board would also use the newly released funds to pay audited bills from city merchants. They total $536,000.

A three-judge federal court Wednesday ordered the banks and the city of New Orleans to turn over school funds to the board. The city still holds school tax money amounting to $200,000.

For a time this week, it appeared New Orleans teachers — with the exception of those at integrated schools—would be paid by the legislature.

However, lawmakers held back paychecks after the federal court handed down contempt citations against three top state officials for interfering in integration.

Cost Of Living Hits New High

WASHINTGON (AP) — Another rise in food prices nudged living costs to a record level last month, the government reported Friday.

The consumer price index rose by less than one-tenth of 1 per cent to 127.4. The increase from October marked the eighth new high in nine months. In the index, 100 represents the average price level for 1947-48.

Since November a year ago, living costs have increased 1.4 per cent, with food accounting for more than half the rise.

This November, food prices were up two-tenths of 1 per cent whereas they almost always decline in that month. Prices of lettuce, snap beans and tomatoes advanced sharply and those of eggs and meats failed to drop nearly as much as usual for the month.

Also contributing to the November cost of living increase were higher movie prices and hikes in medical insurance premiums.

Take Home

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also reported that the average take-home pay of an average factory worker with three dependents dropped 23 cents a week in November to $80.95. This was blamed on shorter hours stemming from the business slowdown.

Coupled with the advance in living costs, the smaller paychecks meant a drop of ½ to 1 per cent in the buying power of factory workers. During the past year, earnings have risen but buying power has dropped slightly.

The November rise in the price index will mean cost-of-living wage boosts for 225,000 workers. Most are employed in the meat-packing and aircraft-missile industries, and will get increases of 2 cents an hour.

Robert J. Myers, deputy commissioner of labor statistics, told newsmen the December price outlook is for little or no change.

Myer also reported that prices of compact cars were partially incorporated in the November index for the first time.

By January, he said, compacts will account for 28 per cent of the index for new autos.

New car prices rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in November, which was much less than usual for the month. Prices of used cars continued to decline.

Kennedy Appoints New Aide

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy chose as his chief economic adviser Friday a University of Minnesota expert who wants a built-in system of adjusting taxes to business slumps and booms.

Dr. Walter W. Heller 45, who said the nation is in a recession and faced with "a basic slack in the economy," will be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. This is an agency, in the office of the president himself, which Kennedy said now will be revitalized and given larger responsibilities.

Kennedy, who has voiced concern with unemployment and a lack of economic vigor, said that shortly after he takes office on Jan. 20 "we will be discussing the condition of the economy and what steps could be profitably taken to improve that position." By the end of January, he said, it should be able to make a much better judgment on the future of the national economy.

Kennedy announced the Heller appointment with Heller at his side. The setting was the customary one for such business: a news conference in the patio of the Kennedy home.

Heller at present is chairman of the economic department at the University of Minnesota. He has been a tax and economic adviser to many agencies, national and international, for many years. Kennedy called him one of the country's most distinguished economists.

As Heller sees the economic picture now, the nation has been in a recession for six months and still is in one. He said there have been "three and a half years of lagging employment and growth" and two or three years of excessive gold outflow from the country.

He hopes, he said, to serve Kennedy in developing policies that will bring the economy back to its full potential — "back on the track of full employment and satisfactory growth."

Gromyko Expresses Hope For Friendship With U.S.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—Asserting a desire for friendly relations with the United States, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko expressed hope Friday for a turn for the better with the presidential inauguration of John F. Kennedy.

"Despite the Soviet government's sincere desire to reach mutual understanding and agreement with the American government on a number of international problems ripe for solution, nothing has yet come of it," Gromyko told the closing session of the Supreme Soviet—parliament.

"The responsibility for the failure rests wholly and entirely with the Eisenhower-Nixon administration."

"K" Applauds

Premier Khrushchev sat on the rostrum and joined in the applause, but made no speech as expected. Recently recovered from a bout with the flu, he sat for the most part with his hands folded and his eyes shut.

(In Washington, Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, scoffed at Gromyko's speech saying: "History shows that there is only one way to get along with the Kremlin and that is to succumb and surrender. I am confident that the Kennedy administration will not do that.")

"It is an open secret," Gromyko said, "that in many countries, including the United States, certain hopes are pinned on Mr. Kennedy's taking office, especially for an improvement in the relations between the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"The Soviet government, too, would like to see Soviet-American relations revert to the state they were in Franklin D. Roosevelt's time, as Nikita Khrushchev put it in his message of congratulations to the president-elect."

Gromyko said the Soviet Union wants "not just normal, but good, friendly relations with the United States." He again blamed the freezeup of Soviet-U.S. relations on the U2 spy incident and President Eisenhower's refusal to apologize.

Gromyko lashed out at "imperialism," the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the U.S. offer to furnish Polaris missiles to NATO. He again called for complete disarmament, a Khrushchev plan rejected by the West as unrealistic.

The foreign minister again referred directly to the United States in declaring a German peace treaty is the main problem in Europe. He said the Soviet Union hopes that "the United States and other Western powers will take a more sober position, taking into consideration the real state of affairs obtaining in Germany and in Europe."

Accountant Pleads Guilty

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Edmund DeLuca, accountant for Dr. and Mrs. James A. Lehman, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of aiding and assisting in the preparation of false income tax returns.

DeLuca, who was arraigned in U.S. District Court before Judge John W. Lord Jr., tried to plead no defense through his attorney. But Lord would not accept the plea.

DeLuca then told the court he pleaded guilty and Lord deferred sentencing pending a pre-sentence investigation.

The accountant testified at two trials for the Lehmans that he was responsible for their filing false returns from 1953 to 1957. These returns resulted in charges of income tax evasion amounting to $283,803.

Lehman, a prominent surgeon, and his wife, Adelaide, were found innocent of these charges at their second trial, which ended Dec. 10. The first ended in a hung jury.

Lawrence Seen Mum On Ike

HARRISBURG (AP) — Rep. Willard F. Agnew Jr., new House Republican floor leader, said Friday Gov. David L. Lawrence has not told Pennsylvanians how much financial aid the stat has received from the Eisenhower Administration.

The Allegheny County attorney said in a statement that the governor's budget office issued a report of federal subsidies to the state in the last 10 years Nov. 18, but did not make it public.

Agnew said a copy was sent to his office, adding:

"I can well understand why Gov. Lawrence kept this report under wraps until after Election Day, since it was part of his campaign strategy to belittle the contributions of the Eisenhower Administration to Pennsylvania.

"Since no apparent effort has been made by Lawrence's budget bureau to make their report public, I will comment on it myself."

The Pittsburgh attorney said federal contributions to Pennsylvania in fiscal 1959 totaled $250,639,390 for 67 different state programs.

"I call attention to these facts and figures because I believe the public should know about the scope and extent of federal aid toward the operation of our state government, which during seven years of the Eisenhower Administration amounted to $1,072,589,945," Agnew added.

Agnew recently was chosen by House Republicans to be the minority floor leader in the 1961 session of the legislature.

Union Aide Is Facing Embezzling

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A warrant was issued Friday charging Theodore P. O'Keefe with embezzling $18,392 from the treasury of the State Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners over the past three years.

O'Keefe, 54, was secretary-treasurer of the council since 1943, until he was discharged about a month ago.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Jack Myers said union officials started checking into the council funds when a check for $10,000 to the union's national headquarters bounced Oct. 24. The check was for reimbursement of half of O'Keefe's salary and expenses.

About the same time, O'Keefe allegedly failed to bring his books to the council's state meeting in Scranton.

Myers said O'Keefe is slated to surrender for a Dec. 30 hearing before Magistrate Harry J. Ellick. Ellick issued a warrant Friday.

The assistant disfrict attorney said the hearing has been delayed to permit some council officials to be on hand.

Two Women Fool French Aides

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — Two women who fooled both civil and religious authorities and married each other were sentenced Friday to a year in prison.

Ginette Ferroni, 42, a former theater director, and Bernadette Unvois, 24, her secretary, were "married" last September. They had appropriated identification papers belonging to Philippe Mackaert.

France has no law forbidding marriage between persons of the same sex, so the women were accused of making false statements and using a false birth certificate. They were ordered to pay 500 francs—$100—each to Mackaert in damages.

Market Carves Out Gain

NEW YORK (AP)—In turbulent pre-Christmas weekend trading the stock market managed to carve out a slight statistical gain Friday.

A number of specially situated stocks were strong but most key issues showed small changes, chiefly within a 1-point range.

United Fruit, up 3⅞ to 19⅝, and Studebaker-Packard, up 1¾ to 8⅜, were big percentage gainers and stood out as surprise performers on a day when the market was treading cautiously.

Rails were responsible for the slight over-all gain in the Associated Press average.

Steels were mostly lower and autos were mixed. Aircrafts, airlines, tobaccos and most chemicals were on the downside.

United Fruit was the day's most active issue on turnover of 147,300 shares.

Eleven of the 15 most active stocks rose, three declined and was unchanged, General Motors.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped .08 to 613.23.

The AP 60-stock average was up .20 to 219.10 with the industrials down .20, rails up .80 and utilities unchanged.

It is with a great deal of sentiment and joy that we extend to all our friends our greeting and best wishes for a Truly Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year!

Just Between Us——

—By Bobby Westbrook

Am I ready for Christmas? You know me better than that. We couldn't be more un-ready. The water pipes froze up in the cellar so the breakfast dishes aren't done. When they finally were thawed out, I blew a fuse trying to plug in an old electric heater to keep them from freezing again.

I hid some of the presents so effectively that I can't find them at all, but succeeded in mussing up every drawer in the house looking for them.

The furnace is fighting a valiant but losing battle against the cold with a draft through the house that makes the silver rain on the Christmas tree stream out sideways and has all the kids fighting for a place on the register.

Somebody's always taking out the ice cube trays, removing one hunk of ice, and then let the rest melt so, despite the cold, all we have to offer guests is warm coke.

Oh — you didn't mean was the house ready for Christmas—you wondered whether I was ready? That's different. I'll be ready at 1 o'clock this afternoon when the last member of the family is due to arrive.

Nothing really matters but that: not the house, nor the food, nor the gifts, nor the decorations. When every bed in the house has an occupant; when every chair is taken and they start sitting on the floor;

When the house is filled with the smell of spruce and popcorn and wet boots scorching somewhere; when it is echoing with laughter and arguments and secrets.

When those I love are safe and home and near enough to see and touch — then I AM ready for Christmas and filled with a peace that passeth understanding.

Alone On Christmas? Don't Brood, Do Act

By Anne Heywood

When faced with a problem, I have come to the conclusion that it is better to do something than to do nothing.

One of my favorite examples of this involves a lonely career girl whom I have just heard about from the superintendent of the apartment house in which I live.

Far From Home

We were talking about Christmas and how difficult it is for people who are far away from home and alone in the big city at that home. He told me about a young woman who solved that problem in a very interesting way.

"It was my first job as a superintendent in an apartment," he said.

"I had a three-room apartment on the ground floor which went with the job, and I was miles away from home—I had been brought up on a farm."

Knew Tenants

"I knew most of the tenants by sight, if not by name, and a few I really knew from having made repairs in their apartments and so forth.

"It was an old - fashioned building with three apartments on each floor, ten floors, and a kind of rickety self-service elevator.

"None of the tenants knew each other except to nod in the elevator. It was downtown in a big city and most of them were working people — some married and some unmarried. A good many had families nearby and went away for the holidays.

Envied Them

"I remember there was quite a bustle of suitcases and cabs then, and I would look at the departing ones with a not-very-well-hidden envy.

"About three days before Christmas, I saw a sign that had been put up with tape in the elevator. It was against the house rules to post such signs and I was taking it down when I gave it a really good look.

"It was made of green blotting paper, with holly sprigs in each corner. It said:

"'I am lonely at Christmas time, and will be having a small turkey in my apartment, 2-A. If anyone else feels the same way, they are welcome to join me, bringing cranberry sauce, mashed turnips or whatever. If interested, please call.'

"There was a phone number.

"Much to my surprise, I found myself thinking 'Why not?'. Otherwise I would either be going out to dinner alone on Christmas or ending up eating alone in my apartment.

She Helped Wrap Christmas Packages For Needy People

Eleven Came

"The long and the short of it is that eleven of us got together in apartment 2-A, each bringing something, and we had the time of our lives."

I think that this is a particularly good example of coping with a problem the direct and practical way.

Volunteered To Help

Another person I know got in touch with a neighborhood church, which she had never attended, and volunteered to help wrap the presents for the baskets for the poor which the church gave away.

She ended up having a wonderful Christmas, participating in many activities with the people of the church.

If you find yourself alone at Christmas time, do remember that it is better to do something about it than to sit in your room weeping over the situation.

One Troop Makes Favors; Other Fills Them

Happy snowmen favors will carry the greetings from the Brownies of Troop 25 who made them to be placed on the Christmas trays for the patients in the Monroe County General Hospital.

Mrs. Guy P. Dean III and Mrs. John Stokes are leaders of the busy troop which includes Linda Berman, Renee Dean, Robin Edinger, Sarah Ann Frantz, Marsha Johnson, Karen Jones, Kathleen Palmer, Carol Stokes, Jane Torzillo, Marilyn Young and Christine Winters.

The Brownies of Troop 1 are leanding a helping hand by supplying the candy mints for the tray favors. Mrs. Boyd Chapman, Mrs. Charles Strunk and Mrs. William Wells are leaders of Troop 1.

Mexican Appetizer For New 'Dip'

Around this time of year with open houses and friends dropping in informally, hostesses are running out of ideas for new "dips" to serve with crackers, potato chips.

Just in time comes a Mexican recipe, guacamole, which teams up well with corn chips.

Guacamole

2 medium-sized avocados
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 small onion (or more)
Pimiento strips
Corn chips

Peel and mash ripe avocados and mix with lemon juice and salt. Add finely grated onion, including both pulp and juice. Turn into serving dish; garnish with pimiento. Serve with corn chips to dunk into mixture.

Chris Back In Christmas For The Michaels Children

Bushkill — The "Chris" is back in Christmas for the three Michaels children: Tommy, Kathy and Cyndy. Their collie, named Chris for Christmas which is when they got him last year, was shot by a careless hunter within sight of their home.

Their heart-broken report, in rhyme, in the Daily Record brought not only sympathy but a new Sheltie Collie, given to them by a reader who felt their loss as personal. The children have responded:

"We are three small children,
Happy as can be
For someone, oh, so very kind has put Chris back in Christmas.
In time to trim our tree.
He's just a tiny puppy, a ball
of soft brown fur,
But full of vim and vigor.
But he'll make us dance a jig
as he grows strong and bigger.
Right now though, he's big enough to fill the gap
That filled our hearts two weeks ago
When Our other Chris could not come back.
So with our love and a great
big kiss
We are sending to the donor
Our heart-felt thanks and a
New Year filled with joy."

(Signed) Tommy, Kathy and Cyndy Michaels

"P.S. And our many thanks to another fine couple who also wished to replace our loss with another puppy. The kind people in this world outweigh the heartless by a large majority, not only at Christmas but at all times, and they, too, shall reap their reward in time."

Program At Mission On Christmas Day

Novelties Mark Sophomore Bake Sale

Newfoundland — More than 10,000 cookies and 50 coffeecakes were baked by the mothers of sophomore class students and class members at Southern Wayne Joint School under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Rochfort, Sterling.

The products of the school kitchen, turned out during the nights - and - Saturdays baking marathons, were sold by the senior class.

The coffee cakes were unique in that they bore whatever legend the purchaser requested. Many read, "Merry Christmas," and some were frosted with the names of the recipients.

The prize, however, went to Mrs. Rochfort for her solution to the problem posed by Willis "Bill" Gilpin, Newfoundland pharmacist, who is a Civil War "buff." Bill requested that his coffeecake bear the Gettysburg Address.

It took Mrs. Rochfort only a minute to comply with his order. She inscribed the cake, "D. D. Eisenhower, Gettysburg, Pa.," and attached a note: "This is the only address in Gettysburg that I know!"

A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Big cities are wonderful . . . exciting and thrilling, with their buildings that tower overhead in a lofty attempt to reach the Stars. But each December, as Christmas nears, I find myself enraptured anew by little towns—villages such as we have here in our own county . . . Shawnee, for instance, where the pretty Community Hall is covered with snow, and the towering community tree peers with red and green eyes into the gathering twilight.

Little towns are sometimes considered slightly comic and ridiculous by the sophisticated. Some amuse themselves—often forgetting their own Little Town origins—by mocking the peaceful, picture-post-card prettiness of quiet streets and lanes where snow can spread like a thick, white velvet carpet for long hours without being foot-marked. Such things as carollers in the night . . . parties in the Grange Hall, where nothing more risque than a quick kiss beneath the mistletoe occurs, are quaint and laughable to those who consider Christmas a time for clinking highball glasses at flirtatiously gay office parties.

But I never under-rate the little town. I hum a carol about the little town of Bethlehem, and remember that God selected a little town as the birthplace of His Son. I admit that Bethlehem, with its Inn, was probably quite a city by the standards of two thousand years ago . . . but somehow I feel in my heart that if the Christ Child were to have been born today, His birth would not take place in the shadows of the Empire State Building, but in some quiet, remote little place where awe would still surround the coming of the Wise Men with their gifts of gold . . . incense . . . and myrrh. What Wise Men would have gifts sufficiently impressive to cause even a stir in a great city, where the poor are accustomed to seeing the rich ride by in chauffeured cars, and store windows bulging with jewels a Maharajah might covet?

Christmas, I feel, is particularly wonderful in a little town . . . just as it is particularly wonderful to the pure of heart with the unquestioning mind of a child. It is a time when all of us should feel treasured and loved . . . as protected and warmed by the affection of family and friends as the Christ Child was, shielded and comforted by the cloak and embrace of Mary. It is easy, in a little town, to feel the nearness of one's friends . . . it is possible to be cheered by their smiles, warmed by their glance, made secure by their words. These gifts are more to be treasured than packages beneath the tree.

So, at Christmas I am especially glad to be here . . . in a little town, knowing that my roots are here, and that far-flung places have lost much of the appeal they once held. One's troubles are never quite so heavy when friends are near: one's joys are never so great as when friends can share them. It is from my heart then that I express gratitude to all of you for kindnesses and understanding, and that I wish you the deepest joys of the season and, in the year to come, the fulfillment of your dearest desires.

It is my pleasure also to extend these greetings in behalf of the entire Wyckoff store family. Ours may be small towns in this area of Pennsylvania . . . but they are filled with wonderful people, and, as "the silent stars go by" tonight above your "deep and dreamless sleep," may the Christ Child be born anew into your lives, bringing blessings innumerable.

Almost Blow Big Leads

Stroud Union Holds On To Beat Cavaliers, 57-52

STROUD UNION High School had to fight off a stubborn last period rally by East Stroudsburg, to claim a 57-52 win at East Stroudsburg Friday night, in the first of two inter-borough games.

In the end, it was the Mountaineers' ability to hit clutch foul shots and the Cavaliers lack of it that made the difference.

Neither team was able to hit 50 percent of its fouls but in the final three minutes the Mountaineers connected on five of seven free throw chances and East Stroudsburg made good on only two of 10.

Poor Third

It was a close game except for the third quarter, when Stroud Union colected 16 points and the Cavaliers managed only six.

Mike McMahon, who ended with 22 points, the high of the game, kept the Mountaineers in front most of the night.

McMahon, the only holdover starter at Stroud Union from last year, hit almost 75 percent of his shots and connected on five straight in one stretch.

The big senior had the most success with a fall away jump shot after spinning out of the pivot.

Fellman Gets 16

Jack Fellman posted 16 for the Cavaliers and Glenn Kane added 16. The pair teamed for 16 of East Stroudsburg's 26 points in the final frame.

A fourth period full court press that almost backfired, finally began to pay off for the Caviaiers midway through the last period. The press cut the Mounties' lead from 12 to two points with three minutes remaining in the game. They never came closer, as they were hit by foul shooting blues.

Neither team could gain much of an advantage in the first period. Kitson's jumper from the key opened the scoring.

Both teams added 10-point second periods.

The Cavaliers never got started in the third quarter. It took them four minutes to get their first point and another four to add four more.

Pull Away

Stroud Union, with McMahon and John Baylor colected six points each, pulled to a 12-point lead at the end of the period.

The Cavaliers did little to chop the margin down and had no success with their press defense. But the Eastburgers kept the pressure on and it finally began to pay off.

In a two-minute span, the Cavaliers dumped in 13 points, while Stroud Union hit only three. With 2:50 second left the Cavaliers' Brian Farris hit a foul shot to make it 46-44, Stroud Union.

But then Kitson went to work. He canned both ends of a one-and-one situation and seconds later added another foul shot after Farris was slammed into him going for a loose ball.

Rebuild Lead

With 1:50 left Stroud Union had built its lead back up to nine, 55-46, mainly on foul shots and easy lay-ups on the end of fast breaks.

The Cavaliers stayed with the press and in the next minute reduced the lead to five points, 55-50

Fellman, Don Wescott and Earl Palmer missed six foul shot opportunities in the final 50 seconds and it was all over.

East Stroudsburg won the junior varsity game 53-41. Jim Steele was high for the winners with 15. Warren Messler had 16 for the losers.

For American Football Coaches

Baldwin Heads National Football Clinic Set-Up

MARTY Baldwin of Stroudsburg, has been named general manager of the eight "coach-of-the-year" football clinics to be sponsored by the American Football Coaches Assn. early next year.

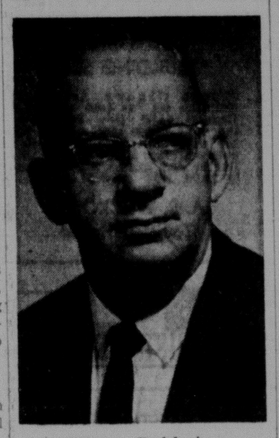
Baldwin, who has handled the Eastern Pennsylvania Scholastic Coaches Assn. Clinic at East Stroudsburg State College for 18 years, was a unanimous choice by the coaches group to set up the cross-country clinics.

Clinics will be held in Santa Monica, Cal., Grand Rapids, Mich., Dallas, Texas, Kansas City, Mo., Birmingham, Ala., Springfield, Mass., Harrisburg and Raleigh, N. C. The Harrisburg clinic may be shifted to Hershey.

First In California

The clinics for both high school and college coaches will be held on Friday and Saturday. The first is scheduled Feb. 12-13 at Santa Monica and the last March 31-April 1 in Raleigh.

Clinic directors in each of the eight cities will assist Baldwin.



Marty Baldwin

Clinic participants will include Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma; Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State; Murray Duke; Frank Broyles, University of Arkansas, Dan Devine, University of Missouri, Paul "Bear" Bryant, University of Alabama and Chalmers "Bump" Elliott, University of Michigan. All but Wilkinson and Daugherty were picked as "Coach of the Year" from their own area by the Association.

Wilkinson and Daugherty, along with the Association's "Coach of the Year," will instruct at each clinic. Warmth whose Minensota Gophers were voted the number one team in the country, is the leading candidate for the "Coach of the Year," honor. The award will be announced Jan. 11.

The other coaches will appear at the clinic in their territory. For instance, Hess, who was picked as the "Coach of the Year" for District 2 of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and New Jersey), will be assigned to the Harrisburg clinic.

Game films and demonstrations at each clinic will cover the latest developments in offensive and defensive football and drill techniques. One of the features of the clinic will be conference rooms set up for cinicians to discuss individual problems after they have finished their instruction.

Dallas Is Largest

According to Baldwin the Dallas clinic will probably be the largest with about 1,500 coaches attending.

"We expect 1,200 at Santa Monica and more than 1,000 at Grand Rapids," said Baldwin.

Baldwin added: "Since the headquarters for this nation-wide set-up is in the Poconos, it will mean a great deal to our area. All the printing, mailing and banking for each clinic will be done here, not to mention the publicity the Stroudsburgs will receive."

Baldwin, one of the pioneers of large scale football clinics, is the general manager of Olympic Reconditioning Co. in East Stroudsburg. He is also the president of the Pocono Touchdown Club and a graduate of East Stroudsburg State College.

The Coach of the Year clinics are the first nation-wide clinics to be held.

Pressure Could Be Important Monday

NORM VAN BROCKLIN and Chuck Bednarik have both been in the National Football League for 12 years and if it is possible to be immune to pressure, these two should qualify.

Game after game this year Van Brocklin provided the "bomb" the Philadelphia Eagles needed to win and Bednarik, the only Ivy League graduate in the NFL, played on both offense and defense when linebacker Bob Pellegrini was injured.

Pellegrini is injured again and Bednarik will have to play both offensive center and defensive linebacker when the Eagles face the Green Bay Packers Monday for the league championship at Franklin Feld. Not only will it put pressure on Bednarik mentally but what may be more important, the physical pressure will be just as great.

Bednarik will be the oldest player on the field Monday. At 35, Bednarik, who played his high school football at Bethlehem High, needs his rest.

Every Little Bit Helps

In the Eagles second game against the Giants this year, the Eagles got possession of the ball with 24 seconds left in the third quarter. And since a team is allowed 25 seconds to put the ball in play, Bednarik suggested to Van Brocklin that the club use up all its time in the huddle and start the final period with almost an extra half minute rest.

But surprisingly enough, the Eagles are a fourth period club, even though three of their best offensive performers, Bednarik, Van Brocklin and Bob Walston are more than 30 years old and Pete Retzlaff is 29.

The Eagles have almost tripled the number of points scored by opponents in the fourth quarter. The second period is the only other quarter in which the Eagles hold a scoring edge and its is only a 78-62 point margin.

Dutchman In Unique Position

Van Brocklin is in the unique position of not getting the credit if the Eagles win Monday's game and being the goat if they don't.

As the Jim Thorpe Trophy Winner this year (given to the League's Most Valuable Player,) Van Brocklin is expected to connect for two touchdown passes a game, his season average and three TD passes would not startle too many observers.

But if Van Brocklin has a bad day and in fairness it must be said that he is due for one, the Dutchmen would get the blame for the loss.

Wire reports have blown up the Eagles' rushing defense weakness but the Birds weak rushing offense has gone unnoticed, which means its Van Brocklin or else.

The Eagles have scored only nine touchdowns on the ground while getting 29 through the air. Only one Eagle TD run was more than 50 yards.

Peaks Leads Meager Ground Game

Clarence Peaks, the Eagles leading ground gainer before he was injured, may be back Monday although he is not expected to start. If Peaks returns, the running game gets a slight boost. The former Michigan Stater averages 5.4 yards on 86 carries. None of the other Eagle regulars has better than a 2.7 yards per carry mark.

The Packers supposedly have a weak pass defense but they are only eight intereceptions behind the Eagles, who led the league in that department.

So as the saying goes, "Norm, Norm, he's our man, if he can't do it, no one can." It's not an original cheer but it could be worth $8,000 to the Eagles Monday.

Sick Kids Melt Down Grid Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dave is a 2-year-old butterball of a boy. First sight of the blond cutie makes you instructively want to grab him up and squeeze him.

Caron is a pensive girl of 4, a bit too thin, and with the biggest, prettiest brown eyes you ever saw.

Friday Dave and Caron met two hulking terrors of the college gridiron. Quicker than you can kick a football, these children melted them down into utter tenderness.

The heart-clutching scene was the wards for crippled children in Shriner's Hospital. There, 48 college football stars who will play for the East and West Dec. 31 saw first-hand the meaning of the game's motto: "Strong legs run that weak legs may walk."

Hammer Hoists

All-America end Mike Ditka, nicknamed "the Hammer," hoisted chubby Dave more than 6 feet aloft with big hands that made brilliant catches of passes for the University of Pittsburgh.

Dave's malformed hand—which has to be replaced soon by an artificial one — clutched Pitt's blue and gold colors between the only two fingers he had.

Ditka started to pass Dave over to Earl Faison, another end from the University of Indiana.

Dave broke into sobs.

"He wants you, boy; you keep him," Faison said.

Ditka chucked Dave on the chin, gave him a careful hug and said, "I've still got you, Dave."

Instantly a smile curbed the flow of the tears.

Butts Quits Coaching Job At Georgia U.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Wallace Butts has resigned as head football coach at the University of Georgia but will continue in the post of athletic director.

Butts, 55, dean of Southeastern Conference coaches, considered retirement last year after his Bulldogs won the SEC championship and an Orange Bowl victory over Missouri.

The little round man, who led Georgia to 140 victores against 86 defeats and 9 ties, was in Montgomery, Ala., Friday for coaching duties in the Blue-Gray All-Star game Dec. 31.

"I've thought about it for a long time," Butts said in Montgomery, "and I figure I've been under that pressure long enough. I think it would affect my health if I continue."

He said: "After 22 years as Georgia's coach it's time to start thinking about my health. And I think I can be helpful to the University of Georgia devoting full-time to being athletic director."

Butts said he did not know who will succeed him and that he will remain as football coach until his successor is named.

Champion Eagles Started To Revamp Back In 1957

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—How do you take a team from last place in 1958 to first in 1960—with mirrors?

"No, with a quarterback and a coach," says Vince McNally, whose Philadelphia Eagles meet the Green Bay Packers here Monday for the National Football League title.

McNally, Eagles' general manager, said he decided after the 1957 season the Eagles had to clean house, coaches and players alike.

"I made three trips to California to try to sign Buck Shaw as head coach," he said. "Finally, Shaw signed.

"I wasn't home from the coast 4 hours when my telephone rang. It was Buck. 'Oh God, here I signed up and I don't even have a quarterback,' he said. 'How do you expect me to win in this league without a quarterback?' "

McNally said he told Shaw not to worry, he'd have a quarterback.

"Frankly, I didn't know where I was going to get one. Bobby Thomason had retired, which left us high and dry. Then I heard scuttlebutt through the grapevine that the (Los Angeles) Rams were thinking of trading (Norm) Van Brocklin.

"I made six or seven telephone calls and finally went to see (Pete) Rozelle (then general manager of the Rams). I beat Pittsburgh to the deal only because I had a first draft choice to trade and the Steelers didn't."

McNally also gave the Rams two players for Van Brocklin. He called Shaw in California and told him, "You have a quarterback. 'Who?' he asked me. Van Brocklin. 'Wonderful, now we're in business,' he said."

Shaw came east, took a look at the Eagles roster and made up three lists, one a nucleus he wanted to keep, the second a group he wanted improved and the third a number of players to get rid of.

The Eagles finished last in 1958 with a 2-9-1 record, but the rebuilding job was begun. In the next two seasons, McNally bought from or traded with every club in the league but Cleveland and Pittsburgh and made several key draft choices.

Pete Retzlaff was a $100 steal from Detroit, Jim McCusker and Chuck Weber came from the Cardinals, Gerry Huth was obtained from New York, former Bear Joe Robb, and ex-Redskin Ed Khayat signed as free agents. Marion Campbell arrived from the 49ers, Bobby Freeman from Green Bay, Don Burroughs from the Rams, Jim Carr via Baltimore and Tim Brown from Green Bay.

Williams Hikes Scoring Mark

TED WILLIAMS, Michigan State University center, and former Stroud Union High basketballer, has boosted his Spartan scoring average to 10.5 points a game.

The 6-7 Williams, is the fourth leading scorer on the club, which has a 3-2 record. He also has a 10.5 rebound average.

Remove Our Faults Now, Ike Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower asked Americans Friday to make the Christmas season a time of dedication to remove imperfections from the nation. He deplored denial of equal political and economic opportunity because of prejudice or race.

In a speech prepared for the lighting of the national Christmas tree, the President said that despite the material comforts which bless this country, "we see blots and blemishes that mar the picture of a nation of people who devoutly believe that they were created in the image of their maker."

"Too often," he continued, "we discern an apathy toward violations of law and standards of public and private integrity.

"When, through bitter prejudice and because of differences in skin pigmentation, individuals cannot enjoy equality of political and economic opportunity, we see another of these imperfections, one that is equally plain to those living beyond our borders.

"Whenever there is denied the right of anyone, because he dares to live by the moral code, to earn for himself and his family a living, this failing too, is a blot on the brightness of America's image."

The President said America will never cease to remove the blemishes on her own reflection, but that this is not to be achieved by laws alone.

"Laws, to be truly effective, must command the respect and earnest support of public opinion, both generally and locally," he said. "And each of us helps form public opinion.

"Before us, then, is a task that each must himself define and himself perform. Good it is that Christmas helps make us aware of our imperfections. Better it is that we rededicate ourselves to the work of their eradication."

Christmas Fills White House Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — Christmas filled the air Friday at the White House, abustle with some 200 tourists in the morning and then 400 children at an afternoon party.

The big mansion itself was a Christmas card picture with a snow-covered lawn and big green holiday wreaths at the front windows.

Mamie Eisenhower invited the children to her annual Christmas party for the sons and daughters of White House and executive office workers.

Dressed in their Sunday best, the boys and girls, along with many parents, had their party in the ballroom. There was a big toy Santa Claus beside a tree that stretched from the floor to the high ceiling and twinkled with white lights.

A smaller group of children whose parents are personal friends of the Eisenhowers went to the White House at noon for an hour-long party.

Tourists Come

The tourists came from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, shuffling their snow boots and galoshes as quietly as they could through the marble corridors of the first floor.

The children gazed wide-eyed at he big columns entwined with artificial holly, the poinsettias banked in the rooms, the shining chandeliers, the tiny lights flickering among the greenery.

The Eisenhowers have their family Christmas tree on the second floor and it sends a friendly glow of colored lights through the upstairs window.

The family will be at the White House for Christmas with the four young grandchildren.

Mrs. Eisenhower directed the Christmas decorating.

Scientists Call For Air Research

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Scientists at the University of Michigan called Friday for a massive program of long-range research on the nation's air traffic control systems.

They warned that airplane disasters can be expected to continue—and even increase—unless such a program is started immediately.

The warning came simultaneously with the announcement that the university's Institute of Science and Technology has begun its own independent study of the subject.

Dr. Gustave Rabson expressed a fear that without a long-range study the nation may be "stampeded into hunting for another rough-and-ready solution to its air traffic control problems."

Sympathy Extended To Family

CHICAGO (AP)—Two young California boys turned from their pre-Christmas excitement to send a letter of sympathy and two weeks allowance to the family of Stephen Baltz.

Stephen was the 11-year-old lad who won the hearts of the nation during his 26-hour battle for life after being mortally injured in the collision of two planes over New York City Dec. 16, which resulted in 136 deaths.

"We want to tell you how sorry we are about your little boy Stephen," wrote Stephen Brady, 10, and his brother, Jim, 7, sons of a Gridley, Calif., policeman. "But we no (sic) he will have a nice Christmas in heaven with Jesus."

In their letter, received yesterday, the boys explained to Mr. and Mrs. Baltz, and the Baltz's son, William Jr., 4, and daughter, Randee, 8, that the enclosed two dollars were for flowers for Stephen.

They wished the Baltzes a "nice Christmas," and added they hoped they themselves would get a "fishen pole or B-B gun."

A MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM THE CLASSIFIED ADV. GANG

Ban On JFK's Golf Continues

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A ban on photographs of President-elect John F. Kennedy playing golf — and he's been playing frequently—will be continued until he is inaugurated Jan. 20, a spokesman said yesterday.

Kennedy's press secretary Piere Salinger replied "no, no" when asked whether the ban is an effort to avoid what a reporter called the kind of criticism which Democrats have fired at President Eisenhower for golfing so much.

Salinger indicated the ban will be lifted from time to time after Kennedy takes office.

Asked the reason for the prohibition against golf photographs until after inauguration, Salinger spoke of it as a policy of avoiding intrusion in the president-elect s leisure activities.

Neither reporters nor photographers ever heve had a free hand in coverage of Eisenhower's golf. Many times they were not permitted on the course when the President played but on a good many other occasions picture and news coverage was permitted.

Barry Elected AT&T 'Veep'

Barry has been vice president and general manager, and a director of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. since 1956. He previously was vice president, operations and a director of the Wisconsin Telephone Co.

Greetings
Pleasant memories . . . wonderful friendships . . . a promising future . . . these are just a few of the Joys we wish for all of our friends and patrons at this Yuletide.

ON THE MORNING OF CHRIST'S NATIVITY

On December of 1629, John Milton, now renowned English poet composed this poem as a "birthday gift to Christ." Although Milton was then only a senior student at Cambridge, this poem already showed the seriousness and loftiness which he was later to polish to mastery.

By

John Milton

This is the month, and this the happy morn,
Wherein the Son of Heaven's eternal King,
Of wedded Maid and Virgin Mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring;
For so the holy sages once did sing,
That he our deadly forfeit should release,
And with his Father work us a perpetual peace.

That glorious form, that light unsufferable,
And that far-beaming blaze of majesty,
Wherewith he wont at Heaven's high council-table
To sit the midst of Trinal Unity,
He laid aside, and, here with us to be,
Forsook the courts of everlasting day,
And chose with us a darksome house of mortal clay.

Say, Heavenly Muse, shall not thy sacred vein
Afford a present to the Infant God?
Hast thou no verse, no hymn, or solemn strain,
To welcome him to this his new abode,
Now while the heaven, by the sun's team untrod,
Hath took no print of the approaching light,
And all the spangled host keep watch in squadrons bright?

See how from far upon the eastern road
The star-led wizards haste with odours sweet!
Oh! run; prevent them with thy humble ode.
And lay it lowly at his blessed feet;
Have thou the honour first thy Lord to greet,
And join thy voice unto the angel quire,
From out his secret altar touched with hallowed fire.

THE HYMN

It was the winter wild,
While the Heaven-born Child
All meanly wrapt in the rude manger lies;
Nature in awe to him
Had doffed her gaudy trim,
With her great Master so to sympathize;
It was no season for her
To wanton with the sun her lusty paramour.

Only with speeches fair
She woos the gentle air
To hide her guilty front with innocent snow,
And on her naked shame,
Pollute with sinful blame,
The saintly veil of maiden white to throw,
Confounded, that her Maker's eyes
Should look so near upon her foul deformities.

But he, her fears to cease,
Sent down the meek-eyed Peace;
She crowned with olive green came softly sliding
Down through the turning sphere,
His ready harbinger,
With turtle wing the amorous clouds dividing,
And waving wide her myrtle wand,
She strikes a universal peace through sea and land.

No war, or battle's sound,
Was heard the world around;
The idle spear and shield were high uphung;
The hooked chariot stood,
Unstained with hostile blood;
The trumpet spake not to the armed throng;
And kings sat still with awful eye,
As if they surely knew their sovran Lord was by.

But peaceful was the night
Wherein the Prince of Light,
His reign of peace upon the earth began.
The winds, with wonder whist,
Smoothly the waters kissed,
Whispering new joys to the mild ocean,
Who now hath quite forgot to rave,
While birds of calm sit brooding on the charmed wave.

The stars, with deep amaze,
Stand fixed in steadfast gaze,
Bending one way their precious influence,
And will not take their flight,
For all the morning light,
Or Lucifer that often warned them thence;
But in their glimmering orbs did glow,
Until their Lord himself bespake, and bid them go.

And, though the shady gloom
Had given day her room,
The sun himself withheld his wanted speed,
And hid his head for shame,
As his inferior flame
The new-enlightened world no more should need;
He saw a greater Sun appear
Than his bright throne or burning axletree could bear.

The shepherds on the lawn,
Or ere the point of dawn,
Sat simply chatting in a rustic row;
Full little thought they than
That the mighty Pan
Was kindly come to live with them below;
Perhaps their loves or else their sheep,
Was all that did their silly thoughts so busy keep.

When such music sweet
Their hearts and ears did greet,
As never was by mortal finger strook,
Divinely warbled voice
Answering the stringed noise,
As all their souls in blissful rapture took;
The air such pleasure loth to lose,
With thousand echoes still prolongs each heavenly close.

Nature that heard such sound
Beneath the hollow round
Of cynthia's seat, the airy region thrilling,
Now was almost won
To think her part was done,
And that her reign had here its last fulfilling;
She knew such harmony alone
Could hold all Heaven and Earth in happier union.

At last surrounds their sight
A globe of circular light,
That with long beams the shame-faced night arrayed;
The helmed cherubim
And sworded seraphim
Are seen in glittering ranks with wings displayed,
Harping in loud and solemn quire,
With unexpressive notes to Heaven's new-born Heir.

Such music (as 'tis said)
Before was never made,
But when of old the Sons of Morning sung,
While the Creator great
His constellations set,
And the well-balanced world on hinges hung,
And cast the dark foundations deep,
And bid the weltering waves their oozy channel keep.

Ring out, ye crystal spheres;
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to touch our senses so;
And let your silver chime
Move in melodious time;
And let the bass of heaven's deep organ blow;
And with your ninefold harmony
Make up full consort to the angelic symphony.

For, if such holy song
Enwrap our fancy long,
Time will run back and fetch the Age of Gold;
And speckled Vanity
Will sicken soon and die;
And leprous Sin will melt from earthly mould;
And Hell itself will pass away,
And leave her dolorous mansions to the peering day.

Yea, Truth and Justice then
Will down return to men,
Orbed in a rainbow; and, like glories wearing,
Mercy will sit between,
Throned in celestial sheen,
With radiant feet the tissued clouds down steering;
And Heaven, as at some festival,
Will open wide the gates of her high palace-hall.

But wisest Fate says No,
This must not yet be so,
The Babe lies yet in smiling infancy,
That on the bitter cross
Must redeem our loss,
So both himself and us to glorify;
Yet first to those ychained in sleep,
The wakeful trump of doom must thunder through the deep,

With such a horrid clang
As on Mount Sinai rang,
While the red fire and smould'ring clouds outbrake:
The aged Earth aghast
With terror of that blast
Shall from the surface to the centre shake;
When at the world's last session,
The dreadful Judge in middle air shall spread his throne.

And then at last our bliss
Full and perfect is,
But now begins; for from this happy day
The old Dragon under ground
In straiter limits bound,
Not half so far casts his usurped sway,
And, wroth to see his kingdom fail,
Swings the scaly horror of his folded tail.

The oracles are dumb,
No voice or hideous hum
Runs through the arched roof in words deceiving.
Apollo from his shrine
Can no more divine,
With hollow shriek the steep of Delphos leaving.
No nightly trance or breathed spell
Inspires the pale-eyed priest from the prophetic cell.

The lonely mountains o'er,
And the resounding shore,
A voice of weeping heard, and loud lament;
From haunted spring and dale,
Edged with poplar pale,
The parting Genius is with sighing sent,
With flower-inwoven tresses torn
The nymphs in twilight shade of tangled thickets mourn.

In consecrated earth,
And on the holy hearth,
The Lars and Lemures moan with midnight plaint;
In urns and altars round,
A drear and dying sound
Affrights the Flamens at their service quaint;
And the chill marble seems to sweat,
While each peculiar power forgoes his wonted seat.

Peor and Baalim
Forsake their temples dim,
With that twice-battered god of Palestine;
And mooned Ashtaroth,
Heaven's queen and mother both,
Now sits not girth with tapers' holy shine;
The Libyc Hammon shrinks his horn,
In vain the Tyrian maids their wounded Thammuz mourn.

And sullen Moloch fled,
Hath left in shadows dread
His burning idol all of blackest hue:
In vain with cymbals' ring
They call the grisly king,
In dismal dance about the furnace blue;
The brutish gods of Nile as fast,
Isis and Orus, and the dog Anubis, haste.

Nor is Osiris seen
In Memphian grove or green,
Trampling the unshowered grass with lowings loud;
Nor can he be at rest
Within his sacred chest;
Nought but profoundest Hell can be his shroud,
In vain, with timbrelled anthems dark,
The sable-stoled sorcerers bear his worshipped ark.

He feels from Juda's land
The dreaded Infant's hand;
The rays of Bethlehem blind his dusky eyn;
Nor all the gods beside
Longer dare abide,
Not Typhon huge ending in snaky twine:
Our Babe, to show his Godhead true,
Can in his swaddling bands control the damned crew.

So, when the sun in bed,
Curtained with cloudy red,
Pillows his chin upon an orient wave,
The flocking shadows pale
Troop to the infernal jail,
Each fettered ghost slips to his several grave,
And the yellow-skirted fays
Fly after the night-steeds, leaving their moon-loved maze.

But see! the Virgin blest
Hath laid her Babe to rest.
Time is our tedious song should here have ending:
Heaven's youngest-teemed star
Hath fixed her polished car,
Her sleeping Lord with handmaid lamp attending;
And all about the courtly stable
Bright-harnessed angels sit in order serviceable.

Dear Abby

I Can't Buy This

Dear Abby: Please don't think I am stupid, but is there really any such thing as sleepwalking or is that something people joke about? My husband was put on a 1000-calorie diet. Last night, about midnight, I heard the refrigerator door slam, so I got up and found Orville gone from our bed. I went to the kitchen (all the lights were on) and he was standing there, barefoot and in his pajamas, eating a piece of salami. I yelled, "Orville!"

He dropped the salami and acted like he just came out of a trance. He claims he doesn't know how he got there and must have been walking in his sleep. Do you think he's telling me the truth?

DOUBTING MRS.

Dear Doubting: His salami story sounds like a lot of baloney to me.

Dear Abby: Can you tell me what to do about a man who will not keep himself clean? We have been married 45 years and it is a fight to get him to take a bath on the week-end. When he goes fishing he comes home covered with dirt and fly dope and he won't take a bath because he did it before he left.

He is retired and has plenty of time. I am so ashamed of him I could cry. When he gets up in the morning he never washes his face because he says he will do it when he shaves. Please help.

BETTER HALF

Dear Better: Start early in the morning to nag this man, and nag him every hour of the day until he breaks down and takes a bath. If he has always been this way, then you ought to have a doctor examine your nose. If this is something new, he ought to have a doctor examine his head.

Dear Abby: Correct me if I am wrong, but isn't the purpose of a funeral service to (1) pay your final respects to the departed one, (2) ask the Lord to be merciful when the deceased enters the Great Unknown, (3) hear a few comforting words directed to the friends and family of the one who is laid to rest?

I just returned from a funeral, and the clergyman took advantage of the large attendance to announce (1) the mortgage had to be paid off for the recreation center, (2) people must stop parking their cars on the neighbors' lawns on Sunday, (3) the Ladies Auxiliary rummage sale needs support.

Am I overly sensitive, or was this out of order?

INDIGNANT

Dear Indignant: You are not "overly sensitive." The clergyman was out of order for advertising when he should have been eulogizing.

Abby

Bangor Alumni Attend Annual Homecoming Holiday

BANGOR — Thirty-five alumni of Bangor Area Joint High School who are currently freshmen and spohomores at colleges and universities attended the local school's fifth annual Holiday Homecoming, Wednesday afternoon. The affair is jointly sponsored by the Senior National Honor Society and the guidance department.

Kenneth Smith, president of the Senior Honor Society, extended greetings to the visiting alumni. Six of the group who told the BAJHS seniors of their college experiences were Mary Louise Hamm, Ursinus College; Louis Joella, Bucknell University; Peter Cistone, Muhlenberg College; Anthony Sabatino, Marietta College; Warren Brodt, East Stroudsburg State College; Steven Sandler, Penn State University.

Letters of regret at being unable to take part in the program were read from Mary Ann Dutt, Jefferson Hospital School of Nursing, Philadelphia, and Lillian Heinsohn, St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing. In his talk, Anthony Sabatino revealed that the Dean of Men at Marietta is John Sandt, a former Bangor High teacher.

The visitors were introduced by Arnold Wynne, guidance director. After an informal question and answer period on college requirements, refreshments were served to the seniors and alumni by the honor society members, under the supervision of their advisor, Miss Helen Roche.

In addition to those mentioned, the alumni attending included Bruce Jones, student at Indiana Technical College; Robert Sleep, Lafayette; Marian Werner, Kutztown State College; Ronald Mack, University of Wichita (Kansas); Joan Rehrig, Ursinus; Jonathan Caponigro, Valley Forge Military Academy; Philip DeMilio, Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science; Barry Gleim, Penn State; Howard Reeves, West Virginia Wesleyan University; Ronald Bozzuto, Temple; Norman Black, North Dakota School of Forestry; Francis Utsch, Matthew Cascioli, Penn State; Ann Sanders and Carol Beers, West Chester State College; Reed Treible, Richard Martocci, Nicholas Menecola, Moravian; Donna Davanzo, Richard Hughes, Barbara Groner, Kay Chamberlain, Judy Bishop, June Saddler, William Metzgar, Carol Owens, East Stroudsburg State College.

Stolen Kisses Cause Strike

ILKESTON, England (AP) — Sixty nightshift workers at a Derbyshire garments factory are on strike because of two stolen kisses.

They downed tools after two men were suspended for trying to embrace a girl benchhand working under a sprig of mistletoe. The girl screamed and slipped away—just as the boss was passing.

"It was just a bit of fun and it seemed rather high-handed by the management," said one striker. "We will stay out until the two men are reinstated."

A spokesman for the firm said: "We are not against the Christmas spirit, but horseplay can be dangerous in a factory."

Dr. Moore Injured

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Barbara Moore, the long-distance walker, was injured in a car crash Friday. She was taken to a hospital for treatment of facial injuries and then released. Her car was slightly damaged.

Dr. Moore, 56, walked across the United States from coast to coast earlier this year.

Young Twins Eat Decorations

BRISTOL, England (AP)—Anne and Julia Meaden, 2-year-old twins, decided Friday the lights on their Christmas tree looked good enough to eat.

So they unscrewed half a dozen bulbs and ate them.

At a hospital, a doctor said the bulbs apparently went down hole and that it would only be necessary to let nature take its course.

Sends Infantry Reinforcements

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Malaya announced Friday it will send 120 infantrymen to reinforce its 615-man detachment in the United Nations Congo command. While half a dozen nations are pulling out, the government said it is convinced peace can come to the Congo only if Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold is given whole-hearted support.

Baby Born In Car Dies

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—A baby delivered by his mother after an automobile stuck in the snow died Thursday.

Joseph Ros, weighing less than three pounds, had been in an incubator since a few hours after his birth 10 days ago on a country road. His mother, Mrs. Harry Ros, 27, survived the experience remarkably well, doctors said.

The baby, several weeks premature, arrived while neighbors and Ros battled giant drifts to free the automobile. Four hours, and five and a half miles, later they reached a main road and took the mother and child to community hospital in nearby Ephrata.

Youngsters Find Out There Is A Santa Claus

By FRANCIS STILLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Yes, Dorothy.. yes, Coleta.. yes, Lana and Johanna..yes, Johnny..and yes, you 160 children at a Navy air station in Maine.

Like little Virginia of more than half a century ago, you are finding out or proving there is a Santa Claus.

Listen to this: "He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy."

An editorial writer of the New York Sun penned those words in 1897 to 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon. She had written the paper to say some of her little friends claimed there was no Santa and she wanted to know the truth.

She is still alive, with children and grandchildren of her own now, and she can tell you that the answer she got was indeed ture—and will be, forever.

Wrote Police

Coleta Burns...you're 11 years old, you live in the Arkansas Ozarks. You wrote to the New York City Police Department, asking if Santa were dead because he hasn't been to your house in a long time.

By now you probably have received a reply from one of the city's highest-ranking officers, reassuring you that Santa is very much alive. Before long you will know this is so, but you must be patient for a bit. Tell your brothers and sisters to be patient, too.

Santa has a pretty big job at times, you know, and sometimes is a little slow making his rounds.

Dorothy Ridgeway..you're 9, you live in a remote mountain area at Hardy, Va., you've been ill a long time.

Probably you may have thought at times that neither Santa Claus nor people living a long way off would pay too much attention to a little girl like you.

You know better now, don't you.

Sacks and sacks of Christmas cards have been arriving from all over the world, haven't they? And Friday a helicopter from the Army's Ft. Eustis landed with gifts for you and your sisters.

You see, Dorothy, Santa has lots of helpers and they all love little girls and little boys. One sent a note about you on a Weather Bureau telegraph circuit. Others relayed it on other circuits.

This may be hard for you to understand, but people in faraway places like London and Tokyo and Rome know about you and want you to be happy.

Some of the cards you'll be getting will say "buon Natale e felice Anno Nuovo." In Italian, that means "good Christmas and a happy New Year," Dorothy.

Lana and Johanna Nightingale ..you're proving it. Your home is at Steinbach, Man., Canada, but you're at a Boston hospital so that Johanna can get well. Lana, giving Johanna one of your kidneys in an operation so that your twin can regain health, is just about the biggest Christmas gift ever for a 12-year-old girl.

You 160 youngsters at Brunswick, Maine .. You are going to get a Christmas celebration although your parents and the others at a nearby Navy air station certainly are blue. An officer at your base says "you small children don't understand" that a Neptune bomber crashed off Newfoundland Wednesday and nine crewmen were believed lost. But he says you "would be disappointed if Santa didn't come as planned."

Santa will be there, although as the officer says: "Believe me, it will be one of the toughest missions that Santa has ever had."

Johnny Long of Washington, D.C. .. you are spending Christmas with friends near Philadelphia. That's not like being home, but it will be better for a 4-year-old than being in Children's Hospital, where you had that brain operation Oct. 8.

Great Progress

And Johnny, the doctors say you have made great progress. You play now, Johnny, and you are learning more rapidly. They expect you to go to school eventually.

When you youngsters grow up you must read that editorial written 63 years ago to little Virginia O'Hanlon. Let us repeat part of it now:

"Alas: How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus: It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence ... The eternal light with which childhood answer she got was indeed true—tinguished.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

Cold Weather Takes Over All Parts Of Pennsylvania

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was only a little new snow in Pennsylvania Friday. But was it cold! Some relief is in prospect, however, by the weekend, but then it's supposed to get real cold again.

Places all over the state recorded lows for a Dec. 23. Chambersburg, for example, had its lowest temperature in 24 years and the coldest ever on a Dec. 23--13 below zero.

But 13 below was "warm" compared to other areas. It was 26 below at Lehigh Tannery, in Carbon County and 24 below in a few Schuylkill County areas. Salisburg in Somerset County reported the same figure, while Rockwood had 23 below. In Sunbury it was 21 below. White Haven reported 20 below; Long Run, Schuylkill County, 16 below; Lewistown, 14 below; Williamsport, 8 below; Harrisburg, 7 below; Allentown and Bradford, 1 below.

The U. S. Weather Bureau's extended forecasts for the next five days said temperatures are exbelow normal in eastern Pennsylvania and 10 to 12 degrees below normal in the west. A slow warming trend was seen for Saturday and Sunday, but then it will start turning colder again.

The weatherman also saw light snowfall as likely for the east and light snow or flurries for the western areas. There was a pre-dawn snow in Western Pennsylvania Friday, creating hazardous driving conditions. Much of the heavy snows of last week and this were also still on the ground.

Lows for Friday were expected to range from 10 below or more in northern areas to 10 above in southern sections.

Philadelphia had record-breaking cold weather for the fifth time this month, with a reading of eight above Friday morning.

The real meaning of Christmas

Christmas means many things to many people, but to most it means a time when thoughts are turned to the birth of Christ . . . to family . . . and to friends.

To youngsters . . . it may mean more joy than any other time of the year . . . a time filled with trees and lights, ribbon and wrapping paper, Santa Claus and surprises.

To Mother and Dad . . . Christmas may mean shopping and greeting cards, neighbors and family gatherings. And most of all, the wonderful experience of seeing happy, excited children.

To grandparents . . . it may mean warm memories of old friends, helping out at church, preparing the traditional Christmas dinner. But more importantly, it may mean having the children and grandchildren home again.

But to Christmas the world over . . . no matter how young or old . . . Christmas is really a day kept in memory of the birth of Jesus Christ nearly 2,000 years ago. It is a day when millions turn their thoughts to the Source of all that is good . . . and are reminded of the truly important things of life.

May the real meaning of Christmas . . . and the blessings of Christ . . . be with you and your families and bring you happiness the year 'round.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David, A Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

First Christmas Story Enlightened Everyone

Adoration Welled In Heart Of Girl's Aging Mother

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

THOU art all fair, my daughter, all grace and comeliness. Thy skin is silken to the touch, thy form like the work of a skilled craftsman. How gentle thou art, my child, how sweet the perfume of thy hair.

Adoration welled in the heart of the girl's aging mother, Anna, as she combed and smoothed her daughter's long, dark tresses. It was a deep-felt morning. For on this day, Mary would be espoused.

How beautiful she is, and pure of soul. Ah, beloved daughter, thou are the treasure of this house. There is no spot on thee. Thy innocence is a garden enclosed, and thou seem over-young for wifehood.

Yet Mary was 15, the proper age for taking a husband. She sat now on a stool, in dewey-eyed reverie, as Anna arrayed her for the ceremony. Her braids had been loosened and flowed over the nape of her neck to her waist.

Lithe, lovely child, thy parents exult in thee, and shall miss the song of thy rising and lying down.

Anna laid the comb aside and began to weave a fillet of yellow marguerites for Mary's hair. The guests would soon be arriving, and all must be made ready.

It was a joyous, yet also heavy time. Mary was not just another daughter of Israel. She had been the sunrise of life to her elderly parents, Anna and Joachim. For 20 years of marriage they had been childless until her coming. Anna remembered how unceasingly she had prayed in those years.

She Implores

"O God of my fathers," she had implored again and again, "bless me, as thou didst bless the womb of Sarah in her old age, and gavest her a son, Isaac."

Once, kneeling under a laurel tree, she noticed the young sparrows nesting above, and the grief burst from her in a wail.

"Woe unto me. I am not comparable to the very fowls of the heavens; to the very beasts of the earth, for even the beasts are fruitful before thee, O Lord."

Their lack of issue had sorely afflicted Joachim, an otherwise large-spirited and prosperous man. He owned vast numbers of sheep, the greatest herd in the Jezreel valley, and a splendid house in Nazareth.

Yet his affluence could not ease the gall of childlessness.

It was a scandal for a Jew to fail to beget children, a sign of sin and God's disfavor and, in time, the priests had come to scorn his generous festival offerings.

"It is not lawful for thee to offer thy gifts," they said, "seeing thou hast not begat any seed in Israel."

Joachim had betaken himself to the desert for long periods of fasting and prayer. And then, at last, it had come to pass. Anna sensed it, like a whisper in her soul, a stirring warmth in her flesh.

Saw Joachim

She rushed from the house in the twilight and saw Joachim coming from the fields with his shepherds and flocks. Sing, O barren, thou that didst not bear, break forth into singing. At the gate of the fold, she met him, and threw her arms about his neck.

"Now I know that the Lord God hath greatly blessed us," she exclaimed. "Behold, she that was barren hath conceived!"

The tears of the aging couple, their faces pressed close, flowed together.

"As the Lord my God liveth," Anna had vowed, "whatever I bring forth, whether it be male or female, I will devote it to the Lord my God."

Jubilant and singing praises, Joachim had made a special pilgrimage to Jerusalem to offer 100 goats, 10 lambs without spot or blemish and 12 tender calves to the Lord in thanksgiving.

Anna still remembered the first words she utteded after her nine months were fulfilled and she delivered on the 15th day of the month Hathor.

"What have I brought forth?"

"A female," the midwife answered.

How swiftly the years had flown since then, and now the girl-child was to be married. Anna's fingers trembled as she placed the ringlet of flowers on the crown of Mary's dark, shining head, and then straightened the folds of her woven white gown.

It was a difficult time, for a mother. She stepped back to survey the girl's appearance, striving to keep the unreasoned sense of loss from her eyes.

Throat Filled

Looking at her with an ever-sheltering love, Anna's throat filled, and she felt worn and old and no more of use. The hours that bound them had passed. Come now, my daughter, and take thy bridal seat.

Anna reached out and caught her hand, pressing it, and led her slowly into the forechamber where the maid-servant, Judith, was busily decking the walls with leafy boughs and blossoms.

It was the custom to receive guests throughout the day before the signing of the bethrothal agreement, and Mary would be there for all to see, her hair flowing to its full length as a sign of her maidenhood.

How strangely life unfolded. Just as the end of Mary's childhood was being marked with festivities, so was its beginning. That other, earlier celebration had scarcely faded in Anna's memory.

Mar yhad been a healthy, happy youngster, taking her first toddling steps at the age of nine months. When she was a year old, Joachim had made a great feast, inviting the whole village of Nazareth and even priests from Jerusalem.

In the midst of the jollity and lifting of wine cups, he had stood up, signalled for silence, and then prayed:

"O God of our fathers, bless this child, and give her a name renowned for ever among all generations."

"Amen and amen," the assemblage had cried, "So be it."

In keeping with their vow, when Mary was three years old, they had taken her to the Temple to dedicate her to the Lord's service.

They had arranged for her to study there, with other young virgins of well-to-do families, in the care of Anna's kinsman, the aged priest, Zechariah, of the division of Abipah, and his wife, Elizabeth. It was they, after the death of Joachim, who had helped Anna guide the child's upbringing.

Radiant In Spirit

Mary had grown radiant in spirit, rejoicing in worship, hymns and the sacred statutes, an exquisitely bright-cheeked and devout girl, with glad heart and a voice sweeter than the harps and flutes of the Levites on the Temple stairs.

Surely, Israel had never brought forth so goodly and elegant a bride. Anna moved distractedly about the room, her head swimming with recollections, hopes and fleeting anxieties, as she directed the final preparations.

Two other servants had joined Judith in decorating the house, bringing out extra ottomans and setting out trays of pickled olives, cheeses, fig cakes and other pastries for the throng of neighbors and relatives who would come in a day-long succession.

Anna's lips moved silently, as she bent to adjust a rug.

O Lord, grant that this man that thou hast chosen for her shall deal gently with her. Let him never raise his hand against her, nor speak to her harshly. She is born and nourished in thy loving kindness, O Lord. Give to this woodcutter, Joseph, a worthy heart and good intent.

Anna draped a fresh, sky-blue cover over the couch where Mary would sit with her groom, and brought the girl to the place of honor. There were three knocks at the dor, signifying a visitor. Anna walked across the carpeted flor, dabbing at her eyes.

He had borne enough. The rabbi had examined him. The elders had taken counsel. He had been interrogated by the whole congregation of Nazareth. Even priests of the Holy City had come to inquire into his reputation.

Joseph's patience waned. Verily, they had tested him without quarter. He took a last driving swing with his mallet, the chisel biting deep into the seasoned carob timber. The questioning near made him doubt himself.

Yet, manifestly, all of it had been necessary if he was to receive the most excellent and genteel maiden. Mary bath Joachim.

With his foot, he shoved the chips and splinters into a heap in the corner, leaving the unfinished wagon axle on his workbench. Sweat drenched his beard. The biceps of his arms stood out in great knots as he hung his implements.

Late Afternoon

It was late afternoon, about the tenth hour, and he knew full well he should be preparing for the betrothal rites at the rich house of Anna and Joachim, but he needed this final exertion to quiet his agitation.

He shook his head in chagrin. Yaal, foolishness! At his mature age, he should not have been so unsettled by the matter. Yet each time his thoughts turned to the maid, his strength fled from him.

Likewise, the inquiries had tried him sorely. He had submitted humbly to them. He was not a vain man. But their precautions left him worn and ill at ease. It was if he were a stranger in their midst.

Had he not dwelt and toiled among them these many years? Had he not walked in integrity? He had brought forth young sons and, since he was widowed two years past, he had lived circumspectly and in accord with the law.

Yet it was meet that the girl's mother, Anna, and her kinsmen, having the high rank in the priesthood, should take great care in choosing a fit mate for an only daughter, a cherished yachid.

Joseph brushed the sawdust and parings from his tunic, and strode into the house. The little ones were at the synagogue, being instructed by the chazzan, and thereafter would repair to the reception of espousal.

He poured water into a basin on the clay floor, stripped off his loin cloth and bathed. Then, freshening the water, he dipped his head, scrubbing and spluttering. He toweled himself briskly and rubbed fragrant oil into his hair and beard.

Digging into his garment box, he shook out his white linen mantle and wrapped it on, buckling a leather girdle at his waist. He put on his Sabbath sandals, then fetched the gifts for Mary and her family from the shelf.

He tucked them into a pouch at his waist and set out.

It would have been easier if this had been a simple match-making, negotiated by the shadchanin, who served regularly as go-between in arranging the terms between parents of young couples.

Great Concern

In Mary's case, however, great concern and attention had been lavished on finding her a rightful husband. Anna had called to her aid a learned and distinguished kinsman, the chief priest Zechariah, who also had been tutor to Mary.

A multitude of eager suitors had been considered, both widowers and young swains, wealthy and poor. Zechariah, after much prayer and consultation, had named Joseph, the plain, hard-working joiner of Nazareth.

"I am an older man and have children," he had accused himself, "but she is young."

Zechariah had shrugged off the outburst, saying the determination was under divine guidance.

"Unto thee, Joseph, hath it fallen," he remonstrated.

Joseph's qualms arose not from any want of affection for Mary, but only from his own lowliness. He had scant possessions and only a meager abode compared to the stately house of Joachim. And the maid herself was the glory of the village.

JOSEPH approached the house. A new moon shone over the roof. The light of the moon, at mid-month, was the favored time for betrothals. From inside came merry sounds of voices.

His blood pounded as he touched the mezuzah at the doorpost, kissing his fingers, and knocked. A maid - servant

brought a waterbasin for his hands and feet.

Walked Barefoot

Leaving his sandals at the door, he walked barefoot across the room. It swarmed with neighbors and children, eating and conversing animatedly.

His eyes downcast and fumbling with his purse-strings, he drew out his small gifts and presented them unceremoniously, a silken sash with the colors of her tribe to Anna, a fringed prayer shawl to the old priest, Zechariah, a cruet of spices to his wife, Elizabeth, a bronze pendant to Mary.

Amid their utterances of gratitude and the murmuring of the throng, he took his seat beside the bride, with her family on either side. The servants passed more sweetmeats to the young, and the guests moved by to make flowery speeches of commendation.

Joseph and the parents took the quill and put their names to the legal instrument of betrothal, the kethubah. Two witnesses stamped and sealed it. This was the binding covenant of marriage, with the ensuing wedding its public celebration.

Foreasmuch as she was virgin, and not a widow, it would be a full year before the marriage should be fulfilled, even though thence forth it would not be unlawful for him to know her. She now was under his atuhority.

"Be thou the mother of thousands of millions," the old priest told Mary. "Let thy seed possess the gate."

The company prostrated themselves, facing toward the Temple, and the old priest blessed the Lord God of Abraham, and this union of his children, Mary bath Joachim and Joseph bar Jacob.

Back from his building, expedition, Joseph bar Jacob entered the house and found Mary standing alone before the hearth. Her back was toward him. She did not move. Quickly he hooked the door curtain aside to admit more light.

He started toward her, swept with eager devotion. He had not seen her for six months.

She turned about, facing him. An armload of firewood she held crashed to the floor at her feet.

He stopped.

Pale, Drawn

Beneath the gray cowl, her face was pale and drawn, and her eyes burned with anguish. Her palms spread imploringly, defenselessly, at her sides. Her body bulged. She was full, me-leah, with child!

Breath failed him, and his countenance sagged in disbelief and dismay. He took a step or two, and halted again, staring at her in shattered incredulity.

She seemed to shrink from him, her fingers twisting at the folds of her cloak. She lowered her head, and then, clenching her lips, bent and began rapidly picking up the kindling and stacking it in a heap.

He opened his mouth to speak, but no words came. A wave of helpless compassion came over him, an urge to take her in his arms and console her. Yet he remained rooted, sick at heart, shocked and confounded.

Abruptly he turned and plunged out of the house into his carpentry shed. He flung himself down on a pile of sackcloth.

"Oh Lord, my God," he moaned, "What shall I say concerning her?"

He wept bitterly.

"For I received her a virgin out of the Temple of the Lord, and have not preserved her such."

Rage boiled in him.

"Who has thus deceived me? Who has committed this evil in my house? Who hath defiled her?"

In the very dawn of matrimony had come betrayal. At the beginning of paradise, it was lost.

"Is not the history of Adam repeated in me? For at the very hour of his giving thanks, the serpent came and found Eve alone, and deceived her."

His fingers dug in his face.

"So hath it befallen me also."

Angrily he lurched to his feet. With a stroke of his arm, he sent a rack of boards smashing against the wall. He strode outside and into the grove. He walked until his bones ached along with his heart, and then returned to confront her.

Lamp Flamed

Now it was night, and a lamp flamed on the sideboard. He called to her, and she emerged from an inner chamber, looking on him with swollen, defiant eyes. He drew himself up determinedly, and said:

"Why hast thou done this?"

Her lips parted and her throat muscles moved in little spasms, but speech eluded her. He could see the veins purpling beneath her translucent skin, and sorrow shook him.

All his senses insisted that she could not have done this thing, she who was so prudent and full of grace, she who was schooled in the very Temple itself, yet here she stood, her unfaithfulness a taunt to his face.

"Why . . .? He shook his head. "Why hast thou, who has been so much favored of God, thus debased thy soul?"

Suddenly, tears burst from her in a flood, and she clasped her hands to her face, crying out shrilly:

"I am innocent, and have known no man!"

He stood there, dumbstruck, pitying her, loving her, detesting her, believing her, doubting her.

"Then," he said unsteadily, "how comes it to pass you are with child?"

A new burst of tears convulsed her.

"As the Lord my God liveth, I know not by what means."

She bent almost double, covering her face in her arms, and whirling, rushed from the room.

"I am innocent! . . . innocent!"

If only, within reason, he could believe her, or pardon—for a good man is long-suffering, and unafraid of scorn—but he could not.

Somewhere in the night, somewhere in the gulf past purpose or return, he dropped to his knees, bitter tears mingling with his supplications. He could not say how long he prayed there, and finally he fell to the ground and slept a tumid and teeming sleep.

Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son . . . He shall save His people from their sins.

He jerked erect, his heart beating wildly, his eyes feverish and exultant. It was true! A mystery unveiled! It was their Maker's doing, and the Lord of Hosts is his name. For this cause had the Lord wrought and kept her. He got up, his body stiff, his mind aflame.

He ran, dodging and leaping, as the sun shot silver through the trees. He came to the house and found her waiting. His arms went around her, and with these two, all was well.

Love sought them, reached for them, bent low for them, so very low.

A lowly she-donkey plodded up the red and rocky road toward Bethlehem, carrying the young Jewess, led by her rough-clad mate. They were tired, dusty. But they bore the lost lustre of life.

Other Travelers

Other travelers paid them little heed. The traffic was thick, and strident with yells of camoleers and bluster of litter trains. No one seemed much concerned with anyone. But love was infinitely concerned with everyone.

It is hard to say why. Men had strayed and stumbled. In their willful arrogance, they had fouled their freedoms. They hated, warred, plundered, falsified. They were a hard, harried lot, tortured by dead dreams. The great vision had left them.

But it would not let them go.

On the road, the peasant couple paused beside a yew tree, and Joseph looked worriedly up at his wife, fearing she was in pain. Yet, only moments ago, he had seen her smiling with deep satisfaction.

"Mary," he said, "what aileth thee? How happens it that I sometimes see sorrow and sometimes laughter and joy in thy countenance?"

She leaned on her arms, gripping the donkey's mane.

"It is because I behold two people with mine eyes, the one weeping and lamenting, and the other laughing and rejoicing."

For there is joy in love rejoined and mutually given, but tragedy in its trampling down. Men would ever misuse, mock and crucify it. But love would not surrender.

There was no room in the inn. The place surged with voices, smoke and smells of roasting meat. Distressed, Joseph grabbed the halter rope and started off again. Dogs barked; peddlers babbled and drays trundled in the deepening dusk.

He led the donkey down a slope at the rear of the hostelry. In the distant valley he could see the campfires of shepherds. Early stars blinked over the mountains of Moab.

He heard Mary moan, and quickly stepped back beside her.

"Take me down," she urged, "for that which is within me presses to come forth."

"Wither shall I take thee?"

His voice was desperate, and his hands closed over hers commiseratingly. They must go on. They could not stop her in the open on this gravel-strewn hill.

Compressed Lips

She compressed her lips, nodding. He tugged the donkey on down the hill, along a cliff, his eyes straining to find the livestock cave of which the innkeeper had spoken. Night's sharp chill settled over them. He dragged at the rope, and the donkey held back stiff-leggedly, braying.

"Take me down," she gasped again, "for that which is within me mightily presses me."

At that moment, he spied the dark opening in the wall of rock. He rushed back to her, lifting her in his arms and carrying her into the warmer interior, moving slowly in the blackness, hearing the grunts and breathing of animals about him.

He probed with his feet, found an open space and laid her down. Groping, he collected some straw for a mattress and lifted her on it, rolling his cloak for her head.

He rushed back outside, gathered dry grass and wood and struck fire with his flint, blowing until it strengthened into flame. He jerked the waterskin from the stubborn beast's pack, filled a basin and put in on the fire. Then he fashioned an oil torch and jamed it in a crevice on the cavern wall. He knelt beside her stroking her hot brow.

DECORATED FOR CHRISTMAS—Lights on outdoor trees and a wreath above the door give a Christmas decor to the North Portico entrance to the White House. (AP Wirephoto)

White House Shines For Ike's Last

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is glittering with decorations for the last Christmas season the Eisenhowers will spend in the presidential mansion.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower received about 1,000 members of the White House staff and employes in the Christmas setting Thursday, serving sweet buns, doughnuts and coffee in the East room.

The Blue Room, where they shook hands with the White House personnel, is decorated with white poinsettias and a tree decked in tinsel and blue lights.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore a red dress and red shoes for the occasion.

Mistletoe

But inside, mistletoe hangs as usual from the great lantern in the entrance hall, holly and poinsettias abound, Santas sit on the formal fireplace mantles and there are more than a dozen large and small Christmas trees, with tinsel, baubles and lights, in the formal first floor rooms.

The huge East Ballroom has its traditional Nativity scenes in three sections, each with a lettered legend—"Glory to God in the highest; and on earth peace; good will toward men."

Nearby, between the portraits of George and Martha Washington, towers a shimmering 22-foot pine, touching the ceiling.

Its branches are decked with tinsel and white lights and a white star nestles at the peak.

There's an addition to the decor this year. A 3½-foot-tall Santa Claus, in traditional costume, stands beneath the ballroom tree.

LIFE-LIKE LLAMA
Cheap to Feed

Construction Set. Kit called "The Automat" contains 1,300 precision-made machine parts: spur gears, maltese crosses, drums, cams, levers, couplings, clutchings, et al, enough to put together a variety of actual machines and mechanisms. Costs $225.

Gifts For Grown-Up Kids

Bed of Luxury. A New York furrier has made a double bedspread of, not mere mink, but chinchilla, with a couple of furry throw pillows for dash. Price hovers hazardously close to $8,000.

His-and-Her Planes. The Texas couple that already has well-to-well carpeting will get a lift out of matching airplanes. Hers . . . a four-seater costs $27,000. His . . . with room for seven . . . is priced a little higher . . . $149,000.

A Soft-Head. A male artist can fashionably take brush in hand with a soft vicuna beret on his pate when Santa Claus has $45 to shell out for it.

His-and-Her Robes. With a little rationalizing that they can cut down on the heat bills, man and wife with the wherewithal can exchange gifts of vicuna robes. Set immodestly priced at $870.

Money Scents. Just to be sure a woman doesn't run out of perfume, there is a giant sized bottle of a famous brand which costs $5,000.

Total shopping bill . . . $214,353!

The milky way blazed like a highway of silver. A warm tide banished the chill of earth, and loosed the scent of grass and spring and Eden flowers. Veils of light, draped the sky. A million birds singing? No. An angel army.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace among men with whom He is pleased.

A thousand miles away, distinguished wise men studied the stars, and in the valley, wide-eyed shepherds huddled in awe, Joseph whirled and saw the white brilliance filling the cave. It blurred his eyes, and he stumbled toward it.

And the word became flesh and dwelt among us.

He was here. Now! Theophany on earth! He had come. He cared. Was man worth it? That God should take upon himself the form of a helpless babe in a draughty, dung-strewn cave? Yes, man was worth it. He was loved, dearly loved. He was important, in God's sight.

That was the motive, the meaning, the reason for it all, the making, and health of man—the Divine embrace.

Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee.

Men were precious, each bungling, benighted one of them.

And this world was dignified, too, its grime and its flesh and its musty stables. For this is where God came. This is where grace was given. Right in the midst of the shabbiest, dreariest gash in the earth. Not in some rarefied sanctum. But in the seamy world itself, where man lives and works.

Awake, awake, put on thy strength, shake thyself from the dust.

Joseph, shielding his face, plunged into the argent radiance. It pulsed and simmered, and then receded, scattering like a jeweled mist. He could see faintly, and then quite well. All was just as before, the dull stone, the littered floor, the torch on the wall.

Except that now she was up and moving about, dark hollows beneath her eyes, but smiling. In her arms, she held her first-born son. Immanuel, "God with us."

So this was He. The unsearchable, the Unknown. So now men knew. This is what He was like. And He had come to show them, to make them see, and know forever, that He was with them, intimately near, intimately concerned.

Despite men's grievous ways, He still was here. Despite their blunted responses. He came. Humbling himself, offering himself, tenting in the slums and tribulations of man. This was God. The absolute, the invincible, the power that is constant, enduring, the ultimate. This was the Almighty. This was love.

She wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger.

Christmas Tree With Tin Cans

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The depressed town of nearby Emeich hopes its off-beat Christmas tree will draw enough notice to attract a new industry.

The scrawny tree is decorated with tin cans, foil pie plates and empty surplus food containers. Beside the tree there is a sign saying:

"A depressed town. Please, Santa, bring us some jobs. Merry Xmas all."

Emeich has been without a big industry since its huge coal mine closed in 1954.

"Now we hope someone will see the tree and realize what bad shape our community is in," George Janosko, owner and operator of a tavern, said yesterday. Janosko was one of 500 left unemployed when the mine shut.

Then, Emeich was a community of 2,000. The population has since dwindled to 775.

CBS Show To Probe Election Procedures

On the night before the ballot of the Electoral College is certified at a joint session of Congress in Washington, D.C., "CBS Reports" will present an analytical report on U.S. election procedures titled "Our Election Day Illusions: The Beat Majority," on the CBS Television Network Thursday, Jan. 5 (10-11 P.M.)

CBS Correspondents Edward R. Murrow and Bill Leonard are reporters of the program.

(This program, first on the series' new alternate - Thursday schedule, was originally titled "Is the Next Election Already Rigged?")

"Our Election Day Illusions: The Beat Majority" will consider the adequacy of the electoral college system. Title Football Game On Channel 4 Monday

The championship football game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers, divisional leaders in the National Professional League, will be blacked out in Philadelphia, but will be telecast on Channel 4, New York and other NBC stations.

The telecast will be in color starting at 11:45 a.m. Monday and will be preceded by a pre-game show at 11:30.

Because of a league ruling against telecasting games in the cities where they are played, Channel 3, Philadelphia, will make a video-tape of the title contest and telecast it Tuesday at 10 p.m.

Santa Claus Set To Keep Appointment With Children

BRUNSWICK, Maine (AP) — Santa Claus will keep an appointment here today with some 160 children of a grief-stricken naval air squadron.

"Believe me," said a squadron officer, "it will be one of the toughest missions that Santa has ever had."

One of the squadron's P2S Neptune patrol bombers went down off Newfoundland Wednesday, and hope was abandoned Thursday for all nine men aboard.

Two bodies were recovered near wreckage of the aircraft 17 miles off the southeast tip of Newfoundland. The plane crashed in clear weather while participating in a fleet exercise off Cape Race. The bodies were sent to the U. S. Navy base at Argentia for identification.

An empty life raft and a life preserver were found near the wreckage. The Navy said its air-sea search will continue, but there was no hope of survivors on the frigid seas.

Called Off

All adult holiday activities for the Maine squadron have been called off because of the crash. But, said an officer, "The small children don't understand and would be disappointed if Santa did not come as planned."

Three of the squadron children won't be at the Christmas party.

They are the youngsters of Aviation Machinist Mate 2.c. George P. Smith. They opened their Christmas presents last Sunday when Dad learned he was going to Argentia. "I may not be home for Christmas," Smith told them.

He was one of the men lost aboard the ill-fated plane.

Dutch Ruler Will Submit Resignation

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands (AP) — Dutch Premier Jan Eduard de Quay plans to submit his resignation to Queen Juliana at noon today after a breakup of his coalition government on a public housing issue.

His 19-month-old Liberal Cabinet — the first of its kind in the postwar era — fell unexpectedly late Thursday night when the 150-member lower house of Parliament passed by 70-59 a motion the government vetoed earlier.

The lower house called on the government — over its veto — to add 5,000 subsidized dwellings to its program for building 80,000 homes within a year.

Public Works Minister Johannes Van Aartsen, a right-wing Protestant, tried a compromise of 2,500 additional dwellings but refused to go along with the additional 5,000 under the threat of resigning.

Political observers generally dismissed any possibility of a reconstruction of the present Cabinet, and they predict a long crisis.

Housing has been Holland's most serious postwar problem. According to official estimates the housing shortage has decreased from 300,000 homes in 1949 to some 90,000 at present.

It is estimated there are still about 100,000 cases of families' home-sharing in the Netherlands.

Kissing Girls Are Reinstated

ACCRINGTON, England (AP)—Five girls who sold kisses to cotton factory fellows were reinstated in their jobs last night.

The five were suspended this week for embracing the entire shop. They charged one shilling—14 cents—a kiss and said the proceeds would go to an orphanage to buy Christmas gifts.

The management contended kissing and full production were incompatible, and laid them off. The 150 male operatives instantly went on strike.

After management relented the men said they would go back to work too.

"We're delighted to have won our point," said a striker.

"True the girls were chasing us all over the factory floor, but Christmas comes but once a year."

Calls For Bids

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Highways Department yesterday called for bids Jan. 27 on highway construction projects. The counties involved included:

Lackawanna—Southwest of Maple Lake, widening and resurfacing, 1.60 mile, reconstruction.

Airline Flights Are Suspended

MANILA (AP)—President Carlos P. Garica has ordered Philippine Airlines to suspend all night flights as a result of two fatal crashes of its planes during darkness within a month.

A Philippine Airlines plane sliced into a hillside before dawn yesterday and 28 died. A night crash in late November killed 33.

The plane had just taken off from Cebu City, in the central Philippines, when it lost altitude. Narrowly missing three homes, it tore into a clump of banana trees. The wings ripped off tnd the plane exploded in flames.

Villagers pulled nine survivors from the burning wreckage, which hung upside down in the trees. Most of the passengers were college students heading home from Manila. Christmas presents were scattered among the debris.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

For Saturday, December 24, 1960

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Your Mars well aspected. Hope you have remembered loved ones in the Armed Services wherever they are, also those who have lonely lives. Vigorous activities are favored but think! Christmas!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — No unfriendly aspects now or tomorrow. Get your last-minute tasks finished so you can give time, thought to the true meaning, message of Christmas. Also enjoy your family happily.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Recklessness in any form not sanctioned today. You can have a happy, useful time getting ready for the big tomorrow. Christmas services, true charity, thinking of the ill and lonely encouraged.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—The Day and the season hold cheer and blessings for all who forget self in their desire to give unto others. It can be a generous period for generosity shown to others.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Today stresses need for thinking and doing for others rather than for self alone. Don't seek untoward favors or promotion but do your duty willingly and uncomplainingly; you will be happy.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Day urges some system to get things in order and give you a freer hand for Christmas festivities. Don't forget the little things that help to make all happier. Christmas services honored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Reflect, check over duties; have you forgotten anything? Essential duties, domestic interests in first order now. Don't overtire but enjoy your activities as blessings. Be thankful.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Benefic day for necessary activities, government and our Armed Forces' interests. You should be alert, keen, on the job. Show your natural skill at gathering people together for festivities.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Interesting, favorable influences remain since yesterday's Jupiter aspect. Share some of your blessings with those less fortunate and know the happiness that comes from giving.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Important indications but you must pick them up and utilize them to best advantage. Often you industrious, brainy folks can accomplish a great deal with little material. Heed your intuition.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — The unusual, the unexpected but pleasant likely now. Without neglecting any duty, join family, perhaps worthy friends in Christmas festivities and preparations for a restful holiday.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) Many interests, homey and some of business nature and favored now. Friendships, for which we should be grateful, music, and other blessings highly honored. Enjoy them.

YOU BORN TODAY: Have many qualifications that spell happiness and success. You enjoy gathering knowledge and will educate yourself in several fields if you have the opportunity. But here you must be sensibly careful for you tend to overwork and wear down health. You can, and usually do, reach a high point in your occupation and never seem to tire of acquiring more and more knowledge. Enter the profession, career or trade that suits your talents best and work with faith, hope and confidence. Birthdate: St. Ignatius of Loyola founder of the Jesuits; Matthew Arnold, 19th century English poet, critic; many inventors.
